At the conclusion of the thirty-third year of the Company's existence, your Directors deem the time opportune for a statement of the Company's operations during that period.

The Company was chartered in 1880, and the work of that year was practically confined to organization and consolidation of several small corporations through purchase for cash or stock in this Company. In 1880 no known means existed for carrying the wires underground. Subscribers' Stations were connected by a single overhead iron wire costing about four cents per pound. To-day, 1913, Subscribers' Stations are connected by a double wire of copper, costing about nineteen and one-half cents per pound, carried in most cases underground in conduits, and costing on an average $29.51 per circuit for conduit and wire.

The Central Office apparatus in 1880 consisted principally of small 50 wire Switchboards costing about $3.00 per subscriber. The present Central Office Switchboards of the "Central Energy" type cost from $20.00 to $35.00 per subscriber.

Since the Company commenced business Operators' and Linemen's wages have advanced 75%.

Owing to the rapid changes in the Art a great expense is caused, and must be provided for, because of obsolescence. As an example: in Montreal and Toronto we have been obliged to change the Central Office apparatus five times, not because it was worn out, but because of improvements which made the changes not only expedient but imperative.

The plant of the Company has been kept "up-to-date." In the evidence given before the Railway Commission in the matter of the Montreal Rates, one of the Experts testifying on behalf of the City, answering a question as to the condition of the Montreal plant, stated: "Excellent condition. It is kept right up to spirit level. Magnificent."

The inevitable changes caused by removals, &c., &c., increase greatly the cost of plant. For example, in 1912 19,855 Stations were removed, and 50,899 new Stations added, so that the net increase in Stations was but 31,514.

The Plant additions in 1912, as shown in the Annual Statement, amounted to $4,346,950. It is quite certain that the Company must provide for similar or greater expenditure on this account in the future and capital must be provided therefor inasmuch as experience has taught us, that at existing rates, provision cannot be made for this expenditure from current revenue.

The average Annual Revenue received from each subscriber's station in 1885 was $31.76, and in 1912 $29.91, thus showing an appreciable reduction in the cost of telephone service to the subscriber.

The Reserves carried in the Annual Statement comprise amounts absolutely essential to the solvency and success of the Company. For example: The Depreciation Reserve represents an amount set aside from earnings in order that a fund may be provided, from which worn out plant may be replaced. This fund now represents 15% of our Plant Account, and it is agreed by conservative experts, who have given much time and consideration to this question, that not less than 6% should be set aside for this account annually.

Employees Benefit Fund represents an amount set aside from time to time from Net Revenue, for the purpose of providing funds for Pensions, and gratuities to worthy Employees who, through length of faithful service or other reasons, are entitled to such consideration.

In the earlier years of the Company's operations it was found impossible to procure satisfactory apparatus and wire and cables in Canada, and the Company had to choose between importing such plant at a great cost, or giving an unsatisfactory service, or undertaking the risks involved in inaugurating a novel manufacture in Canada of the plant required. After careful consideration it was decided to take the risks involved in promoting the manufacture in this Country. Accordingly The Imperial Wire & Cable Company and The Northern Electric & Manufacturing Company were organized and this Company took stock therein.

At the outset this Company took the entire output of these Companies, but as time went on and as other telephone undertakings became more numerous, the business of these Companies increased and the proportion of their output taken by this Company became less and less, till in 1912 this Company took about 30% of the output, the remaining 70% being taken by the Canadian public generally.

These two Companies have no monopoly in the manufacture and sale of telephone apparatus and wire and cables in Canada. There is strong competition in these businesses, both by Canadian manufacturers and by importations from the United States and elsewhere, and prices are controlled by this competition. The prices charged to and paid by this Company are the market prices which are charged to and paid by our competitors and others. We mention this, for it has been said that because this Company holds stock in these Manufacturing Companies it pays them higher prices for what it buys from them than it would have to pay elsewhere, and that it is in this way making the cost of telephone plant appear to be higher than it really is. It has also been stated that the establishment of these Companies was merely a roundabout way by which this Company might secure excessive profits from its telephone users.

We can give all these statements an unqualified denial. The facts are as herein stated. The Company pays no more than the Public; but on the contrary it purchases on the lowest market terms, and upon no principle of fairness or equity can it be contended that telephone users are entitled to the benefit of any part of the profits made by these Manufacturing Companies upon any part of their output, particularly upon the 70% thereof which this Company does not take.

The Company has from time to time found it expedient to sell its properties in different Provinces, notably Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. In most instances the Company has taken payment, part in cash, and balance in fully paid stock in the local Companies. The cash so received has been reinvested in the Plant of the Company without any addition to the capital. In the North West Provinces the Local Governments proposed to inaugurate local, provincially owned and operated systems, and we sold our plant at those points on mutually satisfactory terms.

It is only proper to state in this connection that our relations with those Provinces to which we sold our Plant, remain as they always have been most satisfactory.

In no case had we any desire to sell, but the Provinces wished to purchase and we had no wish to compete with Government owned and operated systems.

Included in the Company's Assets are the stocks of the Manufacturing Companies referred to—premiums on stock which were paid by the Shareholders and not by the Public)—and the proceeds of the sales abovementioned for the property in which some of such proceeds have been invested; but none of these bear any relation to the Company's telephone business, and do not affect the cost of the service or the revenue from it, and without these Assets the Company would have had to borrow money or increase its capital in order to carry on the business.

These operations have resulted in a wide variation between the capital stock, the investment in our operating business, and our total investment. It must be understood therefore, that the earnings on the capital stock bear no relation to the amount of our operating investment.

These Assets and their revenues belong to the Shareholders. They might have been distributed among them. The Company's reason for not making such distribution has been to strengthen its financial position and thus enable it more easily to procure the large sums which have been required from time to time for Capital Expenditure and which have been essential to an efficient public service.

Had the entire surplus revenue of each year been paid in Dividends instead of being used in extending the business, either additional Capital would have had to be raised or extensions would have had to be omitted. Had the Company been unable to procure the additional Capital, the only way to provide for extensions would have been to reduce Dividends and use profits for Capital Expenditure; in which case new Capital could not have been secured except on ruinous terms, and the ultimate result of such a course would have been either an increase of rates to the Public, or failure to serve it efficiently.

In 1906 the operation of the Company was placed under the supervision of the Railway Commission, which has considered several matters brought before it for adjudication, and has, in its conclusions, acted in an impartial and judicial manner.

Our relations with the Public continue to be very satisfactory, and the general feeling now seems to be that the telephone service to be perfect must be universal, intercommunicating, interdependent, under one control, and that no isolated section can be considered independently of any other, or of the whole system, and that rates must be so adjusted as to make it possible for everyone to be connected who will add to the value of the system to others.

In accordance with this principle the Company has made contracts for intercommunication and exchange of business with 474 local organizations and individuals, owning and operating rural lines, which have in some cases been built by the owners and are operated at a very low cost without a reasonable prospect of any return in Dividends or proper provision for depreciation, etc., etc. Our relations with these Companies are satisfactory.

The stock of this Company has never been "watered" nor distributed as a bonus to any person or Corporation.

The Dividends paid since the organization of the Company are equal to 7.5% on the average paid up Capital Stock, but only 5.8% on the average amount invested in the plant, etc., connected with the public service.

CROSS OR FEVERISH HALF-SICK CHILDREN

If tongue is coated, breath bad, stomach sour, it means a torpid liver and clogged bowels.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna", prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

BOILING WATER FOR FROST BITES

Dr. J. M. Johnston Claims It Is a Real Cure in Spite of Popular Fancy

Frost bite, frozen ears, noses and fingers may be cured without any ill effects by boiling water, according to Dr. J. M. Johnston, Toronto. The doctor stated that in spite of the popular fallacy to the contrary boiling water was the best remedy which could be used. He had said, used it himself and on his patients, and it always gave perfect results. Dr. Johnston told of experiments on rabbits, which were carried on in Germany. Two ears of a rabbit were frozen, one of which was treated with boiling water, and the other with various other cures. The result, he said, was always the same. The boiling water cure worked while the others were quite inadequate, and often brought on serious complications.

An interesting discovery was made in Edinburgh in the course of the demolition of the old church buildings of Lady Glenorchy's Parish Church in Roxburgh Place. AFTER RARE ANIMALS

Two Naturalists Explored the Wilds of Britis Columbia and Alberta

Frederick K. Vreeland of Montclair, N. J. and William P. Pattinson of Millburn, N. J. visited the extreme northern parts of Alberta and British Columbia in the interests of the American Museum of Natural History, and the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C. They explored the country lying to the north of the Big Bend of the Columbia River and the Peace River district, and made large collections of mammals, birds and reptiles. They got many specimens of the wood buffalo, which is the largest variety of American bison, and brown bear. The two naturalists explored the mountains with pack horses, and obtained specimens of rare species of mountain sheep and goat. Besides specimens of the Rocky Mountain sheep and goat, Pattinson and Vreeland obtained specimens of the Stone sheep and Dall sheep, which are found in the northern parts of British Columbia and Alberta. They got many specimens of wild fowl in the Peace River district. The Canadian Government has recently established a number of game preserves, and the specimens of mountain sheep and goat obtained by Pattinson and Vreeland were obtained in one of these preserves. They were obtained at the request of the Smithsonian Institute, Mr. Vreeland hunted mountain sheep and goat in the Canadian Rockies several years ago and one of the finest specimens of the mountain goat in the American museum now adorns the Mount Royal Park museum.

A CRUEL LODGER

Flesh Burnt off Woman's Arms Because Dinner was Not Ready

A revolting story of the revenge of a hungry lodger was told at the London police court when Lewis Chapman, of Willesden, was charged with assaulting Mrs. Field, a woman with whom he lodged, by burning her with a red-hot poker.

Mrs. Field said that her lodger came home in a bad temper, and because his dinner was not ready he locked her in a room, made the poker red-hot, and burnt the flesh off both her arms. Ever since she had been in intense agony.

The lodger, who stated that he only "acted in self-defence," was sentenced to six months' hard labor without the option of a fine.

King's New Farm

For the sum of $60,000 King George purchased Shernborne Hall Farm, lying to the north of Sandringham, which is now practically ringed round by the King's property. The hall farm is occupied by Mr. C. R. Bullard, and it consists of some 700 acres, and a castellated house, surrounded by a moat.

Many years ago the farm was bequeathed to Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and an interesting clause in the agreement between the college and the tenant, which has existed for a long period, is that the tenant should supply six fat turkeys yearly to the college.

A REAL PIONEER

Resident of Kenora Traverses West Nearly Seven Decades Ago

It is sixty-six years since Mr. E. J. N. Pither, Kenora's grand old man, who is now approaching the eighty-seventh milestone of life first spotted the spot where Kenora now stands. He was then but twenty-one years of age, and was taking the trip in the interest of the Hudson Bay Company, with whom he had formed an early connection. Accompanied by a small brigade composed of white men, half-breeds and Indians, the start was made from Lachine, Que., on April 19th, 1846, en route to York Factory, Hudson Bay. Gaining this point, they rested for some time, later wending their way up the Saskatchewan River to Edmonton before making the return journey, which found them again in Lachine in September of the same year. At the Hudson's Bay fort at Fort William the party travelled overland to where Fort Frances now stands, thence down the Rainy River and through the Lake of the Woods and Winnipeg River to Lake Winnipeg.

Many considered it a perilous trip in those days to voyageurs in their frail crafts, but Mr. Pither recalls this initial trip as one brimful of pleasant adventure.

CHAPTER II.

Rifle Shots Echo in the Woods.

Of conveying even a tithe of the horror I experienced at Cameron's disclosure I am nigh hopeless. The more we discussed the occurrence the less susceptible it seemed of explanation. And what is so terrifying as the inexplicable, or so dreadful as the intangible? Here, apparently, was an enemy of calm and cunning malignity, who chose to manifest his power in a manner almost ludicrously puerile—save as it pointed with significant finger to some dire and inevitable sequel—yet with such crafty secrecy as completely to mystify and dismay.

Cameron showed me the mutilated portrait. He had taken it down almost immediately, and had hidden it away in a closet of the hall behind an array of raincoats. The cutting had been done, evidently, with an exceedingly keen blade, and very dexterously done. But that it should have been accomplished in twelve minutes, while Cameron sat in the room, not fifteen feet distant, was beyond our comprehension. Absorption in his book was the nearest we came to a solution, and that was scarcely tenable. For there was the crowded top of the bookshelves. To cut the canvas, the vandal must either have stood upon that or have reared a ladder. There was not room for the foot of a child on the shelf-top; and as for the ladder, it was unthinkable. How could a ladder have been carried in and out without Cameron being conscious of it? From every possible angle we viewed the incident, making every conceivable concession, and no half-way plausible answer to the riddle presented itself. And though our common-sense told us that the time of miracles was long past, that no Gyges' ring nor Atherich's cloak survived to this day to make invisible their wearers, there persisted, nevertheless, a chill, uncanny sense of the supernatural, quite evident to me in Cameron's hushed voice and furtive manner, and in my own unwonted nervous disquietude.

We sat very late. I wished, if possible, to learn if at any time in my friend's life he had done aught to engender an enmity to which these strange developments could be traced—whether, for instance, in the hot blood of his youth in some far land he had provoked the vengeance of one whose humor it is never to forget. As we talked I came to know Cameron better than I had ever known him before. He bared to me much of his early career; he gave me a clearer view of his temperamental qualities; and yet I could not but feel that he left the vital point untouched, that beneath his seeming frankness there lay hidden, shielded, some one episode, perhaps, which might let the light in upon our darkness. For my question was evaded rather than answered.

Presently, we went back to the letters and dissected them, coldly and critically, sentence by sentence, and while the weird influence which they had exerted upon me at the first reading increased, stimulated possibly by the incident of the portrait, still we reached a certain practical, commonsense view as to their origin; for we came to see in them what we believed to be the hand of a religious fanatic. Certain expressions, we concluded, were quotations. If they were not Biblical, they were certainly of sacred genesis. And the discovery was not reassuring. It lent, indeed, an added prick to the perturbation we already experienced.

Nor did the absence of a specified date for the second promised demonstration of power tend to relieve our uneasiness. In this silence we found the acme of cunning cruelty. Any day, at any hour, some other mystifying, soul-torturing incident was liable to occur.

I tried to argue that the seventh day was implied, inasmuch as the second note was received on the same day of the month as the first, and was a mere continuation of the original threat. But my contention lacked the intrinsic strength which carries conviction, and, as Cameron put it, we could only "watch and wait;" for the communications offered no alternative. They made no demand which being complied with would avert penalty. Only implacable and inevitable retribution, calm, patient, and determined, effused from every line.

But, in spite of Cameron's evident anxiety—and in using that term I am very mildly stating his obvious condition of mind—he sternly refused to consult either the police or the private detectives.

"You may not know," he explained, "that I am largely interested in a certain line of industrial enterprises, the shares of which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Should the public become aware that my life is threatened, very serious consequences might ensue in the market. No, Clyde, whatever is done, must be done by ourselves, and by friends whom we can trust absolutely. I can take no risk of this horrid thing getting into the newspapers. Besides," he added, with a kindly, considerative smile, "Evelyn must be kept in ignorance. Not for worlds would I have her troubled by our perplexing enigma."

My suggestion that he should go abroad for a time, or at least spend a few weeks at Newport, was met with similar obstinate refusal.

"I admit that I have been somewhat upset by this extraordinary combination," was the way he expressed it, "but I am not a coward. I am not going to run. Even if I were inclined to do so, what should I gain? If a man be not safe in his own house, where in Heaven's name is he likely to find safety?"

Quite naturally I was led by this expression to inquire whether, perchance, he mistrusted any of the many persons who were employed in the house and about the estate. But, somewhat to my surprise, he was almost gravely offended by the mere suggestion. Nevertheless there were several features of the affair, chief of them the manner in which the letters were received, which caused me to dwell with some mental persistence on this as the most profitable ground for speculation. And when at length, in the morning's small hours, I returned to my home and to my bed, I carried the thought with me.

The sowing of this seed in the subconscious garden of my mind brought forth fruit after its kind. I awoke with a perfectly clear understanding of how that which, the night before, had seemed so impossible of accomplishment was, perhaps, after all, merely a harlequin trick, quite simple when explained.

With the new day, too, and the sunlight, and the cheery brightness of my own rooms, there came a lifting of that oppressive atmosphere of the esoteric which at Cameron's had set my nerves out of plumb and my reason on the bias. Indeed I was fully convinced that we had been foolishly constructing an Alpine chain out of a miserable little row of mole hills, and I determined to lose no time in bringing Cameron, whom I now regarded as most needlessly alarmed, to my own wholesome way of thinking.

Directly after breakfast, therefore, I set forth on foot for my neighbor's, choosing the shore road as the more direct of the two routes.

Personally, my taste in landscape is for distant view in preference to near-at-hand foliage. My own house, which is fashioned in semblance of a Pompeiian villa, its cream-white walls punctuated with shutters of a somewhat vivid pea-green and crowned by gently sloping roofs of the same bright color, gazes out across Stamford Harbor and the blue waters of the Sound, to where on clear days the pencilled outline of Eaton's Neck shows purple in the distance. There are no towering, umbrageous trees to interrupt the outlook; only low, carefully-trimmed shrubs, adorning a series of marble sculpture-dotted terraces, well below the line of vision. But the Cameron place, reflecting the Townsbury penchant for arboriculture, is quite the reverse. The prospect from the windows and verandahs of the fine old mansion is all green vistas and leafy perspectives, with only a glint of sun-sparkled waves, chance-caught between gray boles or when the wind spreads a momentary opening in the foliage.

My way to Cameron's led through a veritable forest of such luxuriant leafage that the path more than half the time was in twilight, while to right and left the shadows deepened into dark in the cloistral recesses of the woodland heart. The silence was profound. No voice of bird nor scurrying foot of squirrel invaded the morning hush of those ramous depths. My own footsteps on the soft turf returned no sound.

A half-mile or more I had walked in this mute greenwood peace, when sharp and clear there echoed through the verdurous aisles the crack of a rifle, and I came to a sudden, involuntary halt.

Then it occurred to me that it was the third day of the open season for rail birds, and that it was the report of a shot-gun I had heard, fired by some sportsman, off on the shore, there, to my right. And so I resumed my tramp, with ears keen for a repetition. Almost immediately I was rewarded, and then I knew that it was no rail bird gunner, for the shot was unmistakably a rifle shot, and it was fired in the depth of the wood, to the left of me.

Three times more I heard it, in fairly rapid succession, and soundir always from about the same direction. I cannot say that it gave me any uneasiness, but it perplexed me in a mild way, arousing a passing curiosity as to its object. And then, I came out upon the well-kept, gravelled drive which circles the close-cropped, velvety Cameron lawn, and catching sight of Cameron himself, in riding breeches and puttees, romping with one of his picturesquely graceful Russian wolf-hounds, promptly forgot all about it.

He came across the sward to meet me, the great, gaunt white hound pressing close to his side, and I thought I saw that he, too, had experienced the inspiriting influence of the morning.

"I have found an answer," I cried, while he was still fifty yards away, "possibly the answer."

He raised his brows in question, and the hound, with open jaws, fondled his wrist.

"I had a horseback ride before breakfast," he told me, as he shook my hand. "Then I spent an hour at the kennels. We've a fine new brood of collie puppies. You must see them."

"I want to," I returned.

"What do you say to tennis?" he suggested, irrelevantly. "Just a set. It's a fine morning for tennis."

"If you can lend me a pair of shoes," I consented, glaring down at my boots.

"A dozen pairs," he smiled. "Come up to my dressing room. Louis will fit you out."

I was scarcely prepared for this change in my friend's mood, and far from happy over it. He was evidently determined to ignore the subject that had so engrossed us the night before, hoping to find surcease of harassing thought in a restless round of activities. The condition was a morbid one which I believed should be discouraged; the more so as I possessed what I fancied was a perfectly practical solution of that which hitherto had seemed to us an inexplicable phenomenon. And I was a little annoyed, too, that my good tidings should be thus disregarded.

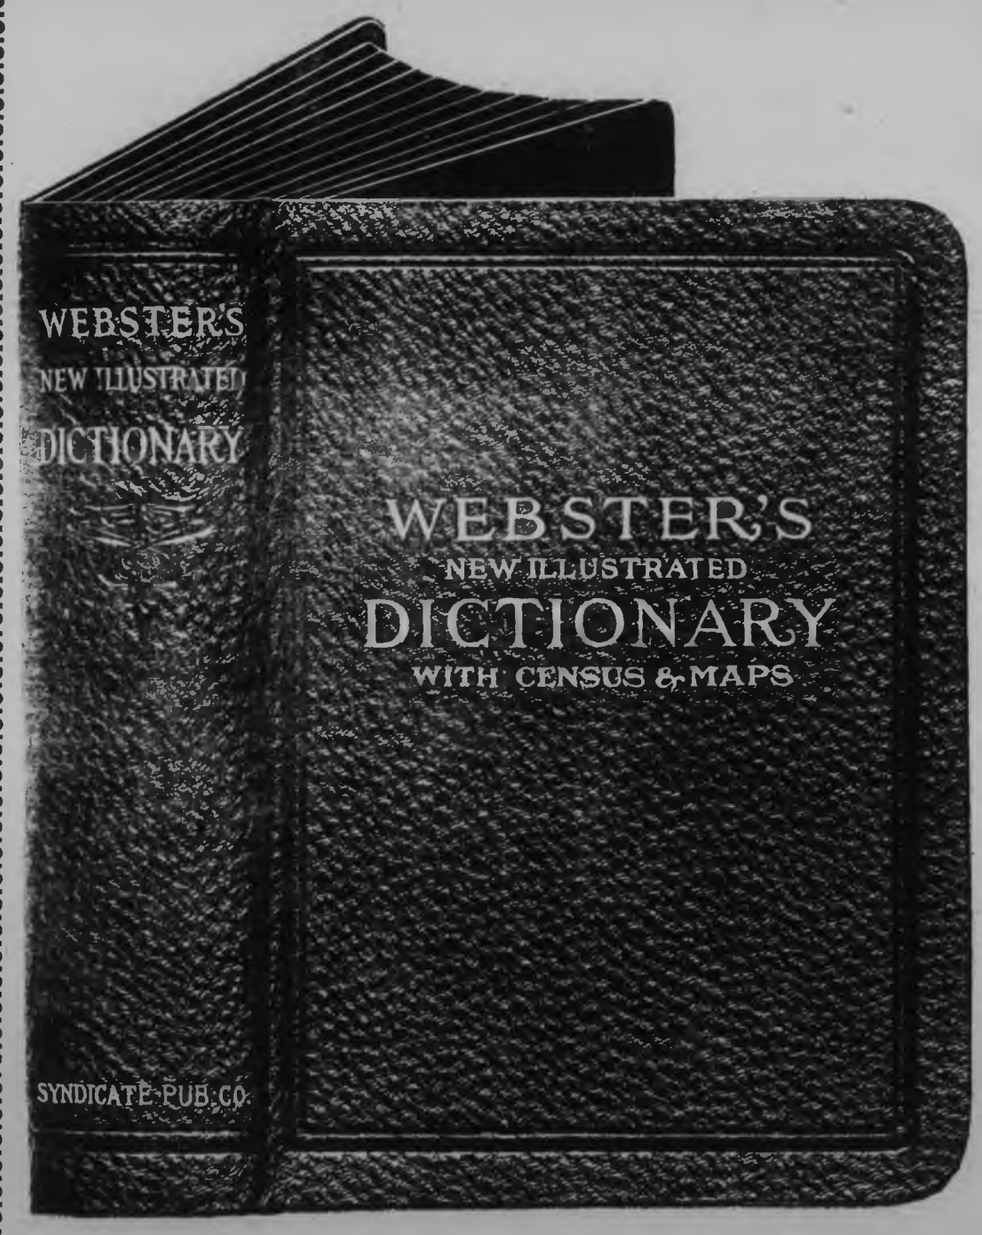
When, therefore, we had entered the hall and Cameron was leading towards the broad, ascending staircase, I paused.

"Do you mind giving me just a minute?"

He stopped, turned, and stood in questioning silence.

"A minute in your study," I added, in explanation.

Reluctantly, it seemed to me, he crossed to the study door, and throwing it open, stood aside that I might precede him.



The room appeared far less grim and gloomy than when I had last entered it. Its windows faced the south; and between the olive-green tapestry curtains the sun poured in a flood, lighting up the far corners, glinting on the gilt ornaments of the writing table, and bathing in dazzling splendor the burnished bronzes on the crowded top of the book-shelves.

"I see you are not disposed to resume our discussion of last night," I began, when Cameron, having closed the door behind him, halted just inside, and with hands in pockets, awaited my opening. "But I want to show you that we have been in very much the same position as the wondering children who watch the prestidigitateur. We have imagined something amazingly like a miracle, which, in point of fact, is capable of a very simple, commonplace explanation."

Do You Feel Moody, Irritable, Depressed?

When That Languid, Laggy, Easily-Tired Feeling Comes, Your Liver Is Slow

Tells How to Act Quickly

"Even when I was young I was not robust and healthy like other girls. I suffered from headaches, and had sort of blue feelings that deprived me of the joyful spirits and pleasures other girls seemed to get. After I married I found I could not throw worries off like other women, and those full feelings of despondency and weariness made me very unhappy. There was no cause to feel so, and my doctor said my liver was sluggish, and this accounted for my poor color, my tiredness, langor and despair. The pills the doctor gave me were too purgative, made me weaker because they were too active for my constitution. Dozens of my friends recommended Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and they were so mild and helpful. Well, I never used a pill that acted so quietly as Dr. Hamilton's They were so comfortable to use, I was afraid they might not help. But in a week I knew they had been actively engaged in clearing up my system. They did the work of a tonic and blood medicine combined. I improved to a marvelous degree with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I now maintain the most perfect kind of health by using them just once or twice a week."

It is Mrs. E. V. Erlanger, well known at Gloucester, who relates the above experience. She proved what you and all other, men and women, can prove—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are best for restoring health and best for keeping the system in perfect running order. Don't be misled into using anything but Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. a box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Couldn't Breathe Through His Nose Stuffed with Catarrh

Catarrhozone Inhaler the One Means of Relief, and It Cured Quickly.

The extraordinary efficacy of Catarrhozone is without parallel. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes, a harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system. In case of asthma and bronchitis the relief and certain cure that comes from the healing balsamic extracts in Catarrhozone is simply wonderful. "For more than twenty years I suffered with a cough, bronchitis, asthma and nasal catarrh," writes J. E. Fegnick, of Staunton. "Every attack I had seemed to grow worse and I could hardly breathe on account of an accumulation of phlegm in the nose and throat. One day I tried Catarrhozone and in ten minutes was wonderfully relieved. I could breathe freely and naturally through the nose, and blood spitting was stopped, the phlegm was cleared away and my regular breathing restored. No remedy can do more than Catarrhozone."

There is no remedy certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00. Smaller size 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Herbert Evans Before the Cadi.

At yesterday's police court, Herbert Evans was charged, before the Cadi with neglecting to provide his wife and family as required by law and common sense. The wife was not present in court. She has one child under nine months of age. Evans claimed that he had been having trouble getting work, but declared that he had now secured a good position and was ready to go to work. Chief Thompson asked for a week's adjournment until he could have prisoner's wife brought to the court

Proposition Opposed.

The Times is given to understand that property owners in the vicinity are going to oppose, tooth and nail, the application of the Wm. Hamilton Co., to close Rubidge street, between Murray and McDonnel street for extension of their works. One of the larger property owners in that vicinity had a real estate expert up recently, and owing to his verdict, this decision. It will be remembered that an application was made to the City Board of Works by the company named, for the city property mentioned, at $1 a year rental.

A Local Banker's Troubles.

Yesterday afternoon, a prominent local banker and his esteemed wife, were more worried than if the same prominent banker had taken a note for $10,000 payable "30 days after convenient," on the "Sand Bank." The whole trouble was that the 10 year old child of these local citizens, left home at dinner time yesterday, and was not in the house at 7 p.m. The good banker, and the older members of the family, called at all the homes of their friends, between six and seven p.m., to enquire if the little one were there. The whole difficulty, however, was Gracefully settled at about 7.15 p.m. by the wanderer (?) being found playing in the back yard of the banker's residence

Ministerial Association Meeting.

Yesterday morning a meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the Y.M.C.A. building. Rev. F. J. Sawers read a paper on "The Miraculous Element of the New Testament," which was followed by an interesting discussion in which Rev. I. Couch, Rev. T. J. Mansell, Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. C. E. Cragg, Rev. R. B. Grobb and Rev. Jas. Rollins participated. It was the unanimous feeling of the members that they should help the Bible Society along the line of funds, and the matter was left in the hands of the executive.

Local Donnybrook Fair Case Off.

John Hughes, at yesterday's police court said that Joseph O'Toole had assaulted him in the bar-room of Nixon's Hotel. He said he had asked O'Toole "Are you as good a man as you were on Saturday night?" O'Toole, according to Hughes' question, thought evidently that the latter was intimating that he, O'Toole, must be getting old or losing his grip on human events. Reading between the lines of Hughes evidence, one would not take O'Toole as being as likely a former resident of Travisticaca, Italy, as of Cork or Tipperary. Hughes said that O'Toole hit him (not with a shillalley) but with a beer glass. His worship, after hearing some evidence thought that Hughes had, figuratively speaking, waved his coat tails and said "Arrah! who'll trid on the tails of me coat?" His worship did not think the police court was a place for two people looking for trouble to air their grievances and dismissed the case.

VOL. XL, NO. 60. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY MARCH 12 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS

OPPOSITION ASKED FOR QUARTER AFTER THEY NEARED A COLLAPSE

Premier Borden Thus Given Opportunity Shows Measure Must go Through—Dr. Pugsley Would Adjourn The Debate

Here Was Borden's Golden Opportunity and He Siezed it With Avidity to Show His Government Would Force Measure Through

Ottawa, March 12.—Despite the fact that all excuse for continuing the obstruction of the Naval Bill and the blockade of the whole of the country's business has now passed with the bringing down of the additional memorandum of Hon. Winston Churchill, which was alleged as the reason for the hold-up the Liberals are still talking.

It is a sick looking lot of Liberals who are keeping up the debate. It was with difficulty that the leather lunged Opposition orators kept going through the long watches of the night. The unexpected nature of the memorandum of the Admiralty knocked the last drop from under their feet.

Yesterday morning at 10.30 it looked as if the obstruction would at last collapse and Hon. Wm. Pugsley moved that the Committee rise and report progress, but without passing the second clause.

This was Premier Borden's opportunity and he gave a vigorous reply to Mr. Pugsley in which he made it clear that the Government intended to force through the measure and pointed out the absurdity of asking for an adjournment after 8 days' discussion on a clause which the Liberals themselves had continued in their resolution. The Liberals are now engaged in debating the question of adjournment until they can round up a new marathon orator to continue the ridiculous and farcical day and night debate.

Too Much Talk on Little Things.

Mr. Borden said that it was a common thing for the House in the early days of the session to devote a great deal of time to the discussion of minor measures which were brought down. As a consequence, when the days of the session drew to a close it was found that important measures were hastened through House without adequate discussion.

This was a hard thing for the Government and a hard thing for the Opposition. It was not in the interests as a whole that such should be the case. What was the result? The present bill had been before the House since the 5th of December. The Bank Act had occupied a short time and the West Indies bill was also taken up, but with these exceptions, the House had considered the present bill throught that time.

This was an important measure, and should have adequate discussion. But it was not agreed by the Government that the Opposition should be allowed to impede legislation. Therefore, he declared, he would hold to the determination that no other measure can be considered until the present one is put through. He gathered from the remarks of Dr. Pugsley that the Opposition would not be prepared to grant supply, even though the committee should rise.

But he pointed out that in all previous years when the present Government was in Opposition, a goodly portion of supply was always voted. In the case of the reciprocity deadlock of 1911, the Opposition gave five twelfths of the supply, a special amount being given to allow the then leader of the Government to attend the Imperial Conference. In view of this he felt induced to ask the acting leader of the Opposition if with an adjournment granted, supply would be granted.

Would Vote Against Supply.

Mr. Pugsley replied that on the occasion cited by Mr. Borden, the House had been in supply for weeks while on this occasion no effort had been made to get supply voted. The cases were not parallel, and, speaking for himself, he was not prepared to say that he will consent to give the Government one-tenth or one-fifth, or one-quarter of the supply.

EXPRESS BAG IS LEFT AND HUNDREDS ARE MISSING

Kingston, Ont., March 12.—Between Saturday and Monday, thieves, it developed yesterday stole between $1,600 and $1,700 from the Dominion Express Company from the station at Sharbot Lake.

John Glenn, express messenger on the Kingston division of the C.P.R., had charge of the bag containing the money when he arrived at Sharbot Lake on Saturday afternoon.

It is the duty of the express messenger to assist in transferring the express from the main line to the branch line. In his haste to get the express parcels on the northbound train, Glenn took the bag off his shoulder and hung it on the upright of the baggage truck.

As soon as the north train was loaded it pulled out and Glenn in his hurry forgot the bag.

On nearing Clarendon he telegraphed back to Sharbot Lake and the relief man locked the bag up in the station. On reaching Sharbot Lake about noon on Monday he found the money extracted from the bag.

Detectives from Montreal are working on the matter.

REV. DR. JOHNSTON AT SAINT PAUL'S CHURCH

Last night, Rev. Dr. Johnston, of Montreal, delivered a very eloquent and impressive lecture in St. Paul's church, before a large and intelligent audience. His subject was "The Canaan of the West." The reverend speaker was thoroughly acquainted with his subject and threw some new and interesting light on the west.

THEY DINE TOGETHER.

Hon. Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Meet Socially.

Ottawa, March 12.—A new light is thrown upon Monday night's attempt at melodrama by the statement that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was on that evening an invited guest at the home of Premier Borden.

After dinner there it is said that he bade Sir Wilfrid good-bye, and gave not the slightest hint that he was to bring down the Churchill letter.

AUSTRIA NOW STEPS IN AND TAKES HAND IN BALKAN GAME

Belgrade, Servia, March 11.—The Austrian Government to-day took a step tantamount to forbidding Servia to send her troops to assist the Montenegrins in capturing the Turkish fortress of Scutari.

The Austrian Minister to Servia, Baron Von Ugron Von Abrantalva, informed Premier Pasilch that his Government objected to the Servian troops assisting in the siege of Scutari, which was to become the capital of Albania and he requested the recall of any Servian troops who had been dispatched there.

The Servian Premier in reply pointed out that under treaty arrangements Servia was compelled to assist her without regard to the future of Scutari.

"A sense of gratitude and joy prompts me to speak a good word for Grape-Nuts," writes a western grocer.

"Before I commenced to eat Grape-Nuts I was very much troubled with poor digestion. Food caused me pain, and could not be retained by my stomach.

"I was getting very weak in body, when a friend, seeing my poor condition, advised me to try Grape-Nuts food.

"I took my friends' advice and soon began to get very good results. My stomach has been strengthened and digestion greatly improved. A dish of Grape-Nuts for supper brings a good night's sleep and rest.

Dr. F. O. Blakeman, of Lakefield, was summoned, and the last reports gives the man's condition as somewhat improved. The unfortunate victim, who is township councillor, has been suffering from a nervous breakdown for some time past.

HAVE VARIED NAVAL PLANS

Liberals Have Unique Assortment on Hand

BELOW A FEW OF THEM

Voted for and Against Submitting Question to the People—Both Attitudes Taken on Very Same Day—Voted for Thirty-five Million Appropriation and now Move that not a Dollar be Spent on Increasing Effective Naval Forces of the Empire.

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, March 10.—Up to the present time Laurier and his supporters have formulated the following policies upon the Naval Aid Bill.

(a) They voted on February 13th that the question should be submitted to the people at a general election.

(b) On the same day they voted that the question should not be submitted to the people, but that immediate action should be taken to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire.

(c) They voted on the 27th February that the question should not be referred to the people by a plebiscite.

(d) They voted on the 13th February that thirty-five millions should immediately be appropriated to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire.

(e) They have now moved an amendment that not one dollar shall be appropriated to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire.

They May Have Others.

Upon this last motion they are now actively occupied in obstructing the business of the country. What further varied and inconsistent policies they will yet evolve remains to be seen. Thus far their policies closely resemble the antics of a dog engaged in chasing its own tail. It will be observed that they voted against a plebiscite, but for a general election. This makes plain their desire. They want no submission of the question to the people unless it gives them a chance to return to office. Like many malefactors they are exceedingly active for a new trial, which, however, would bring them a severe condemnation.

THE WOMENS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Big Gathering at St. Paul's Church Hear Miss Chapman of Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Womens Home Missionary Society of the Peterborough Presbytery took place yesterday at St. Paul's church, and was largely attended. The financial statement presented showed that the society was in a prosperous condition.

The feature of this meeting was an address by Miss Chapman, of Toronto, the financial secretary. She delivered and eloquent and instructive lecture dealing with Missionary work.

Miss Florence Scott rendered a vocal solo with great effect.

At the conclusion of the meeting, supper was served to the delegates.

DISHONESTY CHARGES RECOILED AND LEFT THE OPPOSITION A-GASPING

SIR WILFRID LAURIER SORRY, BORDEN MAKES REVELATIONS

Ottawa, March 12.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in committee rose to protest against the figures for naval defence submitted to the House. He contended that the figures for a two fleet unit could not be considered as authoritative and complained that the Government had not given full information to the House. Mr. Borden replied that in the first estimates submitted the English pound had been reckoned as equivalent to $5 instead of $4.86, but that the House had been informed of the error. The Premier stated that there was further private correspondence with the Admiralty in the possession of the Government, but it was of a confidential nature.

MR. BORDEN ONLY HUMAN.

Sir Wilfrid was not content to let the matter rest there, but argued that there was all the difference in the world in refusing to submit a complete document to Parliament and in presenting only a part. He protested that Mr. Borden was only human, and argued that he would rather trust his own judgment. The Hon. Mr. Pugsley then took up the fight.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL UNDER CONSIDERATION

Yesterday morning the Board of Health held a meeting in the City Committee room, with Dr. Young in the chair. There were present, the Mayor, Ald. Duncan, Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Mr. Murty. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. J. C. Shook was heard, and asked that the sewer on Dickson street be extended 200 feet. Ald. Duncan, seconded by Mr. Murty, moved that the city construct a sewer, as a local improvement, from a point 93 feet south of McDonnel street to a point 275 feet south of McDonnel street. The motion was based on Sanitary grounds.

Mr. J. Devlin asked for a sewer on Mark street from Robinson street to Sophia street. This was recommended to the City Council on motion by Dr. McPherson, seconded by Ald. Duncan.

A letter was read from Ald. Anderson regarding the management of and purchase for the Isolation Hospital, and replying to the report of the Matron, regarding recent criticisms recently published in these columns.

Ald. Gordon was next heard and submitted the following statutory declaration: "I Catherine English, do solemnly declare . . . . that whilst acting as cook at the Isolation Hospital, I was ordered to throw out roasts of meat, which had been placed on the table, and once used, and not wanted a second time. Parts of roasts of meat, weighing 2 or 3 pounds were on many occasions thrown out. Often when guests were in the hospital, the cream was skimmed off the milk, and the skimmed milk sent down to the kitchen. guests were frequently invited by the Matron or Miss Ray, the nurse in training. I was ordered to purchase cakes from the breadman and to trade bread tickets for them.

(Signed) "Catherine English."

The Board, on resolution of Dr. McPherson, seconded by Mr. Murty, that they were satisfied with the Isolation Hospital management, during the past year.

The meeting then adjourned.

NOTHING FOR THE EMPIRE IS REAL LIBERAL POLICY

Insincerity of Liberal Professions Proved by Party's Conduct Before Laurier Government Was Turned Out of Office

(Special to The Times.)

OTTAWA, March 10. The Liberals last week adopted the extraordinary policy of obstructing the Naval Bill and of holding up all business. They have taken a definite stand opposing Canada's carrying out the advice of the British Admiralty to give three of the most powerful Dreadnoughts for the firing line of the Empire's fleet.

The real secret of the Liberal opposition to the Borden naval proposals to place three Dreadnoughts on the firing line is coming out in the speeches which are being delivered in the house now that deliberate obstruction has commenced. It is being made quite clear that the real policy of the Liberal party is to do nothing at all and that the proposition to spend the $35,000,000 on two fleet units arose not out of any patriotic desire to strengthen the Empire's naval defences but rather out of fear of what the country would do to a party that adopted a do-nothing attitude.

Actions Prove It.

This view of the Liberal policy is borne out by the fact that the party when in power practically did nothing, its plans which were in process of formation in 1911 being but an excuse for inaction. They could not be regarded in any circumstances as effective aid, nor were they intended to be. The party which rejected the Admiral's suggestions of 1909 and substituted therefore the famous tin-pot navy of 1910 can hardly be regarded seriously when it has now come forward with an amendment which proposes that the $35,000,000 shall be expended in accordance with the suggestion of the Admiralty at the Imperial Conference of 1909.

OBSTRUCTION FOR OBSTRUCTION

"You wouldn't let me make Canada an adjunct of the United States, and I will not let you contribute to the defense of the British Empire."

Hon. Mr. Borden Gets Advice From English Liberal Administration as to What Will Conduce to the Welfare of the British Empire

Premier Makes Canadians Acquainted With What Their Fellow-Liberals in England Think of Sir Wilfreds' Obstruction Policy

Ottawa, March 12.—One more resounding blow has been struck at the Liberals. As these lines are written they are still gasping, under the angry as to incoherent. In brief, Mr. Borden read letters and memorandum from Mr. Winston Churchill which leave them without a leg to stand on in their advocacy of the two fleet units and the building in Canada policies.

And From a Liberal Minister!

Nothing is lacking to make the Liberal mortification complete. Above all, remember that the information comes from Mr. Winston Churchill, and the first Lord of the Admiralty. Who is Mr. Churchill? Why, he belongs to the Asquith Government. He and Mr. Lloyd George are its two most aggressive ministers. Our Canadian Liberals have been singing his praise for years. Now he writes letters which in stinging phrases destroy their policy.

One of Gravest Statements.

One hesitates whether to dwell first upon the confusion of the Liberals, their gnashings of teeth and their cries of sheer rage, or the business aspect of the matter. The Churchill letters, it should be said, are exceedingly grave documents. That dealing with shipbuilding is a simple business document, setting forth with authority facts relating to the building of warships which many of us had ascertained already. But the second document, Mr. Churchill's letter of January 24th, is one of the gravest statements that a British minister has penned in a hundred years.

Cannot Now Man Canadian Units.

It is an official utterance, by a minister in a position of really terrible responsibility, and it says positively, even epigrammatically, that the manning problem has become so serious that the British navy cannot spare officers and skilled seamen for the two fleet units concerning which there has been so much frivolous talk by our Liberals. It says in plain language that the German navy is pressing so hard upon the British navy that it can take no chances, and can spare no men. Who says there is no emergency? Who says there is no need, when such a statement is wrung from the man responsible for Britain's navy? The fact is grave enough to overshadow our local political ground.

Where do these letters leave the Liberal party and its programme.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaprilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

THE LAW OF QUALITY IS AS SURE AS the law of gravity. Gravity keeps both our feet on the ground. Quality informs your judgment when you are on the "Ground floor" in the matter of value. Martin-Senour's Paint is the Ground Floor of paint value. It makes good every time. It flows freely, has great covering capacity, shows a beautiful finish, and wears like iron. It will more than meet your expectations in quality, brilliancy and durability. Campbell & Best, 134 Hunter St., next to post office.

MAKING PATENT FUEL.

In the coal-mines a large amount of small coal is sent up, and, although the miner is not paid for it, it is far from being worthless or useless, the coal-owner selling all the small made at the pits.

In Cardiff, Swansea, and Port Talbot there are works where small coal is converted into blocks called patent fuel. The method is by tipping the coal into a large bin, after which it is mixed with pitch, and all ground very fine. It is then conveyed into pug-mills, and super-heated steam is passed through it, knives revolving on a shaft keeping it in motion while this is being done.

Afterwards, being then in a sticky condition, it is passed into a press, and a tremendous pressure applied. This turns the mass into hot, steaming blocks, which are then pushed off either on to endless travelling wires, which convey them into canal-boats, or to a jetty, whence they are loaded into ships for conveyance abroad. The different Governments use a great deal of it for naval purposes.

In the pit itself much of the small coal that is cut is thrown back with the rubbish, and only large coal is loaded and taken up.—G. F. Rundle, 6 Brookland Terrace, Caerphilly, Glamorgap.—5s.

EDITORIAL NOTES

By the way, Mr Rowell has not shown any too much eagerness to state his position on the question of bilingual schools.

Two militant suffragettes, having blown up Chancellor Lloyd George's house, have, of course, once more established conclusively their right to the franchise.

General Porfirio Diaz announces that he will continue his travels in Egypt, which indicates that the wise old chap is aware that the shooting season is still open in Mexico.

Owing to the severity of the weather, the Balkan war has been postponed, but Mexico is advertising the fact that she has fine weather for fighting the whole year round.

The other day a western country editor was sued for $20,000 libel, and he stopped running the hand-press long enough to make mention of the fact and express his thanks for the compliment.

Toronto Telegram (Independent) "Self-respect urges the Borden Government to hold office until that Government is ready to go to the country and go to the country as the conqueror, not as the victim of obstruction.

Toronto Telegram (Independent): "Laurierism can never carry more than fifteen seats in Ontario, and the Borden Government has nothing to fear from a fight with the Laurier leadership on the naval issue or any other issue.

It must jar a man who is fond of boasting about how he can trace his ancestry for somebody to inform him that his grandfather was once the cashier of a bank, and the authorities traced him as far as Brazil, but he got away.

A press despatch from London says the Prince of Wales is to become a farmer. Good for him. With a high fence around the farm and a few pugnacious bulls on the outside he will be safe from Lydia Pankhurst and her savage band.

Cleveland, Ohio, is a thrifty town, for its waste paper and rubbish collecting departments earned $20,000 in 1912 and will clear $50,000 in 1913. It is obvious that this is one of the things they do better in Cleveland than they do in Peterborough.

You might have known that there was no truth in the report from Paris that hobble skirts are to be tighter than ever this year. Hobble skirts are not to be worn tighter, for much the same reason as that you can't the breeks off a Hielan'man.

Should a dissolution of Parliament take place, which is most improbable, there would be a great quacking of lame Liberal ducks in Ottawa. Most of them would never swim again in the political lagoon, where the feeding has been good and easy.

It is said that the suffragettes in the West are trying to bribe the members of the Legislature with apples. How foolish, to be sure! They ought to know that, while the apple worked well in Adam's case, the modern man won't fall for anything except the coin of the realm.

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure. "No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me, I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co. Buffalo, N.Y. and Kingston, Ont. Canada.

WILL HELP SUFFRAGETTES.

If we mistake not the temper of the American people, the cause of woman suffrage will be helped rather than injured by the outrageous conduct of the Washington mob on Monday that subjected the marching suffragettes to insults and lewd remarks. It will be impossible for many men to escape the conclusion that an intelligent and self-respecting woman has a better right to exercise the suffrage than that Apache of modern civilization, the ignorant and unspeakably vile goodlum, whose vote influences most of the municipal governments, not only in the United States, but frequently in Canada as well.

THE THIRD VERSION OF THE LIBERAL POLICY.

The Liberals have now proposed three amendments to the Borden Naval policy. They have been worded differently in order to escape the inevitable Speaker's ruling against repetition; but they have meant the same thing. They might each have been expressed in one and the same word. This trio of amendments could have been succinctly written as follows:

Sir Wilfrid's amendment—"Delay."
Mr. Verville's amendment—"Delay."
Mr. Turriff's amendment—"Delay,"

The single result to which all Liberal attacks lead is "postponement."

They do not negative naval action—they only want to put it off. This is where they differ from the Nationalists The Nationalists would confine all defensive preparations to our own territories and waters, which so far as naval action goes, is equivalent to having none at all.

The three parties answer the demand that Canada shall at last task some share in the effective naval defence of the Empire—and so of her own National integrity—in this fashion: "The Conservatives answer—Yes: The Liberals answer—Not Yet: the Nationalists answer—No."

So far as meeting the German menace goes, the Liberal and the Nationalist members are very much alike. Delay is equivalent to denial. A hollow pretence is still kept up by the Opposition politicians that there is no "emergency" but it is not a pretence that deceives even the local stock-market, to say nothing of the thrifty people of France, who, according to to-day's despatches, are about to spend $115,000,000 additional on the defensive army.

In the face of such an "emergency" delay wears its true colors. It is cowardly form of refusal to do our duty. It does not matter whether the delay is to take the shape of waiting until we can create Canadian fleet units and then put those fleet units where they will be of the least possible use, or whether it is to be caused by hanging up the naval bill until after a general election or after a redistribution and an election. Delay has the same meaning—it is a method of running away from our obligations.

If either of the Liberal versions of their policy of delay should prevail we will know in advance, that nothing Canadian will be ready; and that the fate of the Empire and of this country will be settled by other hearts and hands while we stand, impotent and furious, on our "autonomous" shores and watch our hopes for permanent autonomy shot to pieces by German gunners on the other side of the Atlantic.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does nor hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THOSE LITTLE GIRLS

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir, Keep the good work a-going that you have begun, in trying to get foolish or indulgent mothers from letting their little girls from 11 to 18 years of age, run the streets of this City at night. On Saturday night, although a hardened old man of 36 years of age, I was twice accosted on George street (and I'm not an Adonis either) by two poor little silly girls, the oldest of whom could not have been 17. The question is, is this a matter of duty for the police or one of foolish mothers who should have had a slipper applied where it would do the most good and the least harm?

ONE OF THE DEVIL'S 13.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir, The Catholic Register has been pleased to stigmatize me as one of the "Devil's Thirteen" just because I sat on the platform at a meeting of the Protestant Benevolent Confederation. Now why does the Register find fault? Have I not the right, the same as any other loyal subject of His Majesty (not having committed any crime worthy of bonds), to go or stay wherever I may choose? In this glorious Dominion, under the folds of the brave old Union Jack, we are free men, none daring to make us afraid. I am very thankful that the days of the Bastile and Inquisition and all other such Christian means of keeping people under the yoke are passed forever.

I understand that the Register is the official organ of the Catholic Church. If so, is this the kind of charity and brotherly love that church teaches her people? And will abuse, sarcasm and sneers ever convert Orangemen and Protestants and win them over to a Church whose sentiments may be papal or pagan, but are certainly not Christian.

Why is the Register so venomous against Orangeism? We never meddle with our neighbors but are always desirous of living peaceably with everyone. Goldsmith says:

"Calm is my soul nor apt to rise in arms,
Except when fast approaching danger warms
When I behold a factious band agree
To call it freedom, when themselves are free."

Now Mr. Editor the liberty that we enjoy, as Protestants, was not the gift of Rome, but was bought at too high a price to allow any one to infringe on it. What's the use of going so far back as Henry VIII? Let them tell us something about William of Orange and James II.

No doubt abuse is a game that two can play at, but Heaven forbid that I descend so low.

A. F. Calder.

NEW SPECIMENS FOR OTTAWA MUSEUM

Ancient Bones and Deer Skin Ornaments Found in River-pits of British Columbia

A fifth shipment within twelve months has been made to the National Museum at Ottawa, of archaeological specimens found by railroad construction engineers along the new roads in British Columbia. These specimens were found a short distance above Kamloops, B.C., and consist of bones plowed up in a burrough pit in the side of the river. There are also some things made of bone and deer skin. There were no signs of a burial place at this point, as it had not been used for this purpose recently, but these things were evidently from an old burial ground. The specimens were found from two to four feet under the surface of the dry sand, and J. C. Kimbree, the resident engineer of the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway who sent in the information and looked after the shipment of the specimens, stated that as in that dry climate moisture could hardly penetrate to the specimens, the deer skin had not decayed. No one can tell how long it was buried there.

There are many circular pits in the ground along the river side at this point, and these are the remains of ancient semi-subterranean houses, none of which are at present inhabited in this region. There are also over 100 of these pits on the north side of Barriare river.

THE MAGNETIC WEST

Roman Catholic Church Caring for its People—Much Wealth From U.S.

So great has been the migration of United States farmers to western Canada during the past few years, that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, finding that the movement included many of its members and communicants, has formed an association for the purpose of aiding and directing the settlers to a section where they could be in touch with communities of their own faith.

The association acquired a large acreage, known as St. Peter's colony, in the Quill Plains district of Saskatchewan. A monastery was established, and there is now a considerable Catholic population. The wealth of the immigrants settling in the west during the five years estimated as follows: British, cash, $37,546; effects, $18,773,000. United States, cash, $157,260,000, effects, $110,982,000.

The Queen's Laugh

There used to be an idea that Royalty and those in its train must not laugh or display appreciation in public. This notion has been completely exploded since the vaudeville performance at the Palace Theatre, when their Majesties and all their suite laughed so heartily at the comic

The Queen's laugh has in it a singularly merry ring, and is light and musical. It is said that when she was a little girl her mother, the late Duchess of Teck, used to try to make "Princess May" laugh so as to cheer her father when he got into one of the fits of depression to which he was subject.

Canada's Lobster Fisheries

The Canadian lobster fishery, is, in spite of serious depletion, "the greatest and most resourceful in the world." This statement was made by Mr. W. A. Found to the Commission of Conservation. He further stated that more than 50,000,000 lobsters are annually taken in Canada, and with efficient protection this important industry bid fair to maintain its present important status.

Telephones in Britain

The National Telephone Company of Great Britain served 250,000 telephone users, and had an income of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 according to its last annual report. It employed 18,200 persons, and there were 516,888 stations, 32,153 having been added during the year.

Trousers for Oxen

Cape Town newspapers state that the latest thing in the sartorial line is trousers for oxen. This method of clothing beasts of burden is not due to any modification of style in South Africa, the garments having become a necessity to protect the animals from the tsetse flies, which are a torment and often a fatal enemy.

Cross-ties for Railways

There were 9,213,962 cross-ties, costing $3,536,628 purchased in one year by the steam and electric roads of Canada. The average cost of these ties at the point of purchase was 38 cents.

Better than Spanking

Spanking will not cure children of wetting the bed, because it is not a habit but a dangerous disease. The C. H. Rowan Drug Co., Dept. 306, Chicago, Ill., have discovered a strictly harmless remedy for this distressing disease and to make known its merits they will send a 50c. package securely wrapped and prepaid Absolutely Free to any reader of The Times. This remedy also cures frequent desire to urinate and inability to control urine during the night or day in old or young. The C. H. Rowan Drug Co. is an Old Reliable House, write to them to-day for the free medicine. Cure the afflicted members of your family, then tell your neighbors and friends about this remedy.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65-feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$37,000—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 88,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

We Are Developing

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently

in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT $5.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Better Make Your Application at Once

A word to the wise is usually sufficient and what we are telling you is for your own good. If you don't get these shares, some other lucky individual will. NUF CED. So get them while the getting is good.

IN BRITISH POLITICS

The Rise of New Men is a Striking Feature of Late

The most striking feature of personal politics of late has been the rise of the new men, such as Colonel Seely Sir Rufus Isaacs, Sir John Simon, Mr. Runciman, Mr. Montagu, who had scarcely made their mark before 1905. Sir Rufus Isaacs came into parliament eight years ago with all the weight of the largest practice at the Common Law Bar behind him; but he has gone outside the path of the successful political lawyer and shown a comprehensive grasp of affairs beyond the legal range and a special aptitude for industrial problems. Not less noticeable is the rise of the juniors in law officer. Sir John Simon entered the House of Commons in 1906 a young stuff gownsman already marked out for eminence at the Bar. He was K.C. at thirty-seven, and to-day many people think that he can make his choice between becoming eventually Lord Chancellor, if he sticks to his profession, or Prime Minister if he abandons it. He possesses the most valuable qualities in English politics—the capacity for inspiring confidence.

Colonel Seely is another of the new men who is both popular and respected, and there is a general feeling that if anybody can put the military tangle straight this fresh-faced, low-voiced soldier will do it. At least, if he fails it will be from no want of resolute effort and unshrinking devotion to the task. Mr. Montagu and Mr. Masterman have yet to "arrive." Both have done well enough as Under-Secretaries to establish their title to "Cabinet rank." Mr. Runciman has made his claim good already, though he has not quite fulfilled the promise of his parliamentary adolescence.

It is from this group of lawyers and laymen, most of them nearly unknown seven years ago, that the future leaders of Liberalism will be drawn. They are young, able, well-informed, industrious, professional politicians in the main interest in life, but so placed as to be independent of the material rewards of office. A Liberal Cabinet which includes them will have a strong and capable Junta. It will be one in which the Semitic and Celtic elements will be largely represented. "You will have to be a Jew or a Welshman to get into a Liberal cabinet soon," growled a Conservative member in the Lobby. These young Liberal leaders have been both clever and lucky, and if they are quietly sliding into the places of their seniors the change will not be to the disadvantage of their party or the nation. For one thing, they are as a body Liberals of a distinctly moderate tinge, distrustful of revolutionary legislation and hazardous experiments; and Cobdenites and Home Rulers as they are, they seem rather more likely than their predecessors to act with caution at home and spirit abroad.—London Daily Mail

BIG FAMILIES IN QUEBEC

No Symptoms of Race Suicide Among the French Canadians

Race suicide, so often pointed to as a grave peril for France, is invisibly remote in French Canada. The province of Quebec so abounds in large families that it is capable of supplying the deficiency of its mother-country. Indeed the late distinguished economist, Mr. Leroy Beaulieu, recently said: "Give us 10,000 French-Canadians and we will repeople France." In 1754 the last census under French regime showed 55,000 French in Canada. This number has doubled every twenty-five years, says Eugene Rouillard, so that now they agregate 3,300,000.

In 1890 the Government of the Province of Quebec passed a law granting a piece of land to every head of a familiy that could boast of twelve or more children. This grant was later changed to a cash premium. Until 1905 a total of 5,414 families received the premium. Of this number 150 families had 14 to 18 living children; in some cases where one or the other of the parents was married twice the number of living children ranged from 18 to 27. Since the foundation of Quebec in 1608 there have been entered upon the parish registers, up to 1888, a total of 2,900,000 births, or 67.25 per one thousand population French-Canadian families of eight and ten children are not uncommon. The average size of a family is five children—an average that will be maintained one should think, unless all which is beginning to plague ervades the rural districts

A Cascaret to-night will give you constipated bowels, a thorough cleansing and will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep a 10 cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing too.

Antiquity of Shorthand

According to Professor C. M. Cobern, of Allegheny College, Meadville Penn., an explorer of ancient ruins, who lectured in Cleveland, "The Sermon on the Mount," was taken down in shorthand. Professor Cobern also said that it was stenography which preserved to the world the great facts and sayings contained in the Bible, and that probably some stenographic method was in fairly general use in Christ's time on earth.

THE TENEMENT SYSTEM

An Expert on the Subject Dwells on the Need of Air Space

Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, Ottawa, who has travelled widely in connection with the proper housing of people and town planning, says that the evils of the tenement system in Great Britain and the United States have spread to Canada. The tidal influx of humanity did not reach the rural districts, but converging on the urban, landed in clan segregation and ultimately in overcrowding. It was the duty of the town planner to actively work against the evils of overcrowding; [illegible] necessary, public opinion was [illegible] sary to enforce the laws if a [illegible] calamity were to be avoided. [illegible] census details the horrors [illegible] crowding were patented to [illegible] ence. In New York it was [illegible] in 122 blocks 750 persons [illegible] med to the acre, and [illegible] section the number rose to [illegible] sons per acre. The building [illegible] were [illegible] ed to [illegible] with [illegible] chimneys districts in Britain and Germany [illegible] depopulated, and as a result of the large cities 1,000 slum residents [illegible] day and night. Bad air, [illegible] sunlight, were adjuvants to [illegible] diseases, tuberculosis and infant mortality. Quoting a report of Dr. [illegible] sell, of Glasgow, Scotland, it was found that there, for every two children [illegible] died in the not-overcrowded parts, five died in the slum area. The investigations of Dr. Hastings, of Toronto, show a no less favorable report for that "city of homes." Rear houses there were in plenty, dark rooms, tenements unfit for habitation, inadequate water supply, unpaved filthy yards, all dangerous to public morals, offences against public decency. Need of air-space was impressed. The rural inhabitants migrated to the city and gradually became slum dwellers through cost of housing or inadequate supply of houses, bad air and [illegible] trition gradually began to add to the miseries of the crowded European centres. In Birmingham (St. Mary's district), it was pointed out, the [illegible] infants died out of 1,000 and the large percentage of the remainder were seared, maimed or otherwise permanently disabled. And this overcrowding became a menace to progress, had evil effect upon the physical and moral conditions of the people. In St. Louis, it was shown, one half of the houses in the negro quarter were unfit for human habitation, while in the Polish there was an average of 13 persons to 4 rooms. In Cleveland 113 of all houses in the slum area should not be permitted to exist. Preventible diseases, results of overcrowding have cost the city of New York $40,000,000 annually during the years 1906 and 1909, the total cost amounting to over $165,000,000. The evils of this system of overcrowding became more evident as time elapses. Other nations had been slow to ameliorate the [illegible] and deal with the danger. England had its housing act and intended a campaign to [illegible] slums and erection of [illegible] dwellings, the compulsory [illegible] ment of [illegible] at the owners expense. Local authorities are given power to buy land, erect houses, lay out open spaces for gardens, grounds and parks. Sanitary [illegible] are recognized as being of the [illegible] importance and the county councils have been given power to appoint a medical officer of health, to assist the executive by expert knowledge [illegible] health and housing committee, invested with wide powers to do away with cellar dwellings and back to back houses; and under the new planning schemes of great magnitude are possible. Germany had interested itself in town planning, by building model tenements, encouraging private builders and co-operative building societies to the erection of better dwellings and in the demolition of the slums.

Old Documents Found

Mr. P. J. D. de Latour, while investigating water records in the Railway Belt for the water rights branch of the British Columbia Department of Lands, made a valuable historical find at Yale, B.C. In the lock-up was an old black box full of papers that had lain undisturbed for years. Examination showed them to be records of mineral claims, water rights and timber locations, dating from [illegible] of many of which the department in Victoria had no record at all.

From the records, Mr. de Latour was able to make an almost complete list of the water-rights granted in the Yale district.

Twenty-five thousand delivery boxes have been erected.

The SABLE LORCHA

By HORACE HAZELTINE

COPYRIGHT, 1912, A. C. McCLURG & CO.

"You mean the cutting out of the head of the portrait?" he asked, with kindling interest.

"I do."

"You have discovered how it was done, before my eyes, so to speak, and yet—?"

"I have discovered how it may have been done," I interrupted.

He moved his head just perceptibly from side to side in skeptical gesture.

"The door of this room is seldom locked?" I queried, ignoring the indicated skepticism.

"Never locked," he answered.

"It would be quite possible for any one, knowing that you were absent, to spend an hour or so here uninterrupted?"

"Any one?" he questioned.

"Any one who had gained entrance to the house," I amplified.

"Oh, yes, I presume so."

"They would have ample time to clear a space on the book-shelves, climb up, and carefully cut out the head, or any part, or the whole of a portrait, if they were so inclined?"

I paused for his answer, but he only smiled with a sort of incredulous tolerance.

"Would they not?" I insisted. But Cameron was most perverse this morning.

"My dear Clyde," he scoffed, "of what use is all this? The portrait was cut, not while I was absent, but while I was present. I saw it complete at three o'clock; at twelve minutes past three, it was mutilated."

"My contention is," I explained, quite patiently, "that while you saw it complete at three o'clock, the cut had already been made, but the cut portion had not been removed. In other words, the cutting having been deftly done with a thin, sharp knife, it was perfectly feasible to leave the portrait apparently intact, though with the slightest effort the incised portion could subsequently be released—with, say, a piece of cord, glued to the back for that especial purpose."

Now that I had made myself clear, Cameron was quick to acknowledge the possibility of such a method.

"And the cord, you mean, led down behind the book-shelves, and perhaps through a window?" he suggested.

"Precisely. And was pulled by some one on the outside."

"Yes," he said, thoughtfully. "Such an explanation is not unreasonable. The thing, really, must have been done in some such way."

"And don't you see," I hurried on with my advantage, "how utterly cheap this makes the whole affair? There's nothing at all impressive in that performance when you find out how it was done. If the next demonstration is no better than such claptrap, you may rest assured you have a very pleayunish sort of mountebank villain to deal with. So, cheer up, my dear man, and I'll show you a few tricks at tennis that may be equally eye-opening."

Unquestionably my friend appeared relieved. But I came to fancy later that the appearance was feigned for my benefit. Certainly he was not convinced, and in that proved himself possessed of an intuition, a world more accurate than my own.

CHAPTER III.

The Target.

The set at tennis having finished with victory perching on my banners, I made excuse to put off the inspection of the collie puppies until another time, resumed my walking boots and, with a parting if futile admonition to Cameron to "think no more about it," started on my homeward way.

My route lay again through the miniature forest, for the day had waxed uncomfortably warm with the approach of noon, and there was scant shade on the high-road between our two houses. In the wood, however, the air was gratefully cool, and I strode on at a good pace, breathing deeply and with enjoyment the bosky odors which greeted me afresh at every step.

The dead silence which I had remarked earlier was broken now by the hoarse tooting of a steamboat whistle, somewhere off shore, and by the shrill voices of birds, apparently in resentful protest at this raucous invasion of their sylvan quiet.

I had succeeded in putting aside, for the moment at least, all thought of Cameron, his anonymous letters, and his mutilated portrait, and was dwelling on my disappointment at not having caught even so much as a glimpse of Evelyn Grayson during my morning visit to Cragholt. It is true that I had gone there with a single purpose in mind—to convey to Cameron what I believed to be an important theory—but underlying this, I realized now, was more than a hope, a confidence even, that I should see Evelyn. I was tempted, indeed, to a regret that I had not waited, visited the kennels, and accepted Cameron's invitation for luncheon, which would doubtless have insured me a few words at least with my Goddess of Youth.

While on the verge of this self-reproach my spirits suddenly lifted, for the steam whistle having died away in the distance and the feathered choristers have relapsed into a pleased chirp that merely accented the stillness, there broke all at once on the mute calm of the woodland the silver sweetness of a girl's singing. Clear and resonant it rang through the forest aisles; a voice I knew beyond mistaking. Evelyn Grayson was coming towards me over the scented turf. Still hidden [illegible] in the path, the melody alone [illegible] for me her approach. It was a French chanson she was lilting, a lyric of Baudelaire's, of which we were both fond.

Sweet music sweeps me like the sea
Toward my pale star,
Whether the clouds be there or all the air be free,
I sail afar.

And then she came around the turn. At first she did not see me, for her eyes were lifted with her voice, and I had time to mark the fascinating grace of her long, free stride, before she became conscious of my presence and checked and shortened it. She wore a frock of white serge, the skirt's edge at her ankles, revealing dainty, snowy buckskin ties and just a peep of white silk hose. And her flower-like face looked out through a frame of Leghorn straw and pink roses, tied snugly beneath her softly rounded chin with the filmiest of long, floating white veils. You can imagine the picture she made, there in this green glade, with her big blue eyes alight with glad surprise, and the warm blood suddenly risen in her cheeks.

"You truant!" I cried, in jocular reprimand. "Are you always going to run away when I visit Cragholt?"

She pouted prettily. I detest a woman who pouts, ordinarily. There is usually such palpable affectation about it. But Evelyn's pouting was winsome as an infant's. Besides it was only momentary. Then her eyes flashed and her foot was planted very hard, for such a tiny thing, on the green grass blades.

"I'm not a truant," she declared, with feigned indignation, "and I never thought of [illegible] away. That's just your [illegible] imagination. You fancy that everything I do centres but one cause and that is yourself. How, pray, was I to know you intended joining us this morning call?"

Tut, tut, I [illegible] her up. "What a little [illegible] have here! If you hadn't [illegible] shamefully late evening, I should have [illegible] morning, so there. As it is, it seems since I saw you."

Now she smiled until her dimples nestled. "That is much better," she returned, gayly, "and deserves a reply just as my opinion of last evening deserves praise, and not rebuke. I sacrificed myself and my pleasure for one I love."

"Not for me, surely!"

"Did I use the word conceit a moment ago? Are you the only man I love?"

"I hope so," I answered, impudently.

"There is another," she confessed, in mock tragedy. "Behold his face!"

I had not noticed that she held a little roll in her hand, for my eyes had been ever on hers, so, when abruptly, she spread out and held before me the missing head from Cameron's portrait, I was doubly unprepared. I know I was startled. She said afterwards that I went very white. I suppose I did; for with the rush of realization came such a chain of supposition as to drive me momentarily dizzy. For a second or more I stood dumb, while my hand went out in eager reach for the scrap of canvas, which, I had observed, instantaneously, bore four perforations, all of a size—the size of a rifle bullet. With that discovery had recurred the shots I had heard; and following this, came a maze of conjecture, going back to that first letter, then to the painting's mutilation, and on through devious ways to the morning's target practice; and always with one or another of Cameron's trusted servants as the chief actor.

When I recovered my composure I found Evelyn backing wilfully away from my covetous hand.

"It is the picture of the man I love," she was saying, teasingly. "A very, very [illegible] man."

"But where did you get it?" I asked seriously. "Do you know where it came from?"

Suddenly she was as grave as I could wish.

"I found it nailed to a tree," she answered. "Where it [illegible]? How do you suppose it came there? It looks like the portrait that hung in Uncle Robert's study. Do you suppose he grew to dislike it, and cut it up and threw it away?"

Now I found myself in some little embarrassment. If I was to obey Cameron's injunction I could not tell Evelyn the truth. Yet I was in no position to make light of her find. On the other hand I must learn from her just where she had come upon it, and so trace, if possible, the person who had fired the shots which riddled it.

"My dear girl," I said, adopting a tone of cajolery, "we have here, I think, a matter in which we both can be of service—very valuable service, indeed, to that beloved uncle and guardian of yours. But, you must trust me, absolutely, and, for the present at least, you must give to him no hint of what we have in hand. Do you understand?"

She laughed in that merry rippling fashion which I had found not the least of her charms.

"Do I understand?" she repeated, laying a hand on my arm in emphasis of her amused tolerance. "Do I understand? Of course I don't, and I shan't, until you have answered at least a half-dozen whys and whats."

"But you must trust me," I insisted, "and as primary evidence of that trust you will proceed at once to hand over to me, for examination, that somewhat damaged piece of portraiture which you are holding behind you."

Very wide her eyes opened in an innocent, almost infantile stare, as she asked:

"Do you really mean it, Philip?"

"Really," I answered, gravely. "I'd like to tell you all about it, right here and now, but that might spoil everything, so you must show what a strong womanly woman you are, by keeping silence and waiting."

In token of compliance she gave me the oval piece of canvas.

"I wonder who punched the holes in it!" she remarked, ruefully. "Whoever it was, they were shockingly disrespectful."

I tried to fancy that she would have said had she known they were bullet holes. Evidently that possibility had not occurred to her and I was glad that it had not.

"There are two ways of looking at it," I replied, my eyes fixed on the canvas and its perforations. "At first glance it does seem spiteful; but then there is a chance that it is not iconoclasm, after all. It may be, you know, just the reverse. I have not infrequently seen portraits that were so unjust to the originals that they fairly cried out for destruction."

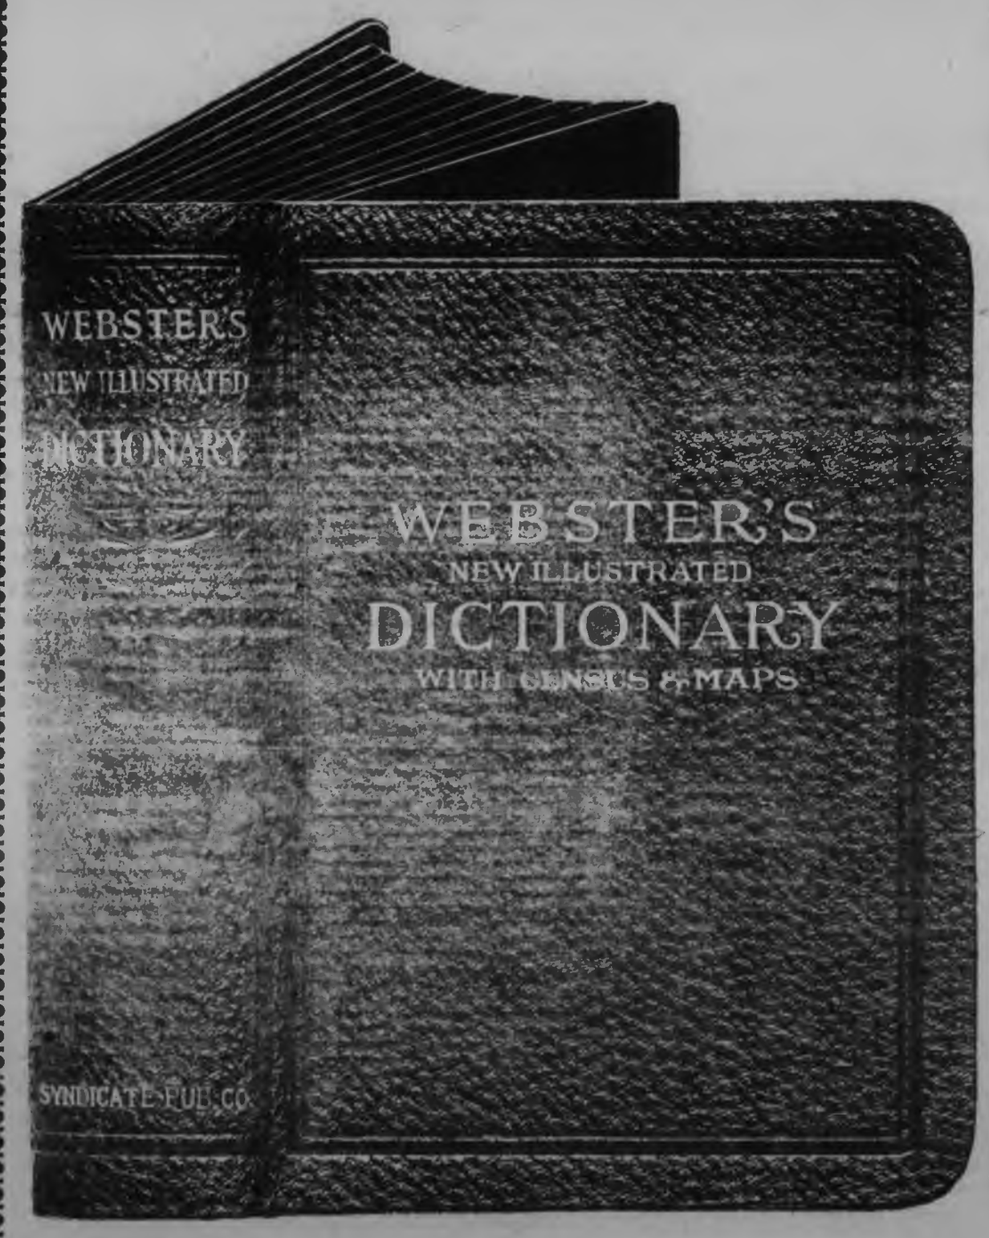
"But this is not one like that," she retorted. "This seems to me a very good portrait. I am sure Uncle Robert must have looked exactly like it, ten years ago."

"Alas, we do not all see with the same eyes," I assured her, smiling. "The destroyer may have looked on it as a caricature, not having your cultured taste in art." I held it off at arm's length, and after regarding it critically for a moment between half closed lids, I continued, "Do you think you could point out the identical tree to which it was nailed?"

"I could try," was her answer.

"Is it far?"

"Not very. A mile, from here, possibly. Over the ridge."



"Near anything in particular?"

"Near the trail which leads up from the trout stream to the entrance drive not far from the Lodge."

"When will you take me there?" I asked.

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping or nausea and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared and my appetite, strength and spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Broke Ankle on Stairs.

As Mrs. D. Spiers, of Otonabee, was descending the stairs, a few days ago, she heard and felt her ankle crack. Nothing daunted the lady took another step downwards, when she fell. She was taken to Nicholls Hospital. It seems that the bone was broken. Dr. McClelland is in charge of the case. She was yesterday reported as "doing nicely."

Matchett, called upon Rev. anh Mrs. Riddiford to come forward when an illuminated address, beautifully framed, was read by Mr. Bert Martin. Mrs. A. Inkpin presented Mr. Riddiford with a beautifpl Persian lamb cap and Mrs. Riddiford with a handsame piece of china. Rev. Mr. Riddiford in fitting words replied on behalf of Mrs. Riddiford and himself. Refreshments were served

FOR FRECKLED, ROUGH OR SPOTTY COMPLEXIONS

(From the Dermatologist).

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process does not even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvellous transformation.

SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints, Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses Are Taken.

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys they can avoid the tortures of backache, and rheumatism and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders for the new discovery Croxone, quickly relieves the most severe and obstinate cases.

Croxone cures these conditions because it removes the cause. It is the most wonderful remedy ever devised for ridding the system of uric acid. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. Croxone makes the kidneys filter the blood and sift out all the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped-up, inactive kidneys like water does a sponge, dissolves, and drives out every particle of uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles that cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and restores the kidneys and bladder to health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used. The very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it, and all your misery and suffering soon disappear. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

VOL. XL. NO. 61. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS

CLOSURE BILL MUST COME SOON; LIBERALS CAN SPEAK ONLY ONCE

Winston Churchill's Bombshell Gives Liberals Chance to Vent Billingsgate---All Semblance of Debate is Lacking

Ottawa, march 13.—It is beginning to look as if all records in any legislative body on the face of the globe for long-distance speaking will be beaten by the Liberals.

Parliament is now on its second week of marathon-speaking and there is every prospect of a continuous session to Saturday night.

The Winston Churchill bombshell has given the Liberals a fresh subject and such a torrent of Billingsgate as is being poured out on the First Lord of the Admiralty was never heard in the House of Commons.

All semblance of debate has ceased and the enraged Liberals with every argumentative prop now knocked from under their feet are engaged in violently abusing and attacking Mr. Churchill.

The continuous sittings have long passed the humorous stage and the situation is growing serious at the Capital. The Liberals, engered at Churchill's letter, which was originally sent as private and confidential and was only made public because of the insistence of the Liberals, who thought there was a nigger in the fence, are now beginning to advocate secession and are comparing him with Lord North.

Closure Becomes Necessity.

As there is no sign of the leather-lunged Liberals letting up, a closure is now becoming a necessity.

Dr. Clark this morning made his sixth speech on the navy. Hon. William Pugsley has made five and has also made innumerable minor speeches on points of order.

Pugsley, indeed, is the most artistic blocker on the Liberal side. The Government has hesitated about a closure, but unless the Liberal obstruction collapses during the next few days, a bill will be introduced. It is understood that a closure will not have to go into Committee, which means that the most each Liberal can do is to talk once on the two readings which means 160 speeches. There seems no reason why the bill could not be passed in two weeks.

Before Laurier Retires.

That the Liberals are going to try and force an election is undoubted. They want to get it on before Laurier has to retire. He is beginning to fail and there is little doubt that he will have to retire before the next fight if it comes in the natural course of events. He is far from well now, and as a matter of fact has not been in his seat since Monday, and is confined to his house with a bad cold. The Liberals want an election, they want another chance to get back to power and they don't care at all about the Empire or Canada or the business interests of the Dominion.

SLAUGHTER HOUSES IN HORRIBLE SHAPE

Yesterday a Times' reporter had a short interview with Sanitary Inspector Spence, regarding his report to the Board of Health, on meat conditions in this city. The inspector who seems determined to safeguard the ratepayers, noted that he is responsible for the purity of our meat supply. His recent inspection of the local slaughter houses of Peterborough disclosed a disgraceful and almost criminal neglect of the most ordinary sanitary conditions. In one place visited, he found that the abbatoir had evidently not been washed or whitewashed in over a year. In one corner lay a pile of stinking entrails. Right in the same room hung the still warm carcasses of two recently killed cattle. This cooling food, intended for human food was absorbing the noxious stench arising. Most of the local slaughter houses, are not only unclean, but absolutely unfit for their purpose.

Then the blood and entrails of the slaughtered animals are fed direct to hogs, without being cooked. This is a direct invitation to an epidemic of "trichinos." In fact the Inspector said that trichinos is too common in hogs, without the incentive of such food as mentioned. The germ of trichonisis is visible under inspection through a powerful magnifying glass. Mr. Spence thinks he should be provided with a powerful magnifying glass and also that a public abbatoir should be erected.

SUFFRAGETTES SCORN THE BOYS IN BLUE OF THE U. S. CAPITAL

Washington, March 13.—When the Senate Committee enquiring into the failure of the police to afford proper protection to the suffragist parade on March 3, met to resume hearings today, it had before it a small army of police officers and patrolmen.

It was decided to cross-examine them after District Commissioner Johnston had concluded his testimony, begun Tuesday, in which he applauded the efforts of the police and the preparations made by Major Sylvester, superintendent of police.

Major Sylvester has defended his preparations for protecting the women marchers, and has laid the blame for any failure of the plan squarely on the shoulders of his subordinates.

"Rough, Coarse Men."

Further details of the difficulties experienced by the marchers in the suffrage parade were told to-day by women and men.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Ballock attacked the conduct of the special policemen. She described them as "rough, coarse men, whose attitude was facetious and who made flippant, silly remarks."

Mrs. Randolph Forrest told of an attack by three national guardsmen upon a float, which she accompanied. She said they jumped on the float and tore down some of the decorations. The women, she said, were badly frightened.

Dion Miller, a Washington lawyer, testified that of 150 policemen he saw along the line of march only two or three were taking active steps to keep the crowd back. He appealed to several officers without result. He declared that the crowd would have obeyed any concerted action by the police.

RUB SUFFRAGETTES WITH DUGONG OIL

Mr. J. King Suggests a Humane Method of Fighting the Starving Women.

London, March 13.—Lord Robert Cecil, a male suffragist, though opposed to the militant methods, has given notice that he will ask Premier Asquith in the House of Commons what he proposed to do to stop the outrages of "persons who profess to desire the enfranchisement of women.

Mr. J. King, another member of Parliament, will ask Home Secretary McKenna to substitute for pump feeding the rubbing of the bodies of women who go on hunger strikes with dugong oil, which he said would sustain life for several weeks through the pores of the skin.

A Dugong, otherwise known as a sea cow, is described by Webster as an aquatic herbivorous halicoroid sirenian mammal yielding a valuable oil.

ELECTION NOT PROBABLE

Reliable Choice of Candidates In the Event of an Appeal to the People—Present Members Will Again Get Nomination.

Now that Sir Wilfrid is leading what in Army parlance, is entitled a "forlorn hope" in an attack upon the impregnable ramparts of the party chosen to control Canada's destiny, at Ottawa, and thereby wasting thousands of dollars, by a dog in the manger policy of obstruction, and using unto bloated balloons full of wearisome hot air for ammunition, in the hope of once more getting hungry fingers into the Dominion Treasury, thoughtful men of Canada, unbiased by an over-extreme of political prejudice, are put wondering what will be the result. There is no doubt but what Hon. Mr. Borden will refuse to upset the business of the country, and put the latter to the expense of a general election, by pandering to the spoilt child's policy of the Liberal leader. It is altogether likely that the rules of the House will be amended to save the Dominion and the Liberal party itself from the senseless obstructive policy of the latter's leaders. The whole country is disgusted at the pusillanimous manner in which Sir Wilfrid accepts the verdict of his countrymen at the polls and his vindictive fight against that verdict. The Conservative leader is not only willing to have the fullest debate on a subject of such Empire-wide interest as the Naval Bill; still, when for obstruction only, Liberal members continue to drone along, day after day, using threadbare arguments, worn out by similarity and reiteration, the snuffer of Parliamentary rules should be put over that smelling-to-heaven candle of useless Liberal resistance.

Still, the thought suggests itself, should Hon. Mr. Borden be forced into, or consent to, a general election, who would be the logical candidates for the two Peterboroughs?

In West Peterborough, Mr. J. H.

Charter Passes and Steamers Water Lily and Monarch to be Greatly Improved. A Great Boon for Local People for the Summer Months.

We are informed that an important business deal was put through yesterday whereby some local gentlemen purchased the fine steamboat "Esturion," formerly the flagship of The Trent Valley Navigation Co., of which Mr. W. T. C. Boyd of Bobcaygeon was the owner. The Esturion is to have her headquarters at Peterborough and will be used exclusively in the excursion trade.

The Charter Included.

It is said that the charter of The Trent Valley Navigation Co. passes into possession of those acquiring the steamer Esturion. Those directly interested are Messrs. G. W. Hatton and Capt. W. H. White of this city, and Mr. W. E. Brooks of South Beach Summer Resort, at Clear Lake.

Boats to Be Added.

It is more than probable that the steamers "Water Lily" and "Monarch will be acquired. It is said further, that a regular boat will be put on between Peterborough and Stoney Lake, and another on the Stoney Lake, Bobcaygeon and Chemong Park route.

Water Lily Improved.

The steamer Water Lily will be thoroughly overhauled, and, it is said that the company propose to take the machinery of this boat and put it into the Monarch, which will give the latter steamer a speed of between 12 and 15 miles and hour. New engines and boiler will be installed in the Water Lily, which will also increase her speed.

Good Business.

Under the new management, owning such fine steamers, it is safe to predict a liberal patronage by the excursionists and tourist trade of this district.

SIR GEORGE REID'S SPEECH DISCUSSED

Dr. Beland Read the Australian Knight's Address in House of Commons This Afternoon.

Ottawa, March 13.—In the House yesterday afternoon Hon. Dr. Beland read the despatch telling of Sir George Reid's remarks as to Canada guarding the North Atlantic and North Pacific. Hon. Martin Burrell, who appeared much interested, asked him to repeat it in English, which he did, including the reference to the Imperial Parliament.

"Some Gentlemen opposite believe in that," said Dr. Beland. "I asked them one day and one of them said, though somewhat under his breath, that he did."

"Do you," asked Mr. Berrell, "think an Imperial Parliament is impossible or undesirable?"

"Not impossible," was the answer. "I would not say it is impossible, but I think it is undesirable."

UPROAR IN THE LEGISLATURE PREMIER PREFERS CHARGE

Mr. Rowell Had Printer's Copy of the Hydro Electric Report---Then Asked When It Would Be Printed

Toronto, March 13.—Not for a long time has the Ontario House been stirred to such depths of excitement and demonstrations of intense feeling as on Tuesday afternoon, when the Premier, with visible agitation, interrupted the budget debate to voice an accusation of alleged wrongful practice, home to the leader of the Opposition. The charge was fiercely denied by Mr. Rowell and in the portex of repartee which followed individual members heatedly sprang in from side to side and stirred up for a few moments a veritable din of conflict.

For a moment following the laying of the charge there was an intense silence in the Chamber. Then when the significance of it had been grasped pandemonium broke loose. Cries of "Take it back! Take it back," from the Opposition were drowned in an uproar of banging from the Government benches. Members overcome with the spirit of the occasion hurled challenges back and forth across the floor and the principals in the matter were forced by the volume of sound to pause and wait.

Fighting Blood Stirred.

The babel of sound which ascended to the galleries and rolled out to the corridors sent loitering members hastening full speed to their seats, and brought civil servants flying from all quarters of the buildings to gaze upon the combat. The house literally rocked with the enthusiasm of the struggle and the fighting blood of every member was stirred to fever pitch.

The storm burst suddenly, but the few members who had observed Hon. J. S. Hendrie, of the Hydro-Electric Commission, chatting seriously with the Prime Minister during the duller passages of the debate might have apprehended something concerning the Opposition demand earlier in the day for the return of the commission report for 1912.

Mr. Rowell, at the opening of the House, had risen with a statement in his hand and in asking his question had been informed by the Provincial Secretary that he held only a duplicate and that the financial report he asked for would be included in the final issue.

IMPERIAL UNITY KEYNOTE

Ot Hon. James Bryce's Address to Members of the Canadian Club at Ottawa---Ambassador Dwells on Duties of Empire

By special request The Times publishes the address of Hon. James Bryce, before the Canadian Club at Ottawa, in which Britain's retiring representative to the United States tells of his visit to the Antipodean Dominions and of their progress. The work at Washington Embassy is largely Canadian, he states, and brought message of friendship and goodwill from President Wilson to Canadians.

Mr. Bryce was welcomed by the chairman as one of the Empire's foremost men, and described by the prime minister as one who has climbed the height of almost every phase of human intellectual achievement as a student, idealist, man of letters, parliamentarian, constitutionalist, minister of the Crown, diplomat—the warmth of the greeting given him on Saturday was a tribute less, perhaps to his international fame than to his personality as one who has in all his visits to the capital endeavored to cultivate the arts of gentlemanly courtesy and friendly social intercourse among those with whom he has been brought into contact. He said:

"The spirit of imperial unity which prevails in Australia and New Zealand has taken shape there, as it has here, in the desire to make arrangements for common defence, with the United Kingdom, and there also they are considering what they will do for co-operation with the Imperial Navy. They have not absolutely settled the form which that is to take, not the amount of money which is to be given, but the spirit is there and there is no difference between the parties as to the aim and object which are in view. So you may take it that what will be done here will be met in Australia and New Zealand in the same spirit, and that we shall have a combined action from all the self-governing dominions, which will not only rest upon the same principles, but will be directed to the same ends."

"You may ask why it is that the imperial spirit has grown in Australia and New Zealand. It was not so keen thirty years ago as it was here. I would like to tell you one reason because in Australia and New Zealand, as in the other self-governing dominions, it has been realized that the gift of self-government which the Mother Country made was a complete and ungrudging gift. (Applause.) It was not not possible—it would not have been possible that the spirit of imperial unity could have reached the proportions it has either in Canada or in Australia, New Zealand or the Cape, were it not for the conviction that the principle of self-government has become a principle of imperial connection, and that all the freedom which the self-governing dominions desire to have, they will have. (Applause). With that principle, imperial unity has got a stronger and deeper foundation than it could have ever had before.

There are just two things that I should desire to see in the relations of Canada and Australia to the Mother Country. One is that there should be more frequent intercourse between Australia and Canada. I was rather surprised to find how comparatively few Australians who had at some time or other been in Canada. Of course, a larger number, from time to time, are going to take that route to Europe, sailing from Sidney or Auckland to Vancouver. But still there was not as much intimate knowledge of Canada as I had hoped to find; and I suppose there are not very many of you who have yet acquired an intimate knowledge of New Zealand or Australia.

"Well, the more the great Dominions see of one another, the better. The more we in Great Britain see of all the dominions the better, and the more they see of us; but I do not want to see it confined to Great Britain and the dominions reciprocally; I think the dominions also ought to get to know one another and exchange their views upon all those subjects we have in coommon.

"We have all got, gentlemen, to realize how much the British Empire means in its unity and strength for the welfare and peace of the whole world. It includes perhaps four hundred millions of people, of whom sixty or seventy millions are in the self-governing dominions, exercising the rights of citizens there, and, although we may feel how splendid are the traditions which we have inherited during the past centuries—traditions of self-government in England, which have been propagated in the other dominions where our people have settled—we ought to feel not merely pride but a sense of responsibility in what it is open to you to effect for the peace and civilization and enlightening of the whole world."

WILL LOSE HIS TOES

Toronto, March 13.—Though there is every probability that he will lose the toes of his left foot as the result of an accident yesterday afternoon, Chris Zwinovitch, 15 Dutchess street, is unable to explain to the authorities at St. Michael's Hospital how he came by his injuries. He stated that he was working near the coal yards at Little York yesterday afternoon, and was brought into the city on a freight train. His foot is badly crushed, and it was said this morning that emputation would be necessary.

CLOSURE BILL MUST COME SOON; LIBERALS CAN SPEAK ONLY ONCE

Winston Churchill's Bombshell Gives Liberals Chance to Vent Billingsgate---All Semblance of Debate is Lacking

Ottawa, march 13.—It is beginning to look as if all records in any legislative body on the face of the globe for long-distance speaking will be beaten by the Liberals.

Parliament is now on its second week of marathon-speaking and there is every prospect of a continuous session to Saturday night.

The Winston Churchill bombshell has given the Liberals a fresh subject and such a torrent of Billingsgate as is being poured out on the First Lord of the Admiralty was never heard in the House of Commons.

All semblance of debate has ceased and the enraged Liberals with every argumentative prop now knocked from under their feet are engaged in violently abusing and attacking Mr. Churchill.

The continuous sittings have long passed the humorous stage and the situation is growing serious at the Capital. The Liberals, engered at Churchill's letter, which was orignally sent as private and confidential and was only made public because of the insistence of the Liberals, who thought there was a nigger in the fence, are now beginning to advocate secession and are comparing him with Lord North.

Closure Becomes Necessity.

As there is no sign of the leather-lunged Liberals letting up, a closure is now becoming a necessity.

Dr. Clark this morning made his sixth speech on the navy. Hon. William Pugsley has made five and has also made innumerable minor speeches on points of order.

Pugsley, indeed, is the most artistic blocker on the Liberal side. The Government has hesitated about a closure, but unless the Liberal obstruction collapses during the next few days, a bill will be introduced. It is understood that a closure will not have to go into Committee, which means that the most each Liberal can do is to talk once on the two readings which means 160 speeches. There seems no reason why the bill could not be passed in two weeks.

Before Laurier Retires.

That the Liberals are going to try and force an election is undoubted. They want to get it on before Laurier has to retire. He is beginning to fail and there is little doubt that he will have to retire before the next fight if it comes in the natural course of events. He is far from well now, and as a matter of fact has not been in his seat since Monday, and is confined to his house with a bad cold. The Liberals want an election, they want another chance to get back to power and they don't care at all about the Empire or Canada or the business interests of the Dominion.

SLAUGHTER HOUSES IN HORRIBLE SHAPE

Yesterday a Times' reporter had a short interview with Sanitary Inspector Spence, regarding his report to the Board of Health, on meat conditions in this city. The inspector who seems determined to safeguard the ratepayers, noted that he is, responsible for the purity of our meat supply. His recent inspection of the local slaughter houses of Peterborough disclosed a disgraceful and almost criminal neglect of the most ordinary sanitary conditions. In one place visited, he found that the abbatoir had evidently not been washed or whitewashed in over a year. In one corner lay a pile of stinking entrails. Right in the same room hung the still warm carcasses of two recently killed cattle. This cooling food, intended for human food was absorbing the noxious stench arising. Most of the local slaughter houses, are not only unclean, but absolutely unfit for their purpose.

Then the blood and entrails of the slaughtered animals are fed direct to hogs, without being cooked. This is a direct invitation to an epidemic of "trichinos." In fact the Inspector said that trichinos is too common in hogs, without the incentive of such food as mentioned. The germ of trichonisis is visible under inspection through a powerful magnifying glass. Mr. Spence thinks he should be provided with a powerful magnifying glass and also that a public abbatoir should be erected.

SUFFRAGETTES SCORN THE BOYS IN BLUE OF THE U. S. CAPITAL

Washington, March 13.—When the Senate Committee enquiring into the failure of the police to afford proper protection to the suffragist parade on March 3... set to resume hearings today, it had before it a small army of police officers and patrolmen.

It was decided to cross-examine them after District Commissioner Johnston had concluded his testimony, begun Tuesday, in which he applauded the efforts of the police and the preparations made by Major Sylvester, superintendent of police.

Major Sylvester has defended his preparations for protecting the women marchers, and has laid the blame for any failure of the plan squarely on the shoulders of his subordinates.

"Rough, Coarse Men."

Further details of the difficulties experienced by the marchers in the suffrage parade were told to-day by women and men.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Ballock attacked the conduct of the special policemen. She described them as "rough, coarse men, whose attitude was facetious and who made flippant, silly remarks."

Mrs. Randolph Forrest told of an attack by three national guardsmen upon a float, which she accompanied. She said they jumped on the float and tore down some of the decorations. The women, she said, were badly frightened.

Dion Miller, a Washington lawyer, testified that of 150 policemen he saw along the line of march only two or three were taking active steps to keep the crowd back. He appealed to several officers without result. He declared that the crowd would have obeyed any concerted action by the police.

RUB SUFFRAGETTES WITH DUGONG OIL

Mr. J. King Suggests a Humane Method of Fighting the Starving Women.

London, March 13.—Lord Robert Cecil, a male suffragist, though opposed to the militant methods, has given notice that he will ask Premier Asquith in the House of Commons what he proposed to do to stop the outrages of "persons who profess to desire the enfranchisement of women."

Mr. J. King, another member of Parliament, will ask Home Secretary McKenna to substitute for jump feeding the rubbing of the bodies of women who go on hunger strikes with dugong oil, which he said would sustain life for several weeks through the pores of the skin.

A Dugong, otherwise known as a sea cow, is described by Webster as an aquatic herbivorous halicoroid sirenian mammal yielding a valuable oil.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at

$275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

"So I see."

"Henry, you will admit that women are as intelligent as the men."

"Freely I admit that."

"And that as women pay taxes, they ought to have a say as to how their money is to be spent."

"That seems reasonable. But let us discuss the question. I earn the money we have, don't I?"

"Yes."

"But do I have any voice in how that money is to be spent?"

A few minutes later he put on his hat and coat and left the house, regretting that he had given that twist to the argument.—Detroit Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES

If a man was offered his choice of fame or fortune, he'd take the fortune and hope to acquire fame later.

Things must be getting hot in Sudbury when $1,600.00 in fines are handed out in one day for infraction of the liquor law. This is the high water mark in fines for that town.

Port Arthur is being asked to appoint women police. Won't it look great to see the "Jennys" quieting a riot of dock wallopers such as they had up there last summer.

"Music hath power to tame the savage beast!" As 125 girls from a Tennessee University were going to New York, by train, a number of suffragets tried to convert the girls to "Votes for women." The students sang them down.

We would give the militant suffrgets a "pointer." In Kingston, Ont., a man had his face ripped open by a lady's hatpin. The unfortunate man was standing beside a lady, when the latter turned suddenly and her hatpin did the rest. Hatpins come cheaper than dynamite.

London Daily Graphic: The puzzle is to know why the Liberals are thus imperiling their own Parliamentary liberties. Their avowed object is to force a general election, but at present Parliament is still young and Mr. Borden's Naval bill seems to be generally popular. It is not easy to see that the Liberals would gain very much by a fresh appeal.

THE NEW BRITISH SUBMARINE.

Whether the new British submarine when completed meets expectations or not, it is likely to be a craft worthy of consideration. The same may be said of the plans for a flotilla of above-water craft which are expected to have a speed of forty knots, carry heavy guns for attacks on armored vessels and quick-firers specially mounted for use against aeroplanes.

The new submarine is to be able to fire eight torpedoes and to carry guns of considerable range and power, but it appears that their chief distinction is to be their ability to cross the Atlantic at a high speed. But all this is a matter of speculation as the admiralty declines to give out the particulars at this time, yet something that is to be a great improvement on the existing submarine may be looked for. That it may have much influence in bringing about a radical change in the construction of large warships is believable, because the mind of the British constructor is occupied all the time with the desire to maintain the naval supremacy of the United Kingdom.

THE AGED POOR.

Mrs. Rose Henderson, inspector for the Montreal Juvenile Delinquents Court, a few days ago, appeared before a special committee of the House of Commons at Ottawa and urged the adoption of an old age pension scheme says the Christian Guardian. She urged that "with wages as low as they are at present, and with the cost of living what it is in Canada, it is impossible for wage-earners to provide for old age," and in addition to this she urged the need of a pension for widowed mothers. She declared that the present system of dealing with distressed age was terrible. Men who have toiled hard all their lives, and raised children for the state, are in old age segregated in institutions and practically deprived of their civil rights. Some few do not mind it, but to many of the self-respecting poor, the thought of the poorhouse is bitterer than death. We can never forget one old lady in Essex County, whose horror of the poorhouse was so great that she actually prayed that she might die before it was completed and ready for occupation. And her prayer was answered; she never saw the poorhouse. The City of Detroit has discarded this old method of dealing with the poor in institutions and is now boarding its destitute aged people and children in private houses. The result so far appears to be more satisfactory to the needy ones and much cheaper to the city. Canada is a wealthy country and we have few very poor, but the number is increasing and seems destined to increase. Let us see to it that we do not add to the inevitable burden of poverty the horrible stigma of pauperism. The veterans of the industrial world are as worthy of pensions as the veterans of the battle-field.

POET'S CORNER

Readers are invited to contribute to this column. Matter to be either original or otherwise.

IS IT WORTH WHILE?

(Published by request.)

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other
In blackness of heart!—that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

God pity! us all as we jostle each other;
God pardon us all for the triumphs we feel
When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather,
Pierced to the heart; words are keener than steel,
And mightier far for woe or for weal.

Were it not well, in this brief little journey
On over the isthmus, down into the tide,
We give him a fish instead of a serpent,
Ere folding the hands to be and abide
For ever and aye in the dust at his side?

Look at the roses saluting each other;
Look at the herds all at peace on the plain—
Man, and man only, makes war on his brother.
And laughs in his heart at his peril and pain,
Shamed by the beasts that go down on the plain.

Is it worth while that we battle to humble
Some poor fellow soldier down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time eftsoon will tumble
All of us together like leaves in a gust,
Humbled indeed down into the dust.

MOST BEAUTIFUL EASTER PRESENT!

The most marvelous mystic wonder of the twentieth century. Our Saviour nailed to the cross, a beautiful and marvelous work of art, that has mystified the whole world with its startling luminous effect, which is everlasting. The figure of Christ as well as the Cross itself are of imitation marble material, showing white in daylight and in a glorious, luminous, mystic light at night in the darkest room. The luminous effect is everlasting. The greatest work of art ever known to science. It is indeed a glorious and most precious article of true devotion. Science has long been puzzled at this mysterious work of art.

There are two different sizes: The larger ones (11½ by 6 inches) has been reduced to only $2 from the original price of $10, and the smaller one (4 by 8) from $5 to but one dollar in order to enable every Christian family to have one in their home. These prices will hold good only till April 1st. A Netkow, 832 Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

DON'T SCOLD CROSS, IRRITABLE CHILDREN

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Feverish, Bowels Clogged, give "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with breath bad; has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of the bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

DEPOT SITE SELECTED BY PACIFIC GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY AT LILLOOET, B.C.

The people of Lillooet are much elated as the result of an arrangement with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway respecting the location of a station for this town. Yesterday a committee of the citizens, accompanied by Chief Engineer Callaghan of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, went over the survey and selected an ideal spot for a depot a few minutes distance from the centre of Lillooet.

The Pacific Great Eastern have also assured the people of Lillooet that the divisional point and yards would be on the Lillooet side of the Fraser River near Cayuse Creek. The Pacific Great Eastern have purchased the Indian reserve which will be used for this purpose and which means that the centre of the town will be a very short distance from the station and much more favorable than the site originally figured on. This arrangement has created a feeling of great enthusiasm and the erection of new buildings is now progressing vigorously. A number of people in the town, business men principally who were waiting for this announcement, have now stated that they will settle in Lillooet, build permanent stores and open up for business as soon as possible.

Mr. Cox, of Spuzzum, B.C., has also signified his intention of building a large saw-mill within a very short distance of the town in the near future and relieve the lumber situation. A large number of people wishing to build cannot do so on account of the fact that the entire output of two saw-mills now at Lillooet has been contracted for for 60 days. It is also proposed to start a brick making plant at Lillooet immediately, arrangements to this end having been practically completed.

There can now be no doubt as to the future of Lillooet, and through the entire country there is a feeling of the utmost satisfaction. Lillooet will be the divisional point on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the distributing point for a vast agricultural country of unlimited possibilities, and the Bridge River mining district, which is fast coming to the front as one of the foremost gold producers of Canada.

IN CASE OF AN ELECTION

Burnham, the present member, will in all probability, once more, carry the Conservative standard to victory. He would be the logical choice of the Convention. Efforts have been made in certain quarters to discredit him. These efforts, however, have only increased his strength. Mr. Burnham is one of the very few politicians who is not afraid to express his opinions honestly and candidly, regardless of church influence or creed. There will be few who will try to defeat him for the nomination.

It is currently said that Hon. J. R. Stratton, will once more try his luck as Liberal candidate. He will be the practically unanimous choice of the Roman Catholic party for this riding, and whose votes would be cast for Mr. Stratton, almost to a man. The names of Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. R. R. Hall are also mentioned as possible candidates. Both strong men, were their affections only centered different politically.

In East Peterborough Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, who has risen Phoenix like, from the blaze of indignation which wiped out the Liberal administration, when he was in the minority, has risen to greater heights of statesmanship and eloquence. Mr. Sexsmith would undoubtedly be the Conservative candidate in his riding. The Liberal candidate would probably be Mr. F. D. Kerr, the defeated candidate. Mr. Kerr is a strong man with a good past record, and hampered only by his political affiliation. However, all said and done, this article is somewhat premature, as a Dominion election in the near future is altogether a mirage seen by Sir Wilfrid, as he looks over the trackless desert between him and the Treasury benches.

His Excuse

"That which you have wrought shall in turn be wrought upon you. Take warning therefore of what shall happen on the seventh day hence. As sun follows sun, so follows all that is decreed. The ways of our God are many. On the righteous He showers blessings; on the evil He pours misery"

ROOM FOR EXPANSION

The Lesson for Canada in American Export Manufactures

The exports of manufactured goods from the United States are assuming tremendous proportions. The following table shows the growth in some of the principal items in ten years:

Iron and steel	$82,000,000	$239,000,000
Copper	40,000,000	106,000,000
Leather	25,000,000	53,000,000
Wood	40,000,000	84,000,000
Re. Min. Oils	51,000,000	97,000,000
Agri. Imple.	16,000,000	35,000,000
Electrical App. & Scien. In.	5,250,000	16,000,000
Cars, Carriages	8,000,000	38,000,000
Automobiles	$1,000,000 (10 months)	$21,000,000 (10 months)

It will be seen from the above list that most of these products are made in Canada and the figures afford food for reflection as to whether or not it is wise for a young country like Canada to be sending out of the country such vast sums of money for goods which under favorable conditions should be made in this country.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.
Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 2 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

A Men's a Man for a' That

An average man of 150 pounds contains the constituents found in 1,200 eggs. There is enough gas in him to fill a gasometer of 3,649 cubic feet. He contains enough iron to make four hempeany nails. His fat would make seventy-five candles and a good-sized cake of soap. His phosphate contents would make 8,064 boxes of matches. There is enough hydrogen in him in combination to fill a balloon and carry him above the clouds. The remaining constituents of a man would yield, if distilled, six teaspoonfuls of salt, a bowl of sugar and ten gallons of water.

Old Tug Back to Work

After lying at anchor in Duluth harbor for twelve years, the tug Constitution, one of the oldest on the lakes, is being fitted out for service at St. Clair River points. The Constitution was built in the sixties and was one of the first tugs on the St. Mary's River. Her engines are still good and her hull is in first-class condition. She has an interesting history and is known to nearly every marine man on the lakes.

A Soldier's Remains

The skeleton of a man, probably one of the soldiers slain when York was attacked in the War of 1813, was unearthed by workmen engaged in excavating for a sewer at the eastern entrance of the Exhibition grounds, Toronto. The bones were those of a large man, and were in a remarkable state of preservation. They were reinterred close to where they had lain for a hundred years.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING ONLY SAFE COURSE

Continuous Cropping Robs the Soil of its Fertility and Results in Failure

It is a sad thought that the same process of soil exhaustion is going on in Saskatchewan that robbed the Dakotas and all the populated Western States of the fertility that had been stored for man's use through the ages. Could man see the absurdity of first robbing the soil of its stored up fertility; and then, in years to come, raising a number of minimum crops that do not pay expenses until he has run deeply into debt, possibly mortgaged his home; and then struggling through years of adversity to reach the haven that all older communities finally reach, namely, diversified farming, he surely would show himself a much wiser man. When men are raising maximum crops, if they would be careful to raise and buy all the young stock, colts and calves, that they can, it would not be long before they would see the necessity of preserving all the straw, for the use of the stock, as feed and bedding. Naturally they would be compelled to put the manure back on the land, and before they realized it they would be raising special crops to feed and fatten their growing animals, and thus find themselves diversified farmers without having gone through the wheat sweat, or lost the fertility of their farms, and therefore never forced into the necessity of raising minimum crops. The rich farm is a great asset for anyone who tills the same, but a poor farms keeps one slaving to make both ends meet. Most men know this, but are unable to grasp the importance of keping up the fertility rather than exhausting and then rebuilding. Ultimately the present owner or some future buyer must put back the present fertility if the lands are to be permanently cultivated; therefore, we are in hearty sympathy with the efforts of both state and Dominion governments and especially the agricultural press, in all they are doing to impress the importance of diversified farming upon the settlers who have taken up these rich lands on these wide spreading prairies.—Mr. John R. Lowe in the Saskatchewan Farmer.

DRIVEN FROM ENGLAND

By Free-Trade, Noted Lace Manufacturer Starts Factory in Hungary

A well-known lace manufacturer of Nottingham, England, in the person of Mr. A. Metheringham, who resides at Chilwell, near Nottingham, has left for Roob, Hungary, where he is transferring the whole of his machinery in order to get inside the tariff walls. In the course of an interview just prior to his departure Mr. Metheringham declared in a most emphatic manner: "I have been driven abroad by Free Trade. Under present conditions in this country I haven't much faith in its future. We find ever-increasing difficulties in getting our goods into a foreign country, owing to the prohibitive tariffs, whilst the competition from abroad in the home and neutral markets becomes keener every year."

Mr. Metheringham's factory is a huge three-story building capable of housing 24 of the latest type of lace machines, 250 inches in breadth, accommodating a staff of 400 hands in making lace, bleaching, dressing, and finishing the article from beginning to end. The site, however, which the Hungarian Government have given is capable of accommodating six mills equally as big. In addition to making a substantial cash grant towards the expenses of removing the machinery from Nottingham, they have freed the new mills from local taxation for ten years and Imperial taxation for fifteen years. Not only that, but, as a start, the Hungarian Government have offered Mr. Metheringham a very large order for curtain lace used as antimacassars in the carriages on the State railways, the only proviso they make is that after two years a substantial percentage of Hungarian workpeople shall be engaged in the industry.—Draper's Record, London, England.

The Huber Manufacturing Co., Marion, Ohio, will erect an implement warehouse and offices costing $60,000 in Regina, Sask.

WIVES FOR WESTERNERS

Ontario Young Women off to Prairie Provinces—Do Their Own Courting

The eighteen prospective brides who left Toronto in a party for the West, are only the first of a large number of Ontario girls who will shortly go to the prairie provinces to find husbands, according to Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Duff has had numerous letters from G.T.R. agents throughout Ontario stating that there are many girls in the country desirous of taking a chance in the matrimonial market, and he expects that parties of fifty will soon be the order.

Mr. Duff stated in an interview that it must not be supposed that he was playing the part of Cupid; he was merely acting as lieutenant for the little fellow with the darts. The girls who had not been able to satisfy themselves with the choice of a husband in the East were given a special rate on the railway and packed off in parties to the wider field of the West, in charge of a competent woman. They then entered domestic service and cast about for a suitable young man. "They have to do their own courting," said Mr. Duff. "All I do is get them out were wives are wanted and young women are few, and the census returns show that there is a preponderance of young unmarried men in the West."

Extensive Scheme of Irrigation Recommended for Australia

N. R. W. Nielsen, formerly Minister of Lands for Australia, who conducted an investigation into the irrigation methods of North America, has issued a report, in which he says that the eastern coast of Australia can be made quite as productive as any similar area in Canada. He recommends the Government to undertake extensive irrigation works, declaring that the cost of these would be amply repaid.

Mr. Nielsen also recommends the organisation of a general scheme of immigration from Canada, the New South Wales Government undertaking to pay a proportion of the fares of those persons possessing a certain amount of capital.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE OYSTER FARMING

One of the most important discoveries that has ever been made with respect to oyster culture was explained for the first time to the Committee on Fisheries of the Commission of Conservation by Dr. Joseph Stafford of McGill University, who made the discovery as the result of many years' close scientific investigation. The great difficulty in oyster culture heretofore has been the inability to determine the exact time when the swimming oyster eggs are ready to sink to the bottom to attach themselves to hard, clean bodies called cultch, put there for that purpose. This cultch, which usually consists of old oyster shells, has to be put in the water only a few hours before the young oysters sink or it becomes slimy and useless. Dr. Stafford, after years of patient investigation, has discovered a means of telling just when the eggs are ready to sink to the bottom, so that the oyster farmer knows the exact time he should put down the cultch. The committee passed a resolution recommending that the Government instruct fishermen how to apply Dr. Stafford's discovery.

Squirrels Safe in Norfolk

Black and grey squirrels may run about as they please in the County of Norfolk, for the next few years. The Ontario Government has issued an order under the Game and Fisheries Act prohibiting the killing of squirrels in the county until November 15, 1915.

Double Cause of Death

James F. Ward, engineer at a sawmill in Sault Ste Marie, was killed in a peculiar manner. While winding tape about an electric light wire he received a shock which hurled him into a pit 14 feet deep. When picked up he was dead. Either shock or fall alone would probably have been fatal.

CHRONICLE OF THE SINNER

Being the Story of a Man Mean Enough to Deceive Even His Trusting Wife.

At two o'clock in the morning William Wilberforce succeeded after many efforts in getting his key to serve the purpose for which it had been made. Then he stumbled into the hall and fell over an upturned corner of a rug. This awakened Mrs. Wilberforce, who switched on the electric light.

When she got downstairs her husband was sitting up and staring vacantly at a beautiful picture of Queen Louise of Prussia.

"Why, William!" exclaimed his wife, "what has happened? Where are your glasses? How did you get that cut on your nose? Why are your clothes all covered with mud?"

Mr. Wilberforce put his hands up to his face and sobbed.

"Dearest," Mrs Wilberforce cried, kneeling beside him, "tell me what is the matter."

"I can't 'm dear," he replied, "it was awful! Horrible!"

"O, William! Is it possible that you have been—"

"No, no, it ain't possible," he interrupted. "Wash asshaulted by robbersh. Tha'sh wha' happened."

"Darling! Are you badly hurt? Did they rob you of everything?"

"No, 'm only stunned, that's all—only stunned. I licked 'm both. They didn't get my watch, 'n' they didn' get my money. I'm all ri'—jush stunned, thash all.

"Shan't I phone for the doctor, dear?"

"No, 'm all ri'. Jush a little stunned—tha'sh all."

Then, believing him, she helped him upstairs and assisted him to get into bed.

Yet there are those who refuse to admit that simple faith is better than Norman blood.—Chicago Record Herald.

Kingsville Citizen Says he Can go Long Way Back

Henry Washington, a well-known colored citizen of Kingsville, Ontario, claims to be the oldest man in the whole of Canada. Washington claims to be 116 years old. The oldest residents of Kingsville say they can remember him as far back as 1850 and at that time he was grey haired and bent. The old man was sold into slavery at the age of four in Kentucky and for forty-six years was owned by a southern planter. He escaped to Canada previous to the outbreak of the Civil War.

TRACK LAYERS ACTIVE

Less Than Six Hundred Miles to be Completed of Transcontinental

After long months of unInspiring spade work, of contention with labor shortage, and of wrestling with engineering problems of a magnitude as great as the enterprise itself, the construction of the Gran Trunk Pacific Railway has now reached that satisfactory stage where every effort seems to bring with it its own tangible result. At the opening of the present season the track laying situation was as follows: On the main line the track was 1,078 miles west of Winnipeg beyond the Yellowhead Pass on the western slope of the Rocky Mountains. On the Alberta Coal branch the track had been pushed 21.4 miles south of Bickerdike. On the Tofield-Calgary branch steel had been laid 105.5 miles south of the former point; while the rail-head on the Young-Prince Albert branch stood 67.3 miles south of Young. The head of steel on the mountain division stood 131 miles east of Prince Rupert. Great progress has been made on all these lines. During last year 100 stations were constructed in the west and at least as many more are being added this year.

East of the twin cities the National Transcontinental was also well advanced. From Cochrane east to the Quebec boundary, the main line was graded and the rails laid, a distance of 72 miles. From Cochrane west the rails were laid for 178.4 miles and, with the exception of two or three cuts, the grading was completed for a further distance of approximately 74 miles. From Moncton to Quebec the N.T.R. was ready to be taken over from the contractors as also from Quebec westerly for a distance of 35a miles.

The present situation is that a gap exists on the section between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert of approximately 400 miles and another gap on the section between Winnipeg and Cochrane of 184 miles. Five hundred and eighty-four miles is all that remains to be completed on Canada's National Transcontinental Railway from coast to coast.

POISON MAKES THE GENIUS

Professor Claims the Human Brain is Made Stronger as the Body Decays.

Poison and disease foster genius. They inspire poets, authors, statesmen and inventors to the height of achievement.

Such is the discovery of Dr. Charles B. Reed, professor in the medical school of Northwestern university.

Scores of examples are cited by Doctor Reed to prove his assertion. His list of men whose intellectuality, he claims, was thus stimulated to brilliancy includes names prominent in literature and art.

Such masterpieces as Milton's "Paradise Lost" and De Maupassant's "Pierre et Jean" would not have been created had their authors relied upon their normal forces, he contends. Such poisons as ether and strychnine, arsenic, alcohol, cocaine, chloral and hashish inspired the musings of Poe's "Raven" and created the musical rhythm of Burns' "Tam O'Shanter's Ride," he declares.

Doctor Reed bases his theory on the fact that the mind, under stress of great emotion, is easily concentrated upon one thing. Reactions have the same effect. He cites history to show that during periods of unusual stress or tension, as from war, grief or love, many minds are emotionally excited and the literary product is increased and improved, as compared with the product in times of mental peace and commercial prosperity. He calls such emotions "mental systematizers."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

For just an instant she hesitated.

"We might go now," she replied, "if it weren't that I am expecting Celia Ainslee for luncheon. Suppose we say five o'clock. You can meet me at the Lodge. It's a short walk from there."

"Fine!" I approved, thrusting the portrait head beneath my arm and taking possession of both her white-gloved hands. Slender and shapely hands, yet wonderfully capable.

"Good-by!" she cried, laughing. "Take care of my uncle!" with a glance towards her punctured find.

"Good-by!" I returned, releasing her. "Your uncle shall have my most faithful concern."

The real significance of the words she, of course, did not comprehend. But as I stood watching her until a turn in the path enfolded her from my sight, their echo, ringing in my ears, impressed me with their pregnancy. Her uncle was evidently the focal point of a crafty and vengeful conspiracy, the seriousness of which I had been foolishly endeavoring to minimise; and as such he was in need, not only of my concern, but of all the loyal, energetic, and efficient aid of which I was capable.

CHAPTER IV.

The Chinese Servant.

Four o'clock found me rapping at the door of Cragholt Lodge. Considering that it was built thirty-five years ago by one of the Townsbury family who probably read English novels but had never been nearer to England than Coney Island, it possessed a surprising picturesqueness; due in large part to its covering of dark English ivy.

I had anticipated my appointment with Evelyn by a full hour; for I wished to question old Romney, the lodge keeper; and the questions were not for milady's ear.

He opened to me promptly, in person, this odd, rugged old man, with his seamed brow and great shock of iron-gray hair and beard. He was in his shirt sleeves, but on seeing me he reached for his coat, which hung on a peg beside the door.

"Never mind the coat, Romney," I said, "don't make yourself uncomfortable on my account. It's a warm afternoon."

"It is warmish, sir," he assented; but despite my protest he was thrusting his arm into the coat sleeves. "It's been an uncommon hot September. Won't you step inside, sir?"

He knew his place too well to indicate any surprise at my visit; yet I felt he must be curious over an event so unusual.

"I have an inquiry or two to make, Romney," I told him, as, accepting his suggestion, I stepped into his cosy, old-fashioned sitting room. "I heard some shooting over this way this morning, and I've been wondering whether the game laws weren't being broken."

He placed a cushioned rocking-chair for me, and I sat down.

"Now did you hear that, too, Mr. Clyde?" he asked, brightening, as he leaned against the low sill of one of the daintily curtained windows. "'Twas about ten o'clock, sir; a little after, maybe. I was doin' a bit of trimmin' on the hedge outside, sir, when them same shots set me a-thinkin' that very thing. An' right away, sir, I says to myself, says I, 'It's that Chink what just went up to the house to borrow a rifle.'"

"That Chink?" I repeated, puzzled.

"Yes, sir. Yellow Chinese boy, sir. He works for Mr. Murphy, the artist, what has the bungalow, down on the shore near Cos Cob. About half an hour before that he comes by here on his way up to the house. 'What's wantin'?' I asks. 'Missie Murphy,' he says, 'wantee borrow rifle, shootee weasel, stealee chickee.' 'All right,' I tells him, and away he goes. So, you see, sir, when I hears the shots I thinks right away that Mr. Murphy's Chink is tryin' his 'borrowed rifle' on some of Mr. Cameron's pheasants, maybe. But 15 minutes later, along comes John again, with an innocent grin on his face, the rifle over his shoulder, and his hands empty as air. 'Well, to be sure, I stops him, sir. 'You been shootin' in the woods?' I asks. 'No shootee,' he grins back. 'No no shootee.' Then, sir, I swears at him, good and hearty, and calls him what he is. But all he can say is, 'No No; me no shootee.' Then I asks him if he didn't hear a gun go off. 'Gun?' he says, as if he didn't know what gun meant. 'Rifle,' I explains. 'Yes, yes,' says he, 'me hear rifle shootee. Not my rifle.' 'Whose rifle?' I asks him. 'Man with rifle, up load,' he says, pointing back. An' that was all I could get out of him, sir."

I should have been amused, I suppose, by old Romney's recital. It was certainly very graphic, and his imitation of the Chinaman was histrionically artistic—I fear the stage missed a comedian of merit when Romney took to lodge-keeping—but at the first mention of the oriental, I had pricked my ears, and throughout the narration my mind was busy with those strangely worded letters of Cameron's and those still stranger blots which looked one way like a Chinese junk and the other way like a coolie in a straw helmet. The possibility of a connection, especially in view of the rifle and the perforated painting, seemed to me the reverse of remote. And yet I could hardly reconcile the notion of this apparently ignorant Mongolian being in any wise interested in bringing disaster upon a person so far removed from him in every way as was Cameron; much less in evolving or taking part in such a crafty plot as everything we had thus far learned of it indicated this to be.

My questioning of Romney shed very little new light on the subject. He had seen the Chinaman pass the Lodge on several occasions; he had rarely entered the grounds, however. I tried to ascertain what his "rarely" meant, and finally got him to say that in the past six months. "John," as he called him, had visited Cragholt, on one pretext or another, possibly three or four times. But Romney's memory for dates was exceedingly feeble. He could not recollect whether one of those times was on or about the twenty-first of August. He was equally at a loss concerning the fourteenth of August and the fourteenth of September.

"What do you know of this artist, Murphy, who employs John?" I asked.

"Not much, sir," was his answer. "They do say as he is rather eccentric, sir. He and the Chink lives alone there in the bungalow, summer and winter. He's a big red-headed and bearded fellow, sir. I did hear a story as to him gettin' into a fight up at Garrison's hotel in Greenwich village, and nearly killin' three young watermen near as big as himself."

"Has he lived here long?"

"Goin' on two years, now, sir."

"He paints and sells pictures, I suppose?"

"Maybe, sir. I never sees any, though. But they calls him an artist, sir."

I determined to visit Murphy on the pretext of purchasing some of his work, and in this manner learn, if possible, something more of his celestial servitor.

"Of course you didn't see any one else with a rifle, today?" I asked, in conclusion. "The 'man with life up load' didn't materialize?"

"No, sir. Not another soul, sir. I asked some of the boys—them as has charge of the deer in the preserve, over the way the shootin' sounded. But they hadn't seen no one, either, sir. Though they did hear the shots."

I thanked Romney for his interest—he knew I was one of the state game wardens—and admonished him to keep his own counsel as to my visit, leaving the impression with him that I wished to round up the culprit, and feared if my activity in the matter were scented my prey would be put on his guard and thus escape me.

It still lacked twenty minutes of the hour of my appointment with Evelyn when I issued from the Lodge, and to occupy the time I entered the wide gateway between the great stone pillars with their heraldic shields, and sauntered leisurely along the smooth macadam drive, bordered by sentinel elms.

My thoughts were busy with the new line of conjecture which Romney had unconsciously opened up for me. I wondered whether by any possibility this eccentric painter, Murphy, could be personally involved. Was Cameron acquainted with him? Had they ever quarrelled? From what Romney had told me of the affair at Garrison's the artist was evidently of a bellicose disposition. He had come here two years ago. Cameron had owned Cragholt less than a year. Perhaps at the time he was preparing the mansion for occupancy he had offended the too sensitive Murphy, who—I was letting my imagination run free—may have wished to take a hand at the new decoration. It would probably be well for me to see Cameron before seeing the artist. The involutions of my hypothetical train led me, I fear, into many monstrously preposterous conceits; yet, as subsequent events proved, the cogitation in which I indulged on that afternoon walk was not wholly idle. Although the working out was along lines which I was then far from foreseeing, it was curious, in looking back, to observe how very closely, collaterally, even at that stage, I came to the truth.

In the midst of my revery, the rhythm of horse's hoofs on the drive awoke me to time and place. And as I raised my eyes, I saw, still some distance away, but bearing down upon me at a swift single-foot, the girlish figure of Evelyn Grayson, in white waist and gray habit, mounted on Prince Charley, a buckskin cayuse, which for saddle purposes she preferred to all the thoroughbreds in the Cameron stables.

"Am I late?" she cried, reining the wiry little animal to a stand beside me. "Celia Ainslee just left. She was expecting the Lentilhons to stop for her in their motor boat, but they broke down and were delayed, and instead of coming at three o'clock, it was half-past four before they landed."

"I fancy you are just on the minute," was my response, as I consulted my timepiece.

"But I'm still a mile from the Lodge," she argued.

"And all the nearer to the trail," I condoned. "It must be somewhere about here, isn't it?"

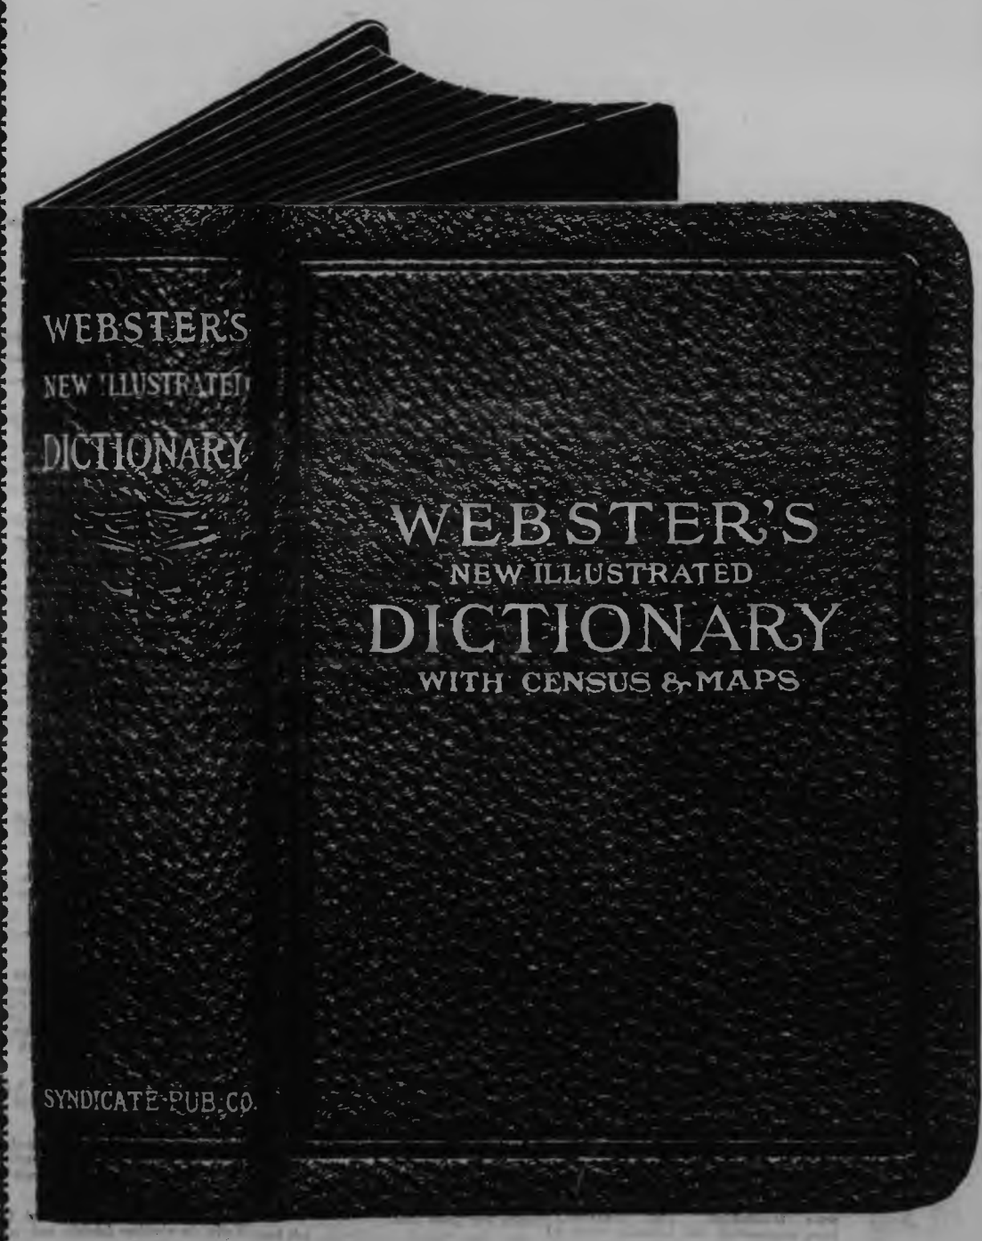
"You've passed it. It's just beyond that next bend." And she pointed over my shoulder.

"Why didn't you bring a groom with you to hold your steed?" I asked, smiling. "You don't expect to ride Prince Charley into the forest fastnesses, do you?"

"I could," she answered, promptly. "I will, if you dare me. He can pick his way like a cat. But it isn't necessary. He'll stand forever, the dear thing, if I drop the bridle rein over his head."

My preference was to have her on foot at my side, and so I did not dare her. And thus it chanced that we left the homely little animal standing with drooping head and dangling rein on the shadowed side of the driveway, and went off together down the narrow, slow-descending trail, the girl in the lead.

The slanting sunlight, shooting its golden arrows in intermittent volleys through the tree tops, made target of her hair, as we passed, scoring brilliant flashes of burnished bronze. Her hat, a broad-brimmed sailor of coarse straw, was but a poor shield for that shimmering, tawny coil which lay low on her neck, and the darting rays had their will with it. I have never before or since seen hair just like Evelyn Grayson's. There was such a wealth of it, and its color was so elusive. Under dim lights it seemed a prosaic brown, but with small encouragement it changed to a light fawn, streaked with lustrous topaz strands, which in the sun's blaze became a dazzling bronze glory.



"I'm pretty sure I can find the tree," she asserted, as she swung along with that free, lissome stride which I loved. "It is an old, dead chestnut, a great giant of the woods, imposing even in death; and it stands only a half-dozen yards off the trail. I was looking for ferns, or I never in the world should have come upon it. How do you imagine that thing ever got away off here? And who could have stuck it up on that dead tree trunk?"

"That is precisely what I should like to find out," was my reply. "It seems very mysterious to me. About what time was it, when you discovered it?"

"Just before I met you."

Stomach Always Baulked, Had Constant Indigestion

Smell of Cooking Made Him Sick—Bilious Two Days a Week.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Clemmons' experience is not unusual. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better if not cured next morning.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.Q. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston Canada.

When Lawyers Fall Out.

When lawyers fall out, someone gets the deuce, to paraphrase a well known expression. In yesterday's police court, over the Sims case, Mr. G. N. Gordon offered to give $25 towards the Children's Shelter, if Mr. Goodwill could prove that it was not permissable for a wife, in a criminal case, to give evidence against her husband. The magistrate however, ended the argument with threatening to have them both arrested for contempt of court.

EMBARGO SET ON SECESSION TALK BY LIBERALS AT OTTAWA

Vituperation at Churchill Never Ceases But "Independence" is Lagging--- Quotations Read a Dozen Times Many Columns in Length

Ottawa, Ont., March 14.—The Liberals are still cursing Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill. They have been doing it now for two days and nights, and there is no sign of a recess.

As soon as one Liberal tires a fresh one takes his place, loaded up with a brand new style of vituperation.

The "independence" talk however, has somewhat ceased.

Some of the leaders grew alarmed at the trend the debate was taking, and an embargo was put on the secession talk.

However, there is no doubt that there is a strong independent feeling in a certain wing of the Liberal party. In their first rage at the character of Churchill's memorandum, which practically demolished the Liberal position, they blurted forth their real sentiments.

More moderate opinions are now being expressed, but the present outlook is that the real fight between the parties will develop on the question of secession or the unity of the Empire.

Into a Farce Again.

For the first day after the Churchill memorandum was read to the House, the debate got a little out of the rut. But it has now developed again into the same farcical monotonous six-day grind. When the men of only moderate ability at best speak three hours on a subject with which they are but little familiar and then repeat the performance some three or four times over, it is bound to be nothing but ridiculous obstruction. Some quotations have been read a dozen times, and there is probably not a paper in the country from which there have not been column quotations.

Three-Hour Speeches.

The all-night session saw a procession of back benchers drone through long quotations and strung out ten-minute talks into three hour speeches. Occasionally one of the sleeping Conservatives woke up long enough to ask a question. At 6.06, White, of Victoria, who never made more than two or three speeches in his life in the House, was started on his second effort on the naval question. His principal occupation, of course, was cursing Churchill.

Sound of the Wakers.

Hughes, of Prince Edward Island, started at 7.15. The sleeping Conservatives began to yawn and wake up. There was interruptions like the crowing of roosters and the cackle of hens. Order had to be called, and Hughes prosed away until 8.45, when Levi Thompson took up the refrain. More rude things about Churchill.

OXFORD WON THE BIG BOAT RACE

Putney, Eng., Mar. 14.—The annual eight-oared race between Oxford and Cambridge took place yesterday afternoon owing to the lateness of the tide. Cambridge won the choice of positions and the pistol was fired at 4.38. Cambridge took the lead and kept it nearly entire four miles and a quarter. At Barnsbridge, a quarter of a mile from the finish she still led, but the superior power of the Oxford eight carried them to the front and they won by a quarter of a length, making the standing of thirty-nine wins for Oxford, thirty for Cambridge and one dead heat since the institution of the race.

JOHN HAGGART DEAD WAS DEAN OF HOUSE

Former Cabinet Minister Sat Continuously Forty-One Years.

Ottawa, March 14.—Hon. John Haggart, member of Parliament for South Lanark, ex-Postmaster-General and ex-Minister of Railways and Canals, died at his rooms here yesterday after an illness of several months' duration, which, however, did not become acute until a few hours before the end.

Death was due to Bright's disease. The deceased statement had been confined to his bed for about two months The funeral will take place at Perth on Sunday at 1.30 p.m., from the family residence, where he had resided with his only sister, Mrs. I. N. Miller.

Owing to failing health he had been seen but rarely in the Commons during the past two sessions.

LUCRATIVE INVESTMENT IN A SAFE PROPOSITION

We would call the attention of our readers to an advertisement, in this issue of the Germania Realty Co., organized under the laws of Colorado on May 6th, 1912. In these days when one is seeking for safe and well paying investment of funds, one finds that bonds, real estate, mortgages, etc., confront one by, in many cases, a chance of insecurity and a universally low rate of interest.

The Germania has already placed $28,250 of its $70,000 capital, and is now offering a further block at $1 a share. By reference to the advertisement, one is assured that in a few years these $1 shares will be worth $5 each, and absolutely guaranteed. MOTHER KILLED BABE.

With Man Choked Four Months' Old Offspring.

Winnipeg, March 14.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder yesterday against Mrs. Eva Willis and Victor Pople for the death of the four months old daughter of Mrs Willis.

There was a dramatic scene when Inspector Doiron of St. Boniface Police Department, took the witness stand and testified that Mrs. Willis after being warned, broke down and admitted she helped Pople slay her daughter, Ethel Victoria, on the banks of the Red River. The Inspector said Mrs. Willis said she held the child while Pople shut off the infant's breath by holding his hand over its mouth.

DR. FRIEDMANN IN TORONTO TO-DAY TREAT 100 PATIENTS

Is Coming as Guest of Toronto University, and Arrangements Completed—How Treatment is Given

Toronto, March 14.—Dr. Friedman is a quiet, modest and unassuming man. Not noticeably nervous but most particular to have everything just right.

He is quick, alert and has piercing eyes. Talks little, but gets quick to the point.

Dr. Benjamin, his assistant, makes the preliminary examination, while Dr. Friedmann just gives the hypodermic injection of the serum.

It is all over before you really know it.

These are the outstanding features of the treatment of Dr. Friedmann, the Berlin doctor who hopes he has a cure for tuberculosis, and who at present is giving demonstrations in Canadian cities, as noticed by a Toronto man, who was the only one given the treatment in Ottawa yesterday.

The treatment was given to 17 patients altogether, and their cases were treated in the room of the General Hospital at Ottawa before a large number of doctors.

Amongst those who were there were Dr. J. H. Elliott, Dr. Caulfield, Dr. McCullough, from Toronto; Prof. Adami, Dr. C. D. Parlitt, of Gravenhurst, and Dr. Porter. Prof. Adami informed those present of the nature of the cases before the treatment was given.

Gives Two Treatments.

There are two treatments. For the joint treatment two injections are given, while in the other case only one injection.

Professor Adami informed the audience that Dr. Friedmann stated that in the first case there was a slight increase in temperature after the first injection, while in the other case the temperature remained about normal.

"Dr. Friedmann asked me one question," said the Toronto patient this morning. "He talks very little and beyond asking a couple of questions or so that was all he talked to any of the patients."

"Dr. Benjamin answered him. I was asked, 'Where's the trouble?' When this was answered I had the injection and was told that it was all over.

How Treatment is Given.

"The first thing I did was to expose the part where the injection was to be made after I had been examined. With me it was just below the left hip. The portion is first painted with iodine and then the injection is given. It was all over like a flash.

"Dr. Friedmann doesn't appear on the scene until everything is ready for the injection of the serum. Then he comes in and makes sure that everything has been sterilized. He is very particular about that, and that seems to be the only thing that is worrying him.

Improvement in 3 Weeks.

"We are supposed to notice some improvement in our condition in three weeks' time. I intend to keep track of the doctor and may see him again."

Dr. Friedman will be here to-day

DETECTIVES DISCOVER THE LEADING SUFFRAGETTE ARSENAL

Search of Residence in Kinsington District Was a Success ---Mrs. Pankhurst Goes to Scotland

London, March 14.—An extensive storehouse of destructive instruments used by the militant suffragettes in their attacks on private and public property was unearthed by detectives in the Kensington district yesterday.

Armed with a warrant for the arrest of Olive Hocken, wanted on a charge of being concerned in an attempt to burn the members' pavilion on the Roehampton Golf Links, the detectives searched an artist's studio in Campden Hill Gardens and found under the flooring three sets of telegraph wire cutting apparatus.

In other parts of the building bottles of corrosive fluid, such as has been used in letter box outrages, hammers, flint and other tools for breaking windows were discovered, as well as a number of false identification plates for automobiles.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst has recovered from her indisposition and has left for Scotland to continue her campaign.

THE ONLY WAY

The crux of the Naval Question could not be better started than in the language of a recent editorial of the London Times :—

"If Canada desires to add immediately to the fighting strength of the naval forces of the Empire, she can do so only in Mr. Borden's way. She cannot as yet build or man ships herself, and we can only help her to do so by gradual degrees. In view of these conditions Mr. Borden's is a practical as well as a patriotic plan. It offers three splendid ships to the empire to meet a pressing need and offers them on terms which the Admiralty, with a clear eye to all its responsibilities, can whole-heartedly accept. The Admiralty policy is dictated by necessity; there is no room for choice. If the proposed Canadian ships were not to be made available in the manner which Mr. Borden suggests, the Admiralty, with the best will in the world to farther the alternative plan, might still be compelled at the present juncture to keep its skilled and trained personnel for other available ships. It seems indeed that such a course may be dictated by the imperative requirements of Imperial security, which cannot be set aside in favor of any scheme, however well conceived, that neglects the present in pursuit of more distant aims. Mr. Borden's proposals will add at once to the effective naval strength of the Empire: Sir Wilfrid Laurier's would not."

RUBY BILLINGTON, STEELE'S ALLEGED VICTIM IS DYING?

Bedside Investigation Held in Home of Child's Aunt, Lasts Until After 6 o'clock and Results in Steele Being Committed For Trial

Yesterday morning, his honor, Judge Edmison, County Magistrate, held court. The Chandos man, named Steele, whose trial had been enlarged from a week previously, was charged with criminally assaulting a girl, Ruby Billington, under 14 years of age. Dr. Mann, in charge of the girl, who is ill at the home of her aunt on Sherbrooke street, testified to the child being in serious condition with heart trouble. The case was then adjourned so that the girls deposition could be taken at her aunt's house on Sherbrooke street, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

LATER.

As a result of the bedside investigation which did not conclude until about 6.30, the Magistrate constituted the house as a court and committed Steele for trial. He will probably appear before His Honor Judge Huycke for trial.

Judging by what we could learn from the investigation, it is altogether improbable that the girl will survive.

SUICIDED TOGETHER

Doctor's Wife Had Hallucinations and Girl Died With Her.

London, March 13.—Mrs. Louisa Jeffries and Natilae Jeffries, the wife and daughter of Dr. Wyman Jeffries, a Scotsman, committed suicide yesterday in a pond near Godalming, Surrey.

Dr. Jeffries himself identified the bodies to-day, declared that his wife had suffered from hallucinations and that his daughter had been overwrought by constant attendance on her.

THE TAX RATE THIS YEAR MAY BE TWENTY-FIVE MILLS

The Appropriation for the Board of Works is $28,000--- Increase From $19,000 Odd of Last Year Due To Granting Demands for Permanent Work Which Cannot be Denied

The City's Board of Works met in business session last evening, Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Johnston, Anderson, McIntyre, Duffus and Gordon.

Mr. J. C. Shook addressed the Board on the question of sewerage connection with the properties east of Harvey street on the scheme devised and ratified by the Provincial Board of Health, and urged an early prosecution of the work. The Dickson Co. will in consideration of this sewerage service being provided give to the city a three-cornered lot on the river at the north of Dublin street, for park purposes. With the exception of a few houses, the properties in question belong to the Dickson Co.

The whole Board are unanimous that this sewer is a crying need and will assure a budding up of the neighborhood to be affected and eventually net considerable revenue to the city. To give this service, a portion of present sewer work will have to be duplicated.

Mr. Shook was promised that this work will be done this year.

Concession St. Creek.

East City is demanding that the old creekbed on Concession street, which takes in a third of the street, be filled in and proper drainage afforded.

A hundred feet of this old creek, in front of the three houses mainly affected, will be filled in and a covered culvert constructed at a cost of $300.

The open ditch, opposite Mr. Beattie's property, East City, will be filled in and water-tabled, and adequate drainage of surface water into another channel provided, at a cost of $60 or $70.

Downie St. Drain.

The engineer reported that to redivert this drain and properly crib the ditch would cost $450; to concrete wall the 175 feet proposed to run through Mr. Blodgett's property he estimated at $1,000—a total of $1,450.

This plan will probably be followed out.

The Estimates.

Ald. Buller's prepared estimates called for an appropriation of $28,120 for his department this year.

His worship remarked that this would have to be chopped down to $22,000 to keep the rate down to 24 mills.

The Board felt that all the work mapped out must be done this year, including Downie street drain and other permanent work chopped off for years past, even if the Finance Department's estimate of 24 mills is to be raised by one mill.

His worship and Ald. Anderson here wondered if sufficient paring could not be done to get off with an increase of half a mill above the 24 mills previously figured out.

Ald. Buller and Johnston contended that the rate might just as well be fixed at 25 mills and not embarrass the Board of Works with an overdraft in 1913 as last year.

The Board here started to wade through their estimates, axe in hand, with a view to "chopping off" if possible. They had not proceeded far before concluding the task to be hopeless. Finally, however, it was decided to on motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, fix the Board's appropriation at $28,000, $420 less than originally asked for.

MOTHER WANTS CHILDREN.

Are Forcibly Kept in a Roman Catholic Institution in Toronto — Mother Pleads for Her Little Ones.

Special to The Times.

Toronto, Mar. 13.—A legal battle has been going on for some time for the possession of two Protestant children who are forcibly kept in a Roman Catholic institution. The two tiny tots, Ilene Maher and Francis Maher are at present in the St. Vincent de Paul Children's Aid Society, and their mother, now Mrs. Mary H. Metcalfe, is applying for their delivery to her.

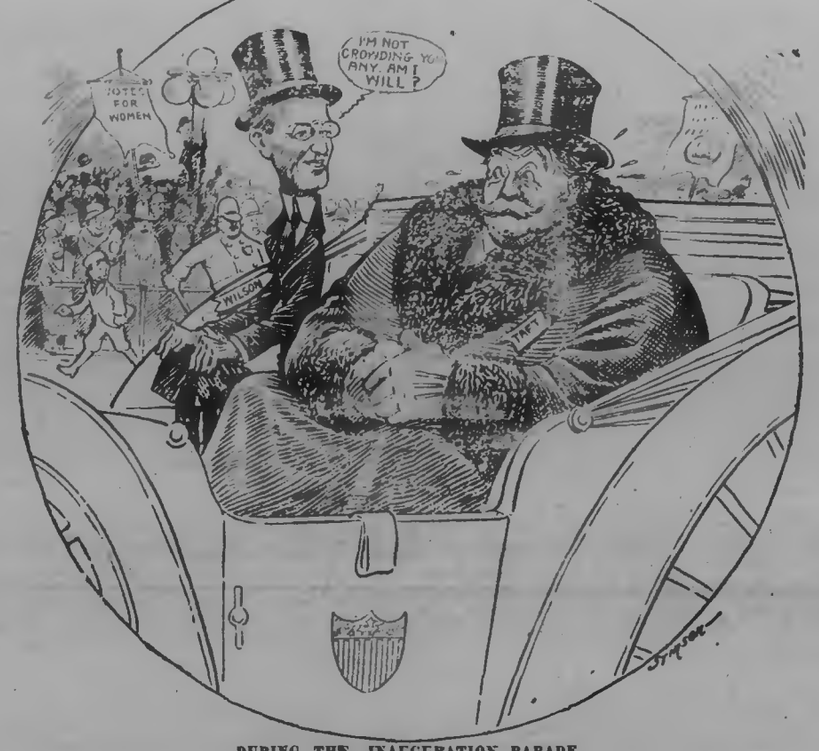
The contention of the applicant is that she is a Protestant, and that the children were brought up Protestants, and although their father was a Roman Catholic he was married to the mother of the children by a Protestant minister. Alternatively the applicant craves for the transference of the children to a Protestant home.

Mr. L. T. Monaghan, barrister, argued the case for the Society, while Mr. A. R. Hassard represented the mother, at the trial which is now going on at the non-jury Assize Court.

THE WEATHER.

To-day — Southerly winds, mild with occasional showers.

BOY LOSES BOTH LEGS FOR SECOND TIME IN FOUR YEARS



Westbury, Long Island, March 14.—William Fitting, a nineteen year old lad, lost both of his legs for a second time yesterday. The first time was four years ago, when he fell under a railway train near the station at Glenhead. On artificial limbs he was standing at the station here yesterday when he saw a woman crossing the tracks in front of an express train. Recalling the accident which had befallen him, he shouted a warning to the woman but she did not heed and young Fitting stumped his way to the tracks and dragged her from danger, only to fall himself across the rails. Other persons on the platform saw the lad run over by the train and when it came to a stop they rushed to him. He was picked up legless, but not in the least wounded, as the locomotive wheels had only broken off his wooden legs.

DR. ROCHE GAINING.

Felt More Pain During the Night, But is Comfortable To-day.

Rochester, Minn., March 14.—Dr. W. J. Roche spent a somewhat restless night until about 12 o'clock.

His temperature and pulse this morning were about normal, however which is a pleasing indication. The patient is feeling comfortable to-day although suffering more pain, which is to be expected. Sonditions are very favorable.

DURING THE INAUGURATION PARADE.

TURKISH CRUISER SHELLS FOUR SERVIAN TRANSPORTS

Cettinje, Montenegro, March 13.—Four Servian transports conveying strong detachments of troops to assist the Montenegrins in their siege of the Fortress of Scutari were badly riddled yesterday by shells from the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh at San Giovanna de Medua. Two of the transports were set on fire.

A telegram alleges that the Hamidieh flew the Austro-Hungarian flag.

Another report doubts whether the war vessel was the Hamidieh at all and says that the cruiser resembled a vessel of the Austrian Kaiserin class.

SCRIBER'S HEN COST $10,95 BUT STILL LIVES

Yesterday afternoon his honor, Judge Edmison, County Magistrate, held court. Charles Scriber, formerly of the garbage service, was charged with assault on Miss Matthews, Scriber's step-daughter.

The first witness was the complainant. The trouble began with the killing of a hen on March 9th. Witness went to kill a hen. Scriber ran out and told her she was interfering. He struck her with his hand. Scriver took away a stick she had grabbed in self defense and then choked her. Stella Harrison was present.

To Mr. Corkery, she said the hens belonged to her mother. She asked Scriber which was the oldest hen and he said she was taking too much on herself. She struck Scriber back with her hand.

Miss Harrison saw the fight in full and corroborated the evidence of the former witness.

Witness told Scriber she would strike him, if he did not leave her sister alone. Her sister then phoned for the police. She and her sister left to stop with friends on Downie street.

Mr. Scriber said that the hen in question was laying. He told her not to kill it. His step-daughter picked up a shovel and threatened to brain him. He owned the fowl. He denied striking the girl.

Miss Matthews recalled, denied having a shovel in her hand. She made no threats.

Mr. G. N. Gordon for the plaintiff made a short address, as did Mr. Corkery for the defence. The magistrate fined Scriber $1 and $9.35 costs. The hen still lives.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation. The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at

$275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

BIRTHPLACE OF ASTORS

Famous Old House in Montreal to be Torn Down

In the course of demolishing old buildings to make way for modern structures in Montreal there is to be pulled down an historical building.

It is the house in which the Astor family had its birth; that is, so far as the laying of the foundation stone of the fortune of the family is concerned. The original Jacob Astor lived in this house, which looked out upon the river, before the view was obscured; counted his skins in the basement; counted, also, no doubt, his profits, as one of the originators of the fur company, which proved a formidable rival to the Hudson's Bay Company and made Montreal its headquarters.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When the worst comes to the worst the Liberal party are apparently trying to make the best of it.

If this endurance test at Ottawa continues, the patience of the Canadian people is likely to give out long before either of the parties is exhausted.

The reports from Ottawa show that while the excitement is at fever heat no one has yet been trampled to death in the rush to listen to the debate on the Naval Bill.

Rev. Dr. Rankin of Toronto predicts that Ontario will be rid of the open bar in fifteen years. But this prediction is rather cold comfort for Mr. Rowell and the Liberal party.

Pet snakes seem to be the latest craze of London society women. It is disgusting, but as an occupation for idle women it is no doubt less dangerous than the craze of suffragism.

The German press is blaming the increased armaments on France. The wolf blamed the lamb for muddying the stream. What followed as a natural result was that the wolf had lamb for dinner.

It seems that Calgary is to become the centre of a Mormon propaganda. Why not? This country is free for the expression of religious faith. If the question of polygamy should rise it could be dealt with in the law courts.

The heiress of the house of Krupp will have to pay $1,800,000 as her share of the new German war taxes. As the proceeds of the special rax will be spent largely in the construction of armaments, the Krupp estate will doubtless be amply recouped for its contribution.

Liberals may taunt the Conservatives with eternally waving the "old flag." Still waving the "old flag" is a thousand times better for loyal Canadians than reading the declaration of independence on the floor of the House and hinting at a revolution, because those same Liberals are debarred from handling the treasury of Canada.

SWITZERLAND PREPARING.

The Swiss federal authorities evidently regard the European situation with the greatest apprehension. During the last two months they have been witnessing on the French and German frontiers large masses of troops gradually collecting, and today the frontier forts, especially Belfort and those opposite it from Mulhouse to Istein, opposite Basle, are on a war footing. Among the garrisons are many officers and soldiers, French and German, who were recently withdrawn from Switzerland, where they had been working or living.

Ever since January 1 the federal authorities have been taking precautionary measures and official notices have been published in the newspapers to the effect that "in the event of war all the Swiss in Europe (naming the various countries) must return to the army immediately, while in the second zone countries, including America, Swiss who are liable to military duty must be in readiness to return." There is to be no mobilization in Switzerland, as "the Elite," who number 100,000, can be at their posts in 24 hours, 250,000 in 48 hours and half a million with a week, as the officers and men have their rifles, ammunition and uniforms and all the other paraphernalia at home. Cereals of all kinds have been ordered from the United States and Canada. The usual Russian supply failed owing to the Balkan war, but is now beginning to arrive and is replenishing the government's almost empty storehouses. The farmers have been warned to have their horses in good condition and the chief surgeons and doctors have received official letters from Berne. One of these asks the doctor to state whether he would like to follow the ambulance service in the field or remain at the base hospitals in the towns.

POET'S CORNER

Readers are invited to contribute to this column. Matter to be either original or otherwise.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

(Published by Request).

There is many a rest in the road of life,
If we only would stop to take it,
And many a tone from the better land,
If the querulous heart would make it!
To the sunny soul that is full of hope,
And whose beautiful trust ne'er faileth,
The grass is green and the flowers are bright,
Though the wintry storm prevaileth.

Better to hope, though the clouds hang low,
And to keep the eyes still lifted:
For the sweet blue sky will soon peep through
When the ominous clouds are gifted.
There was never a night without a day,
Or an evening without a morning,
And the darkest hour, as the proverb goes,
Is the hour before the dawning.

There is many a gem in the path of life,
Which we pass in our idle pleasure,
That is richer far than the jeweled crown,
Or the miser's hoarded treasure;
It may be the love of a little child,
Or a mother's prayers to Heaven;
Or only a beggar's grateful thanks
For a cup of water given.

Better to weave in the web of life
A bright and golden filling,
And to do God's will with a ready heart
And hands that are swift and willing,
Than to snap the delicate, slender threads
Of our curious lives asunder,
And then blame Heaven for the tangled ends,
And sit, and grieve, and wonder.

Quit Sniffling, Stop Sneezing, Cure Your Cold Now!

Thousands of Cases Prove the Quickest Cure is Catarrhozone.

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infest the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhozone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs — kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhozone," writes Isabel Fry, of Seguin Falls, Ont. "I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, bad breath and indigestion. Catarrhozone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invaluable in colds, sore throat and bronchial trouble." Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00, and contains two months treatment; smaller size, 25c. and 50c. all druggists and storekeepers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Second. Are the men behind the enterprise honest, experienced and expert in that kind of business?

This business was originally started three years ago practically without capital and today has assets worth nearly $30,000.00, besides paying good dividends.

With a paid up capital of $70,000.00 distributed among Bankers, Real Estate Men, Attorneys and Investors we are sure to do much better in the next three years.

TO MEMBERS OF OVERSEAS CLUB

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I should be obliged if you would allow me to appeal through the columns of your widely read paper to all members of the "Overseas Club." An effort is being made to form a branch of the Club here, and I should be glad if members who read this would kindly communicate with me at the address below. All who would like to become members and all who would like information are earnestly asked to communicate with me, and will gladly give any information to all and any who desire it. There are many branches of the club in Canada and in all parts of the Empire. Its objects are worthy and commendable and deserve the best support of thinking men and women; it is independent of party, race or creed and is open to all British subjects. REPLY TO "OLD FOGEY."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In reply to your correspondent "Old Fogey," in The Times of Mar. 10th, let me tell "Old Fogey" he need not worry. We were waiting at the corner of Brock and Aylmer at 11 p.m., to keep an appointment made at Brock street rink.

Our mothers are members of the Children's Aid Society, Woman's Council and Mothers' Club; they and not the city "regulate" our affairs.

"Old Fogey" is behind the times. The liberty of young people is not regulated by the city but by our mothers, through societies and clubs, and as they are kept busy between times, attending bridge parties, teas and receptions, there is not much time to keep watch on our doings, so we are left to take care of ourselves, and I guess we know how to have the most fun.

Yours sincerely,

One of the Girls Old Fogey Saw.

Artificial Method by Use of Electricity Highly Successful

A novel electrical method of treating timber is said to have given striking results in France and to have changed the greenest wood into perfectly seasoned material. A watertight tank of suitable size is required.

The timber is piled on a large lead plate at the bottom until the tank is full, when a second lead plate is placed on top of the pile and connected to the negative pole of a dynamo, the bottom connected to the positive pole. The space around the timber is then filled with a solution containing 5 per cent. of resin, 10 per cent. of borax and a trace of carbonate of soda.

On turning on the current it passes from plate to plate, through the wood, driving out the sap, and the resin and borax takes its place in the cells and interstices. The process being completed the timber is taken out and dried, when it is ready for ...

AFFECTIONATE CAESAR

Everybody knows the fondness of the Queen-mother for animals. But a pathetic interest attaches to her closest companion to-day. This is none other than Caesar, the late King Edward's favorite dog. For long this royal pet mourned his master, but he found solace in constant association with the bereaved Queen. He now refuses to leave her, night or day. Queen Alexandra has nothing in common with the society women who deck their canine pets in fine clothes and feed them on the choicest meats. Caesar's only ornament is the silver badge on his collar, bearing his name. Discipline and wholesome food are good for dogs as for children, says the Queen. Caesar feeds mainly on ordinary biscuits, but he has the privilege of sleeping in the apartments of his royal mistress

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

PROMINENT LEADERS LIKELY TO TAKE PART IN NEW REVOLT IN MEXICO.

GENERAL FIGUEROA, WHO COMMANDS 10,000 RURALES IN REVOLT

Suppressing one revolt in its very beginning, the new Provisional President of Mexico to-day faces active insurrection in at least five Mexican States and disaffection in as many more. Nothing but a display of iron handed rule and unusual military ability, it is asserted, can suffice to maintain him in power.

Most formidable of all the half dozen revolutions in progress in various parts of the country is that of General Ambrosiano Figueroa, the Inspector General of the Rurales, who has placed himself at the head of ten thousand men in the State of Guerrero ready to oppose General Huerta.

General Figueroa has always supported the existing government. He was loyal to Diaz when he was in power and later to Madero. The report in Mexico City is that the treachery through which Madero was deposed prompted him to revolt. General Figueroa is of Spanish descent. He was educated at Cornell, is a remarkable military leader and politician and has a great personal following.

The Tlalpam cadets were among the first to revolt and are taking a prominent part in the new revolution.

Brigadier General F. A. Smith is in command of the Fifth Brigade of the Second Division of the United States Army, consisting of three thousand men in all, which has been ordered to Galveston, Texas, where they can be swiftly transported to Mexico.

FISH IN THE PACIFIC

New Field of Industry to be Opened Up

The herring fisheries alone of Yarmouth and Lowestoft brought in last year $5,000,000 to the owners and fishermen and gave employment ashore to thousands of men and women. As a result of only 10 weeks work one drifter or fishing boat has been known to earn over $11,000. Yarmouth employs 150 steamers in the work and Lowestoft 230. A steam drifter usually carries 10 men all working on the sharing system. In one day 1,206,410,200 herrings were caught at the two ports mentioned which gives some idea of the enormous quantity handled by the fleet as well as by the railways on shore.

As compared with this the fisheries of British Columbia are said to be the best in the world to-day and wait only for the completion of the steel into Prince Rupert to reach their full development. Halibut in Hecate Straits range from 50 to 300 pounds each and there are halibut banks in all directions. The spring or king salmon off Langara Island are caught by the Indians in incredible numbers. The "colachan" giats the rivers of the province for six weeks every year while all the small streams are crowded with coboe, hump-back and dog-salmon.

Massenet's Manuscripts.

By his will Massenet left his manuscript music to the Opera, but it will not be placed in the archives of the National Academy of Music until after the death of Mme. Massenet. The deceased composer expressed the wish that his wife should remain in charge of the manuscripts because their careful arrangement, classification and preservation had been wholly her work. France has a jealous eye upon Massenet relics, for the memory of her composer is very dear to her.

Every day some anecdote of the musician appears in the newspapers, of which the following, taken from the Figaro, is typical. A critic was indulging in extravagant praise of Massenet to his face, and wound up his flattery: "Wagner? What was he? His talent is most absurdly exaggerated. I have to pick and choose among a lot of rubbish in Wagner." "Is that so?" came the composer's suave reply. "I should be quite happy with what you leave."

Obstructed Order.

Owens—How do you do, Mr. Shears. What can you show me in the way of a new suit today?

His Tailor—Your bill, sir—that is decidedly in the way of a new suit.

Burying San Francisco.

He was a wealthy youth, blessed with plenty of money, and a great number of people were ready to take it away from him. He lived in San Francisco, which city, according to reliable report, is as full of speed and action after dark as Ty Cobb is when he steals home with the winning run.

One night the young man, full of check books and ideas, hired a string of 40 cabs and hacks, and, forming them in single file, led the procession down Market street, the principal thoroughfare of San Francisco. His walk was slow, grand and impressive, and the vehicles followed him at a snail's pace. It looked like the funeral of a pet dog or a Mohammedan.

Suddenly a policeman ran out and put about his neck strong but uncaressing fingers.

"What are you trying to do?" asked the officer of the law.

"Why," said the leader of the procession solemnly, "this town is dead, and I'm burying it."—The Popular Magazine.

What a Rat Will do

Almost unbelievable are some of the things done by the rat, the squealing, filthy, gluttonous, all-pervading, all-destroying brown rat. Rats often gnaw the hoofs of horses until the blood comes. They have been known to attack fat hogs and eat holes in their bodies, causing death. They often steal valuable articles to help them in building nests.

The following were found in a single nest: Three bedroom towels, two serviettes, five dust cloths, two pairs of linen knickerbockers, six linen pocket handkerchiefs, and one silk handkerchief. This rat, which was a model of industry and thrift, had carried away and stored near its nest 1¼ lbs. of sugar, a pudding, a stalk of celery, a beet, carrots, turnips, and potatoes.

In the last dozen years over 5,000,000 human beings have died of plague in India alone. The Indian Plague Commission, after careful enquiry, found that bubonic plague in man is entirely dependent on the disease of the rat.

Manitoba Grain Elevators

One hundred and seventy-two grain elevators scattered throughout Manitoba, at present the property of the provincial government, will probably pass under the control of the Grain Growers' Association, the farmers' organization which for a number of years past has been active in the grain business. Title to the elevators will continue to be vested in the government, and the company will pay $66,000 a year as rental charges.

Insoluble Problems

It is said on good authority that there is a state of chaos at the British National Insurance Commission's office, that some of the problems of interpretation put to the Commission cannot be solved, and that financial problems of much difficulty have arisen.

BISHOP FOR FIFTY YEARS

Oldest Catholic Missionary Lives In Far North

The celebration at Grouard, at the western end of Lesser Slave Lake, of the fiftieth anniversary of Bishop Grouard the oldest active Roman Catholic missionary in Canada will be remembered as one of the most unusual and picturesque events in the entire life of the north.

Long before the date for the opening ceremonies Indians began arriving with their squaws and papooses from every point of the compass, and by the most primitive means of transportation, to do honor to the occasion. This great band of aborigines—of which there were at least a thousand—were dressed in their gaudiest costumes, and the riot of color was very magnificent.

The Indians encamped all along the northwest shore of the lake, and the trails of blue smoke arising out of the crests of the creamy white tepees made wavy lines against the green of the foliage and the deeper blue of the sky.

The ceremony began with a reception and was followed by mass and various sports.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. MAKING BOGUS BILLS

Canadians Are Well Protected But Counterfeiters Are Often Clever

There are many obstacles in the way of the counterfeiter of Canadian bank notes or government bills, according to the statement of a former employe of the American Bank Note Co., the firm which manufactures Canada's paper money. First of all the counterfeiter has much trouble in securing paper which will prove a good substitute for the paper used by the government. His next greatest obstacle, and the greatest of all, is to secure ink similar to that used by the government. The paper used by the government is made at Dalton, Mass., by a secret process. It contains the familiar silk thread. Several counterfeiters had baffled, to a certain extent, the authorities by using a high grade of onion paper. Two sheets were used. The silk threads were placed between and the sheets glued together. As to the ink, the government uses a very expensive kind and when anyone other than a government employee or some bank note company makes a purchase it is very easy for the detectives to trace it. It is easier to trace the purchase of ink than paper, as many corporations use the high grade onion paper for letter heads, etc.

In the case of the counterfeit bills which have been circulated in large numbers, apparently from Hamilton, a good bill was photographed and a copper plate made. A plate was made for each side of the bill. The bill gives the impression that it has been soiled on the back, except around the edges, which showed that the plate was none too good and not made by an expert, the clean edges leading to detection at once.

The best bogus bills are made by the lithographic, or steel plate system. However, a man may be expert at the engraving business, and still be unable to make a duplicate on the geometrical lathe, which is the machine used in making bank bill plates. The expert may make a very strong resemblance of the original, but there will be a difference and one used to the business could detect it.

SEA-GOING CAT'S DEATH

Mascot of Tunisian Deliberately Committed Suicide

Evidently tired of sea life and not caring to eke out a precarious existence ashore, "Prince," a plump, slick coated, black cat, one of the mascots of the Allan liner Tunisian, deliberately ended its ninth life by committing suicide at Montreal as the ship was leaving the wharf en route to Liverpool.

The big ship had got away from the end of the wharf several feet when Prince appeared on the main deck. He looked at the wharf, turned and scanned the deck, then quickly wheeled around again and with a "skip-howl leaped towards the dock and fell with a splash into the surging water.

Some longshoremen who saw the cat fall into the water tried to save it, but Prince avoided their attempts and in a few minutes was sucked under by the strong current caused by the moving ship.

An official investigation into the claim that Jose Calavario, who died recently at Turpan, Mexico, was 185 years old, has been made, and it is announced that it was fully established by church records that he was born in 1727.

During a period of more than 75 years before his death he was known to the people of the town where he lived as the oldest man in the world.

He was active in getting about the streets until a few days before his death.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

"Had you heard any shooting in the woods, before that?"

"Shooting?" she queried, apparently surprised. "No. Was some one shooting?"

"I understood so. Poaching, I imagine. After some of Cameron's fat pheasants."

"But it's out of season," she declared, promptly.

"That makes small difference with a poacher."

Her belief in her ability to lead me to the tree of which we were in quest was not unfounded. Twice she paused and peered in between the gray trunks which grew close to our path; once she took a step off the trail, bending in keen-eyed search of certain familiar landmarks. These were the only interruptions to what was otherwise a straight march to the goal.

When, at length, we reached it, she identified it beyond question, and I had little difficulty in finding the nail from which the piece of canvas had been suspended. It was one of thin wire, with very small head, driven into the tree at a distance of about four and a half feet from the ground. Just beneath it I found four scattering bullet holes, with the bullets too deeply embedded to be extracted with so poor a tool as a pocket knife.

From this it was evident that the shots had been fired at comparatively short range, as indeed they must have been, seeing that the trees here grew so thickly as to make impossible any very extended line of sight upon the target.

Somewhat to Evelyn's perplexity I began making a careful inspection of the ground, not only about the tree, but as far away from it as the range of vision extended.

"What are you looking for?" she demanded, with a show of concern, and, I thought, a little peevishly.

"Footprints," I answered laughing. "Behold the American Sherlock!"

"Have you found any?"

"Only Cinderella's," and that put her in good humor.

But I found something of much more importance than the indentations of shoe soles. I found it very near the foot of the tree, just below where the painting had hung. It was half hidden by underbrush, and at first I mistook it for a stone. Unobserved by Evelyn, I slipped it into my pocket.

"After all," I said to her, "there's not very much to be learned here, is there?"

CHAPTER V.

Found Dead.

My motor boat, which had been running swiftly and smoothly, with the least possible clamor from the exhaust, suddenly missed a stroke and then, after a succession of choking sobs, ceased all effort, and gradually losing headway, drifted idly with the tide.

"Well done, Jerry," I whispered from my seat in the stern to the capable young Irishman who was bending over the motor—whispered, because, as all the world knows, the water is a sounding board, and I had no intention of permitting any one on shore to hear my words of approval.

To all appearances the motor had broken down, and we were voyagers in distress.

"The tide's settin' in," murmured Jerry. "Unless I miss me guess it'll land us on his beach inside o' five minutes, sir."

The slender scallop of a new moon had set an hour before, but the night was luminously clear, and the stars blazed with an almost southern effulgence. There was very little breeze and the waters of the Mianus were scarcely rippled. The air was chill, however, though now and then there came to us a warm breath from the fields which all day long had lain baking in the fervent sunshine. Along the shore to our left we caught the glint of lights from the summer cottages.

To Jerry Rooney every inch of the little bay and river was familiar. Each light was for him a landmark; and so, as much by intuition as careful calculation, he had clogged the engine at a point whence, taking tide and current into consideration, we might count upon drifting to the water end of Artist Murphy's lawn.

As we drew nearer and he stealthily pointed out to me the location, I was able to descry a little grove of trees, black in the starlight, making a horizontal barrier across the limited enclosure, and hiding, like a rope portiere, the bungalow from the river. Through this no lights penetrated, and I began to doubt that, after all my pains, I should find at home the object of their taking.

A catboat, with sail wrinkling in the uncertain breeze, glided by us, almost too near for comfort, and we caught a sentence, two sentences, in

"Nobody knows him," in clear, ringing masculine tones; and, "He's handsome, if he is surly," in a woman's voice.

I wondered if they were speaking of Murphy. My telephone inquiry of Cameron and subsequent questioning of the men about my place had proved to me that both observations would apply. No one seemed to know very much of this brawny, sandy giant, in spite of his two year's residence in the neighborhood.

Now the shore's shadow was engulfing us, and the next moment, with a gentle swish of waters, we felt the boat's bottom grate on the pebbly beach. There was a landing a short distance further up—a spindling wooden pier—and to this Jerry, knee deep in the black water, turned the boat and made it fast.

The prospect which confronted us as we walked shoreward over the creaking planks was about as hospitable as the grim walls of a prison. The tree barrier rose stark and forbidding a dozen yards away. Between it and the river was a combination of pebbles, sand, high grass, and ragged overgrown lawn, faintly visible in the starlight. On nearer approach, however, we found an opening in the curtain of trees, a veritable valley of shadow, through which we passed to a strip of neglected sward and a squat, unpainted weather-beaten cottage of a single story, with vine-screened verandah.

And in what seemed to us the very center of the house front, there shone a tiny glowing point of red fire. We had not come altogether in vain. By all the odds of chance, it was a safe conclusion that Murphy, in propria persona, was behind that lighted end of a cigar. Then we saw the point move, describing a half circle, and simultaneously a voice rang out—a deep, sonorous voice, but of churlish intonation:

"What do you want here?"

I suppose he expected me to come dash, and as I answered him, I covered that distance.

"My motor boat ran out of gasolene," I said, "and drifted to your beach. I was in hopes we might borrow enough to get us home."

I saw him now, dimly, in the shadowed recess. He was seated facing me, a creature of great bulk, with huge head and ponderous shoulders.

"I don't keep gasolene," was his gruff response.

"I thought—" I began, but his next utterance drowned my words.

"I say I don't keep it," he reiterated, in louder tones. "Isn't that plain?"

"Oh, quite. You have neither gasolene nor good manners."

I saw him rise, a massive tower, dwarfing his surroundings, and take a step forward to the edge of his porch.

"This is my house and my castle," he flung at me, savagely, "and I won't stand for trespassers. If you two don't want to be flung off my property, it would be advisable for you to make haste in going."

My laugh was not calculated to salve his ill humor, yet I think he must have gathered from it that I was not to be terrorized by either his size or his threats.

"Your name's Murphy, I think," I ventured, calmly, not moving an inch. But he made no response.

"Mine is Clyde," I went on; "I am one of the state game wardens."

"I'm not interested in who you are," he growled.

"But I'm interested in learning what your Chinaman was shooting this morning, over on the Cameron place."

"Then find out," was his courteous retort. "I'm sure I shan't tell you."

"Maybe the Chinaman will be more obliging," I suggested, and turning to Jerry, who had stood in silence, all the while, a few steps behind me, I said: "Look around at the back, my lad, and if you can find Mr. Murphy's man fetch him here."

big man in the shadow of the verandah was storming:

"He'll stop just where he is. If he dares to come another step nearer this house, I'll throw the pair of you over the hedge, neck and crop. Do you hear me?"

"And if you dare to interfere with an officer or his deputy in the discharge of his duty, the authorities will settle with you," was my calm rejoinder. "Trot ahead, Jerry! His bark's worse than his bite."

Jerry, quick to obey, disappeared on the instant around the corner of the bungalow, and Murphy, after a pretended dash forward, halted on the lower porch step.

"See here!" he demanded, cumbrously. "What's all this, anyhow? You come here after gasolene, ostensibly, and then declare you're game wardens after a law-defying, Chinese poacher."

At last I saw him half-way amenable to reason. Now that he was out of the shadow, I saw too, more clearly, what manner of man he was. His head, as I had already discerned it through the gloom, was abnormally large, yet not out of proportion with his herculean torso. His red hair, frowsy, unkempt, was of such abundance that, in the dark, its outline had given me a grotesquely magnified impression. His red beard, too, was thick, long, and untrimmed. What little of his face showed, was sunburned to what, in the dim light, seemed the color of ripe russet apples. His eyes were nearly indiscernible, deep set, under bushy red brows.

"If you had shown the least bit of humanity to brother men in distress," I responded, in a half jocular vein, "I'd probably never thought of this being your place, and you being you; and the incident of the morning might have been forgotten."

I thought I heard his teeth grit together in his effort to suppress a rising rage. I certainly saw his hands clench; and then, with an assumption of indifference, he took a final puff among the woods of his lawn.

It was evident to me, now, that in spite of the nonchalance he affected, my reference to the Chinaman's poaching, and his presence at Craigbolt, had aroused his interest, and so hoping to draw him out, I continued

"Your man told the lodge-keeper that you sent him over to borrow a rifle."

"You don't mean to tell me you'd believe a Chinaman, do you?" he returned.

"It wasn't for me to believe or disbelieve. The lodge-keeper believed him."

"And so he borrowed a rifle, and then with one of Cameron's own instruments of destruction proceeded to destroy Cameron's game? Is that it? What did he shoot? A deer or one of those starved-looking white dogs that Cameron has following him about?"

Apparently Murphy knew much more of my friend than my friend knew of Murphy.

"Neither, I fancy. In fact, I'm not sure just what he did shoot in the way of game. But he seems to have indulged in a bit of target practice. He found a piece of an old portrait, tacked it to a tree, and shot holes in it. Rather silly, eh? Foolish for him to chance getting into trouble for child's play of that sort."

"How do you know that?" he growled, with an inadvertent dropping of his mask. There was no mistaking, now, that I had made captive his attention.

"I saw the target," I answered, simply.

"That's like saying, 'I caught a twelve-pound bass. Here's the hook and line to prove it.'"

"I have a scale of the bass."

"A what?"

"Something your Chinaman dropped beside the tree."

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE---"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel and Pills Act on Liver and Bowels like Pepper acts in Nostrils — Danger!

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

GUESTS DINE FIRE RAGING

Great Throng Watches Firemen Fight Flames in a Fourteen Story Hotel

ELEVATORS SHUT OFF

One Demure Little Lady Asks For Her Coffee Before Water From Roof Trickles Through to Cool It.

New Orleans, Mar. 13.—A stubborn fire which threatened the $2,000,000 Grunewald Hotel was discovered at 8 o'clock last night by three of the hotel's porters in the elevator machinery room, just above the thirteenth floor. The blaze was conquered by firemen after a half hour's hard work. The damage will not exceed $3,000.

Engine No. 13, kept a stream on the damaged room until 10 o'clock. Five fire pumps in the building were not called into service. The large water tank on the roof could not be used because the flames licked the standpipes.

Although the streets surrounding the building were jammed with people who watched the flames and smoke leaping from the windows 150 feet above the sidewalk, the guests of the hotel dined quietly or strolled leisurely about the lobby and parlors. The clerks continued to register guests and service was not interrupted for a minute. The hotel orchestra continued playing while the firemen were fighting the flames and water was dripping down the elevator shafts and stairways.

The flames as they shot skyward from the top of the building, made a spectacular blaze and could be clearly discerned for miles around and it looked as though the big hostelry was doomed to destruction.

The origin of the fire was not discovered. The blaze started in the workroom just over the top of the elevator shaft nearest University Place, and about fifty feet from the wireless station on the roof. A few minutes after it was discovered the elevator's mechanism was out of order.

Chief Pujol then sought an elevator to return to the ground floor. He discovered that the elevator tender would not resp ond to his ring and was compelled to "foot it" all the way down the fourteen flights.

Assistant Chief Lefaux led the advance guard of firemen with 600 feet of hose and attempted to take it up by elevator when the mechanism of the conveyance went wrong.

When a sweet, demure little person attired in fashion's latest, dining alone in a large hotel, calmly replies to the waiter's information that the hotel is burning: "Hurry my coffee, please, before the water starts dripping into it in the kitchen," it is time for the anti-suffragettes to go over to the opposition.

Three drunks decorated the dock at the police court yesterday, and all pleaded guilty to the charges lodged against them and they were assessed $2 each.

THE TAX RATE THIS YEAR

The increase in the Board's appropriation this year is to provide for much needed permanent improvements put off from year to year to avoid expenditure. It includes provision for Downie street drain, drainage work in East City, sewerage for properties east of Harvey street., etc.

From present indications it is hard to conceive how the city will get off with less than a 25 mill rate, although an effort may be made by his worship and Ald. Anderson to suggest sufficient paring here and there in the several departments to reduce this rate by half a mill.

Woman of New York Underworld Tells of "Graft" Tolls.

New York, March 13.—Quite the most amazing of the mass of police graft testimony gleamed by District Attorney Whitman yesterday was that of "Eve" Stacom, seventy-four years of age, Feeble, her palsied hands grasping a knotted cane, this once "beauty" of the underworld admitted that in thirty-five years, during which she had kept disorderly houses, she had paid agents of the police "system" more than $350,000

Until four or five years ago her contributions varied from $6,000 to $18,000.

Lindsay Man's Narrow Escape.

Mr. James McGahey, of Lindsay, drayman, had a narrow escape from serious injury a few days ago. He was unloading a hog from his sleigh at the market during blasting operations at the storm sewer near the park of that town, when a big bowlder came through the air and struck the sleigh a few inches from where Mr. McGahey was standing. The bowlder came with such force that it made an indention on the hard, wood sleigh rack, clipping off a portion of the wood.

VOL. XL, NO. 63. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY MARCH 15, 1913. PRICE, TWO CENTS

A GENERAL ELECTION IS THE LAST THING PLANNED

No Reason for Appealing to Country to Gratify Liberal Whim—Never More United

Ottawa, March 15.—Never has the Conservative party been more united or unanimous upon an issue than the present Government is on the Navy Bill. Mr Borden is not only recognized as the leader of the party, but he is receiving the loyal support which testifies to the strength of his position with Cabinet and members.

Election Last Thing Thought of.

An election is the last thing anticipated by the Government. The Liberals are disorganized, they are divided in council, and they are fighting not for an issue, but for political supremacy. While it is believed that an appeal to the electorate would result in the return of the Conservative party by an overwhelming majority, there is nothing in the Liberal argument to justify such a course.

Permanent Policy to Come.

Never in the history of Dominion politics has there been an Opposition so devoid of any platform and so controlled by personal motives. By continued misrepresentation, the Liberals have endeavored to convince themselves that Mr. Borden has no permanent policy, but contemplates continued "contributions." The attitude is not justified by the facts. The Prime Minister in introducing his emergency bill, pledged the government to a permanent policy of Canadian naval construction. The contention that there is no emergency is equally without foundation. The Liberal argument in this instance is actuated by the desire to represent the Board of Admiralty as the "tool" of the Conservative party. The repeated assertions that the first naval authorities in the Empire are deliberately misrepresenting the European situation to further the interests of a Canadian party, are as justified as they are ridiculous.

The continued attempt to represent Hon. Robert Rogers as opposing the Premier for the leadership of the Government is founded only upon the desperate desire of the Liberals to create friction in the Conservative ranks.

"Closure" May Be Applied.

"Closure" is the question of the moment. The Government may either consent to a continuation of the obstructionist tactics until the whole administrative machinery is wrecked by the Opposition, or it may exert its proper authority and compel the Liberals to accept their responsibilities as representatives of a minority of the Canadian people.

ATTACK BY AIRSHIP QUITE IMPOSSIBLE

Montreal, March 15.—Anton Selander, a naturalized Swede, claims to have discovered a method whereby attack by airship is impossible. The plan is a profound secret, to be told only to Col. Sam. Hughes for better defence of the British Empire. Aeroplanes, he says, can be destroyed at any height, visible or invisible, in any weather. His scheme is so simple that a child can operate it, but unfailing in effect. It is to laugh it is so easy says Selander. He is a former officer in the Swedish army, and came to this country six years ago. He is not an aviator or engineer, but, is filled with patriotism for Canada and England. He is a lumber merchant at St. Gabriel de Brandoo, Quebec.

THREE HUNDRED SHOT DOWN BY THE SERVIANS

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, March 14.—Three hundred Albanian inhabitants of the district of Liuma in the Turkish province of Kossova, were yesterday shot without trial by Servian troops, according to a despatch from Uskup to the Frankfort Gazette.

The inhabitants of the district totalled 400. They were unarmed peasants and did not follow the example of the rest of the Albanians in fleeing to the mountains.

All were captured by a column of Servian troops, who, after shooting 300 of them, brought the surviving hundred as prisoners to Prisrend, the capital of the Provance.

From Headquarters

What Answer can Be Made to the Following Opinion?

"Two things are clear. In the first place, there can be no practical development of local fleets, unless provision is made for the training of officers and men in considerable advance of the construction of ships. In the second place, naval development on those lines can add nothing to the effective strength of the Empire for some years to come. It is no doubt with a clear regard to these considerations that Mr. Borden's naval proposals have taken their present form."

POOR AND RICH ALIKE ARE TREATED BY FRIEDMANN,

Distressing Scenes in and About the New General Hospital ---Patients Were of All Ages

Toronto, March 15th.—Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, the Berlin physician inoculated nearly 100 patients at the Pathological Building of the new General Hospital, University avenue yesterday. The persons treated were afflicted with the disease in its various typical forms. All stages were represented in the three principal forms, joint, pulmonary and glandular tuberculosis. Men and women, old and young, boys and girls, were among those under whose skin was injected that mysterious serum which may contain so much of healing power and lack which an early death is in many cases the only alternative. After receiving an injection from the doctor's hypodermic needle the patients left for their homes in charge of their friends with a new hope and courage.

The assemblage of maimed and diseased stricken sufferers awaiting the arrival of him who may be their last human hope, could not but bring to mind that other Great Healer to whom when he was on earth the sick were brought for healing. After four months Dr. Friedmann will return to Toronto to observe the results of his clinic.

The present visit is at the invitation of President Falconer, of the University of Toronto, coupled with the personal solicitations of a number of the leading medical men of the city and Province. Dr. Friedmann promised to come if 100 suitable cases could be provided. It was not until half an hour before train time last night that he received word in Ottawa that the required number had been secured.

Patients Arrive.

The first of the sick folk arrived shortly before nine o'clock. For the next hour it was a pitiful scene, wasted, faltering forms, with flushed emaciated, drawn faces and burning eyes, entered the main door of the building assisted by kindly, loving hands.

COLONEL BULLIED AT S. A. TEMPLE

Colonel Henry Bullied, of London, England, and late of Japan, will conduct special services at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street, this week-end, commencing at 8 p.m. to-night, by giving a lecture on "World Wide Travels." Sunday morning he will conduct a special Holiness service at 11 o'clock. At 3 p.m. the Colonel will give a lecture on Japan, in Jap costume, and will also show quite a number of curios from Japan. At 7 p.m. he will conduct a great Salvation meeting.

Monday night, at 8 p.m., the Colonel will give a splendid lecture on India, Japan and Korea, illustrated by 125 beautiful colored views. All are cordially invited to these services.

There are few men in the Salvation army who have travelled as far and wide as Colonel Bullied. He was one of the pioneer officers for India, and was practically the pioneer officer of Japan. In addition to which he has visited over and over again every country in Europe. Therefore he can very graphically and interestingly describe all he has seen and heard. Don't miss the opportunity of hearing him.

WOULD REMOVE ALL POWER COMPETITION

Peterborough's Private Bill Asks For Such Legislations—Amendment in Clause One Seems to Aim to Annul The Peterborough Light and Power Company's Franchise

"It would seem," remarked a citizen to The Times yesterday, "that power and light at cost from the Hydro-Electric plants to be installed in Peterborough is not sufficiently rosy as to abide the shock of competition." And one might be justified in drawing such a conclusion from the attitude of the City Council's Power Committee in pressing before the local Legislature the enactment of their private bill to amend the city's bill of 1912 empowering the city to expropriate the Peterborough Light & Power Co's plant and appliances for Hydro-Electric purposes. The main amendment in this new bill which will come up before the Legislature on Tuesday, is asking power for the city to, in the crude vernacular of the day, put the Peterborough Light & Power Co. out of business entirely. That is to say, to annul their 25 years' franchise and to create a monopoly in favor of Hydro-Electric. Surely, it is news to the ratepayers that any municipal-owned utility needs a monopoly to give the best possible service at the least possible cost, and that such a policy is entertained by the City's Power Committee as necessary to a successful prosecution of the Hydro Electric plan comes somewhat as a surprise. To say the least, the principal amendment to the bill points to a covert intimation that our Power Committee is afraid of competition.

Peterborough's ratepayers voted on the Hydro-Electric By-law on the understanding that Hydro-Electric could defy all competition, and that they could place their patronage wherein their best interests were conserved—in Hydro-Electric of course, which was going to break the existing monopoly of light and power in favor of healthy competition, with power at cost on the one hand and power at revenue producing prices on the other. Well, they were all wrong, it seems; and if the amendments to the bill pass Legislature, we shall still have a monopoly of light and power, which may work out all right end again which may not, according to the calibre of the men at its head. In any event, history teaches us that competition is the life of trade and monopoly a menace to the public weal.

THE BILL.

The following is a copy of the bill, 2 Geo. V, Chap. 117 together with amendments printed in heavier type, which are asked by the City of Peterborough in sections 4, 5 and 6 in Bill No. 37, now before the Legislature.

An Act Respecting the City of Peterborough

Assented to 16th April, 1912.

WHEREAS, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough has, by Petition, prayed that an Act may be passed to enable the Corporation to purchase or to acquire by expropriation the property, plant and appliances situated within the County of Peterborough of any person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of supplying light, heat, or power for sale; and Whereas, it is expedient to grant the prayer of the said Petition so far as to enable the Corporation to purchase or to acquire by expropriation the property, plant and appliances of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited.

Therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:—

1. Notwithstanding anything contained in any general or special Act of this Legislature, or in any By-law or Agreement heretofore passed or entered into, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough may purchase, or, without the consent of the owner or owners thereof or persons interested therein, may enter upon, acquire, take possession of, expropriate and use any lands, property, erections, machinery, works, plant and appliances of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, or any part thereof, in the City of Peterborough, now used and operated under By-law No. 1497, of the City of Peterborough, and the agreement set out therein, or use or operate in connection therewith or as a part of the system, plant or appliances used or operated within the City of Peterborough for supplying light, heat or power to the customer of Company, paying for what is acquired or taken possession of such sum as may be agreed on or in default of agreement as may be determined by arbitration in accordance with the provisions of The CONSOLIDATED MUNICIPAL ACT, 1903, and amendments thereto, and upon the acquisition of and paying for the lands, property, erections, machinery, works, plant and appliances of the said Company, used and operated within the City of Peterborough, all rights, privileges and franchises of the said Company, under said By-law Number 1497, and the agreement set out therein, or to the use of the streets of the said city, or any of them, shall cease, determine, and be at an end, and the Corporation may, with the approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, assume and carry out any contracts or agreements entered into by the said company for the supply to the Company of electric power or energy, or for the supply by the Company of electric light, heat or power within the City, but the Corporation shall nevertheless not be bound to assume or carry out, nor shall it become responsible or liable for the non-assumption of or refusal to carry out, any such contracts or agreements, nor shall the said Company be entitled to any compensation or damages because or by reason of the non-assumption of or refusal to carry out any contract not assumed by the Corporation.

2. In determining the compensation to be paid under Section 1, nothing shall be taken into account or allowed for prospective profits, or for loss of profits or for damages for severance or because or by reason of the exercise or non-exercise by the Corporation of the rights or any of the rights under this Act, or because of the granting to, or enjoyment by the Company of the rights or any of the rights granted or conferred on the said Company by or under the said By-law and Agreement.

3. The powers conferred by this section shall not be exercised by the said Corporation except under a By-law or agreement which, before being finally passed or entered into, has been submitted to and has received the approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. This section is thus amended.

3. Before any agreement or award under Section 1 of this Act shall become binding on the said Corporation the same shall receive the approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Considerable dissatisfaction prevails in some quarters regarding the above measure in furtherance of the Hydro-Electric scheme, and many influential citizens have expressed their surprise at the need for so drastic a course, which, they contend, savors for awant of confidence in the result of competition. The object of the amendments in clause one is evidently to void the Peter-

BUYS WIFE OF ANOTHER FOR $27,000 IN CASH

Barter and Sale of a Woman Was Arranged in English Court With No Objection by Judge--- Result of Divorce Action

New York, March 14.—A London cable to The Tribune, says:

The barter and sale of a woman for $27,500 was arranged in the courts here yesterday by the authority of a judge. The case was that of a divorce suit brought by Marcellus Raymund Moraud against his wife, Helen Woodley Moraud, both actors. Capt. J. A. Morrison, heritor of the Morrison millions, was named as co-respondent. The suit was undefended and counsel stated that it had been agreed that Morrison should pay Moraud $27,500 damages.

Justice Bargrave Deane, addressing the jury said. "The parties have agreed as to damages. The co-respondent is prepared to pay the amount and the petitioner is satisfied to receive the sum. If there were something behind the arrangement I should tell you not to listen to it, but in this case, as far as I can see, there is nothing objectionable. Capt. Morrison has practically bought this woman for £5,500."

"BABY MINE"

A few hours of joy dispels many of the cares and mental sufferings of life. Pleasure is the reflex of unimpeded energy, and when it is reinforced with unconstrained laughter and fun the whole stimulates nature to a grand health-giving condition.

When it is agreed that all that is given above, is what effects an audience that sees and hears the effulgent and invigorating comedy —Baby Mine," it is clear why Manager Wm. A. Brady has scored such a glorious victory with his new big play.

We all live upon the hope of pleasing somebody, and the pleasure of pleasing is a source of gratification to all human kind.

And this is what Miss Margaret Mayo has effected with her comedy "Baby Mine," and which has been so healthily produced under the direction of Manager Wm. A. Brady.

It is a comedy-play of a generation, and there is more piercing, irresistible, and health-giving fun and pleasure in "Baby Mine" than any comedy of our times.

As the play is given in many countries, it will be a lasting and sweet remembrance of genuine fun and merriment, which will spread all over the world.

"Baby Mine" will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Friday, March 21st, with a special matinee at 2.30 p.m., with Walter Jones and the New York Company.

Walter Jones, who created the role of "Jimmy" in the original production is a feature member of the Metropolitan cast to be seen here.

ONE DEAD, ONE HURT IN WINNIPEG BATTLE

Winnipeg, Man., March 14.—One man was shot and fatally wounded and a second shot through shoulder, but not dangerously wounded late last night in the Railway yards The dead man is Alexander MacDonald, W. Johnson, both of this city.

Constables Wm. Darby and Alex. Young noticed two men acting suspiciously and trailed them until the pair were seen breaking into a car when they stepped up and declared the men under arrest. According to information obtainable early to-day the men strenuously resisted arrest and in the scuffle the two were shot down.

The constables are now under arrest pending a full investigation of the affair.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL OPENS FOR TREATMENT

New York, March 16.—Bellevue Hospital, a city institution, will be placed at the disposal of the United States Government surgeons who are investigating Dr. Friedmann's tuberculosis treatment, it was announced yesterday.

The German physician, who is now demonstrating his treatment in Canada, is expected to return here on Saturday. He will be asked to hold a clinic at Bellevue Hospital on any day of next week that he may choose.

From twenty to sixty tuberculosis sufferers, patients at the institution will be waiting, from whom Dr. Friedmann may make his own selections.

The clinic will be in furtherance of the official test which the United States Government is making to determine whether it will recognise the Friedmann treatment as a cure. The Berlin specialist will be requested to administer it to at least a score of persons.

THE WEATHER.

To-day Westerly to northwesterly winds, and mild at first, colder conditions setting in towards evening.

THE ORANGEMEN IN FAVOR OF MR. BORDEN'S NAVAL BILL

Contribution to Aid Effective Sea Forces of Empire Given Support---Officers Re-Elected

Windsor, March 15.—The Borden Naval policy was endorsed by the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West.

Eight hundred dollars was voted to Protestant Missions in Quebec, and $500 to Protestant orphanage. Mayor Hocken of Toronto propounded a scheme of greatly enlarging the order's gifts to orphanages and for establishing an old members' home. A special committee will consider the report.

Mr. Lovelock, Toronto, Past Grand Master, was presented with a Cabinet of silver as an acknowledgement of services rendered the cause. Regret at the death of Capt. Scott, the Antarctic explorer, was expressed in a resolution of sympathy to his widow.

To Aid Ulster.

Home Rule was strongly condemned, and aid promised to Ulster, "in any action taken to resist the establishment of a separate Parliament for Ireland." Satisfaction was expressed with the decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada on the marriage laws and the desire expressed that the Privy Council should soon give a ruling on the whole subject.

A strong demand was made for such a good system in Ontario as would give every child a good English education.

BRITISH NAVAL ESTIMATES SHOW A MARKED INCREASE

London, March 15.—British naval estimates for 1913-14 total $231,546,500, as compared with $226,377,000 last year.

The naw building programme provides for five battleships, eight light cruisers, sixteen torpedo boat destroyers and a number of submarines.

The personnel of the navy is to be increased to 146,000 officers and men.

There will be under construction on April 1 eleven battleships, three battleship cruisers, 13 light cruisers, 35 torpedo boat destroyers, and 21 submarines. During the year now closing four battleships, three battle ship cruisers, five light cruisers, 15 destroyers and three submarines were built.

Cut Rather Fine.

The general opinion prevails in the House of Commons that the First Lord of the Admiralty has cut the estimates rather fine, although it is conceded that they will meet the needs of the Government.

Both the "Bigger Navy" and the "Little Navy" politicians are disappointed. The former declare that the increase ought to be at least $15,000,000 greater. Part of this for new shipbuilding.

The latter complain that the increase is out of all proportion to the needs of the situation, and ignores the recent declaration of the German Minister of the Navy.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and in the future throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 346 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area

At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at

$275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

BISHOP FOR FIFTY YEARS

Oldest Catholic Missionary Lives in Far North

The celebration at Grouard, at the western end of Lesser Slave Lake, of the fiftieth anniversary of Bishop Grouard—the oldest active Roman Catholic missionary in Canada—will be remembered as one of the most unusual and picturesque events in the entire life of the north.

Long before the date for the opening ceremonies Indians began arriving with their squaws and papooses from every point of the compass, and by the most primitive means of transportation, to do honor to the occasion. This great band of aborigines—of which there were at least a thousand—were dressed in their gaudiest costumes, and the riot of color was very magnificent.

The Indians encamped all along the northwest shore of the lake, and the trails of blue smoke arising out of the crests of the creamy white tepees made wavy lines against the green of the foliage and the deeper blue of the sky.

The ceremony began with a reception and was followed by mass and various sports

EDITORIAL NOTES

The result of the recent developments at Ottawa remind one of the Tory campaign slogan, "It's Borden, that's all."

The "Manless Special" that carried the Illinois suffragettes to Washington was run, as usual, by a crew of merchant.

Toronto Telebram (Independent): As to that Churchill letter the Laurier Opportunists would not be happy till they got it. And in the words of the London Times "They got it. They sure did."

If the scores of wicket Grits who have been passed out of office into the jobless life do not know where to go, we invite them to join the forces of the Nationalists who would make Canada a French republic.

We do not believe anybody will challenge the statement of Ella Wheeler Wilcox that "meat eating will be a thing of the past with us a hundred years from now." There is a fine prospect that we will be dead by that time.

No. Sir Wilfrid, we do not believe that there is an$ truth in the report that Hon. H. R. Emmerson's parading American declaration of Independence in Parliament will be celebrated by the people of Canada by public display of fireworks.

There are a few disgruntled Tories in Peterborough, who pretend to believe that the Liberals would aim in West Peterborough in the event of a general election. They would probably find that they had run up against Mr. Burnham's long suit.

In time of soaring prices relief in any quarter must be welcome, and it is satisfying to learn that just now there is a great slump in mummies. One six thousand-year-old specimen has been knocked down for two hundred dollars. This will be regarded as dirt cheap by whose who like mummies.

NEAR THE BREAKING POINT.

Chancellor William is reported to have said that while the year 1813 was one of sacrifice, the year 1913 is scarcely less critical to the German people and should also be a year of sacrifice. Somewhere or other the Emperor has seen indications which satisfy him that Germany must strengthen herself still further against her real or possible foes, and the fiat has gone forth that the peace footing of the Germany army must be increased by nearly 2000,000 men, bringing it up to about 850,000. The initial cost of this is placed at about $250,000,000, and it will entail in addition a permanent annual charge of over $50,000,000. France has also come to the conclusion that the nation is in danger, and the peace footing of the French army is to be increasedby over 200,000 men, making it very nearly 800,000 men, while the immediate expenditure upon the army is to be increased by over $100,000,000. [illegible] to run the gauntlet of the different Governments, and these will probably [illegible] Both in the German Chamber of Deputies and in the European Reichstag, speeches [illegible] to the End of War. If some allowance is thrown they will not [illegible] Germany and France, whose [illegible] sacrifices, whose scanty livelihood is rendered still more scanty, until it becomes a question whether war could be a greater commercial evil than these tremendous preparations for war. It would be well for the Kaiser to bear in mind that there is a breaking zoint to even German endurance, and unless he is careful the military burden of maintaining the empire will sink it instead of saving it. We would imagine that the thermometer of the empire just now is dangerously near the revolution point.

BURIAL OF SIR JOHN MOORE.
Published by Request.

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note;
As his corpse to the rampart we hurried;
Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.

We buried him darkly at dead of night,
The sods with our bayonets turning;
By the struggling moonbeams misty light
And the lanterns dimly burning.

No useless coffin enclosed his breast,
Nor in sheet or in shroud we wound him;
But he lay like a warrior taking his rest
With his martial cloak around him.

Few and short were the prayer we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow;
But we steadfastly gazed on the face of the dead,
And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

We thought as we hollowed his narrow bed,
And smooth'd down his lonely pillow,
That the foe and the stronger would tread o'er his head,
And we far away on the billow.

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone, and over his cold ashes upbraid him—
But little he'll reck, if they let him sleep on
In the grave where a Briton has laid him.

But half of our heavy task was done
When the clock struck the hour for retiring,
And we heard the distant and random gun,
That the foe was sullenly firing.
Slowly and sadly we laid him down,
From the field of his fame fresh and gory
We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone, borough Light & Power Co's franchise, and empower the city to take over their contracts, or not, just as they please. And should the above bill pass the Legislature, it will be a move in contradistinction to that British constitution which gives liberty of speech, and thought and freedom of legitimate trade competition to all. Neither Aldermen G. Walter Green nor Jos. Duffus are quite clear as to the advantages of Hydro-Electric, and wodld not vote for its by-law; and there are others who cannot understand why if its operation in this city is an assured success, the Power Committee should be so anxious to legislate a competing company out of business.
But we left him alone in his glory.

There can be no doubt but what the City Council is actuated by a desire to further the interests of the community, but the full text of the above bill appears to convey more than originally intended. So far as The Times always understood, Council had based all its calculations on competition anh never dreamt that such competition could be removed by legislation. However, legal phraseology is very complex, and it is just possible that one may err in an attempt to grasp the exact meaning and scope of clause one in the foregoing bill.

BAD BAD SORE FOUR YEARS

ZAM-BUK HAS HEALED IT!

Mrs. Wilson, 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterized, tried poultices and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and, to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

"My daughter, who lives in Lethbridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalp sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

MEAT SUPPLIES

Farmers Should Go Into The Cattle Industry on a Large Scale

As an indication that the Canadian Northwest is in the same position as the east with regard to meat supplies, last year's stock receipts at Winnipeg Stock Yards are significant. Receipts of cattle have fallen off steadily during the last five years, while prices have shown more than a relative advance due to a growing demand. Receipts of sheep and lambs have, on the other hand, steadily increased, and the prices paid, though considerably above those of 1911, were below those of 1910 and 1909. The run of hogs was well above that of 1911 and 1909, but less than in 1908. With the exception of 1910, prices of hogs were higher during 1912 than for a number of years. The following table brings out these facts:—

	1912	1911	1910
To. cattle receipts	101,044	102,726	190,517
Av. pr. pd.	$5.43	$4.64	$4.56

We Are Developing

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently

We Have Millions

in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT 65.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Better Make Your Application at Once

A word to the wise is usually sufficient and what we are telling you is for your own good. If you don't get these shares, some other lucky individual will. NUF CED. So get them while the getting is good.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins. Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—3-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—327,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

A FEW LEADING CHARACTERS WHO FIGURE IN THE DESTINIES OF WAR SCARRED MEXICO

MARCIA HERNANDEZ ©AMERICAN PRESS ASS'N.

At a moment when things in Mexico seemed at last to be approaching a peaceful settlement as a result of the ousting of President Madero and the birth of a new form of government, headed by General Huerta, the news was flashed that another uprising is imminent. Reports received from the stricken country make it evident that the insurrectionists in the outlying States would continue their fighting. General Pascual Orozco is the leader of this new movement. The latter opposes the selection of Huerta as President. Marcia Hernandez, whose portrait is shown herewith, was stabbed while walking along the street and was killed. He was a brother of the Madero Minister of the Interior

HER SYMPATHY MAKES HER SPEAK

DAME MAYER TELLS HOW SHE FOUND A CURE IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Suffered for Three Years From Rheumatism, Headache, Palpitation, and Bright's Disease — Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Her Kidneys and Made Her Well.

Huberdeau, Argenteuil Co., Que., March 14.—(Special.)—"I am always glad to tell of my cure because I sympathize with others who may be suffering as I did." So says Dame Joseph Mayer, well known and highly respected here.

"For three years I was a very sick woman. Rheumatism, headache, palpitation of the heart and Bright's disease were my succession of troubles, but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured them all. I used 24 boxes to complete my cure, but they certainly made me well.

"I will never be without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Dame Mayer's ills because they are all caused by diseased kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys, and with cured kidneys straining the seeds of disease out of the blood, the rheumatism, Bright's disease, headache, and palpitation of the heart are bound to disappear.

You never heard of a case of kidney disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills would not cure.

Killed by Madman.

Romanshorn, on the Lake of Thurgau, Switzerland, has been the scene of a terrible tragedy, no fewer than seven men being killed by a madman, a soldier and seven others being wounded. The madman, Hermann Schwarz, had been recently discharged from the army owing to mental trouble. Provided with a rifle and a supply of cartridges, Schwarz barricaded himself in his room, and from six o'clock in the evening until past eleven kept up a continuous fire upon passers-by and upon people who attempted to break down the door and deprive him of the rifle. In all four men were killed and eight others were wounded. Bugles were blown to summon the fire brigade, and a large crowd assembled in response to the ringing of bells. Shortly after midnight a number of courageous individuals rushed the house, but found that Schwarz had disappeared. It was believed that he had taken to the forest, and the next morning a large party, comprising firemen, police and citizens, with dogs, started to search for him. After the pursuit had been in progress for some time, a policeman came upon the madman, who immediately fired, mortally wounding his pursuer. Schwarz then disappeared again. The hunt was continued, and after an exciting pursuit, in which more than 100 people were engaged, Schwarz, who was seriously wounded by shots, was at length arrested in the neighborhood of Romanshorn, but not before he had killed another of his pursuers.

HUDSON BAY TIMBER

An Experienced Cruiser Describes Split Lake Conditions

Interesting observations with regard to the timber of the Hudson Bay region, the southern part of the old district of Keewatin, are found in the report of the Director of Forestry. Mr. J. T. G. Whyte, an experienced timber cruiser and fire ranger, who has since been drowned while in discharge of his duty reported on the conditions of the forest around Split Lake, on an area of about 2,400 square miles. This whole territory was originally covered with forest. The islands in Split Lake still bear Spruce, Tamarack, and Jack Pine large enough for railway ties, poles and lumber. All the rest of the country has been burned over at least once within the past forty or fifty years, and the timber, which dates from the last fire, rarely exceeds three or four inches in diameter. The shores of Split Lake have been burned over, on an average once every season. Fortunately in this district the soil is usually deep, and can always support another crop of trees. The presence of merchantable forest in protected situations proves that the young forest now started will become sufficiently valuable to support sawmill and pulp industries and supply a large population, if it can be protected from fire. Very little of the land traversed by Mr. Whyte is suitable for agriculture. Mr. J. T. Blackford, fire ranger at Oxford House, reported similar conditions on about 5,400 square miles of territory in that region.

ONTARIO

The Glasgow Herald has the following description of Ontario:

"The natural wealth of Ontario is boundless. It produces 75 per cent. of all fruits grown in Canada, 69 per cent. of the plums, 70 per cent. of the apples, 80 per cent. of the small fruits and pears, and 98 per cent. of the peaches and grapes. There are 7,000,000 apple trees in the province, bearing in a good season, at a moderate estimate, one barrel of packed apples per tree. South Ontario has 338,255 acres of orchard, vineyard, and small fruits. Three-quarters of the dairy produce of Canada comes from this province; the average value of the products for the past five years being at least $30,000,000, and in two or three "barren years" $35,000,000. Further, Ontario ranks higher than any other province in field crops, and she has a greater variety of mineral deposits in proportion to population than any country in the world, having been responsible the year before last for 41 per cent. of Canada's total mining production.

In the more populous parts of the province there are 175,000 farms, valued at from $1,000 to $50,000 and over. But there are about 20 million acres of good arable land left for settlement, south of the fiftieth parallel of latitude, and this wealth—given away free—awaits the enterprising emigrant.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

WOMEN FARMERS

Dairy farming as a profession for women and an aid to the solution of the problem of agricultural depression was advocated by Mrs. Gardiner, of Cheltenham, England, at the annual meeting of the Women's Agricultural and Horticultural International Union.

Mrs. Gardiner maintained that dairy farming offorded a good opening for women, and that in itself was sufficient excuse for bringing the matter forward. But it might also help to solve two problems, the problem of agricultural depression which was so trying all over Great Britain, and the problem of employment for women. There was any amount of scope for women who were trained as dairy farmers, and could get the capital to start them, and they would make a much better living at in than in many of the professions women now entered. The teaching profession for instance, was frightfully overcrowded, and likely to become more overcrowded still. There was a much greater demand for properly produced milk than there used to be, and certainly in the case of women, unless they were going to produce the best sort of milk on the most up-to-date lines, they might as well not start dairy farming at all. Capital was essential, but if the working woman was inclined to work, and was backed up by somebody with capital, she had no doubt that commercially dairy farming for women could be made to succeed.

FROM RAW MATERIAL TO FINISHED PRODUCT

Compelling Americans to Spend Money in Canada Instead of Taking it Out

The United States Steel Corporation will establish a $20,000,000 plant in Sandwich, Ont. The Canadian Customs Tariff is forcing the corporation to spend money in Canada instead of taking it out.

If Free Trade between Canada and the United States existed, the Steel Company would build its $20,000,000 plant in the United States, would attract our raw material and workmen to that plant, would transform the raw material into finished products, which would be shipped into Canada, and would retain all the profits connected with the various processes of manufacturing.

Forced across the line by the tariff, the Company will spend $20,000,000 in Canada, will bring to Canada many skilled workmen with their families, will give employment to hundreds of Canadians, will change Sandwich from a village to a city, will create a market for the produce of the surrounding farmers, and will sell "Made-in-Canada" goods to Canadian consumers.

During the seven months ending with October, 1912, Canada imported for consumption iron and steel manufactures to the value of $79,484,103, of which $69,504,285 worth came from the United States. This was an increase of $22,903,903 over the seven months ending with October, 1911. Instead of advocating a reduction of duties on steel and iron manufactures Free Traders should endeavor to persuade foreign companies to establish more branches in Canada.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

Phlegmatic though he was, something very like a start followed upon my words. Then, as if to cover the movement, he shrugged his shoulders, and chuckled ponderously.

"His visiting card, I suppose."

"Nearly as good," I supplied. "The bowl of his opium pipe."

At that moment Jerry came around the corner of the house and stopped abruptly, stupefied by surprise; for from the open mouth of the giant there issued a roar of bass laughter, that reverberated in weird discordance through the night silences.

"You bally idiot!" he cried, his guffaw ended. "I suppose no persons except Chinamen smoke opium, eh! And that being so, no Chinaman but my Chinaman could have made a target of a piece of an old portrait and dropped his pipe bowl at the foot of a tree! Go on with you, you make me sick!" And then, seeing Jerry, who had quickly joined me: "Didn't find him, eh? Well, that's not strange. Having lost the bowl of his pipe, he's probably gone to borrow another from a laundryman friend in Cos Cob; and that, by the way, is about the nearest place for you to buy gasolene."

The next day I spent at my office, in New York, busy with the hundred details that go to the making of a periodical which aims to focus popular sentiment to a righteous viewpoint concerning matters of national and social import. For the time being my consideration of Cameron and his strange problem was suspended. Now and then the subject recurred to me, dragged into the mental light on the train of Evelyn Grayson; but almost immediately it was buried beneath a question of editorial policy or a debate regarding a contract for white paper at an extortionate increase in price.

When, however, my business day was ended, and I had boarded the train for Greenwich, the whole involved enigma spread itself again before me, demanding attention. And in the midst of it, dominating it, stretching his great shadow over it to the farthest limit, appeared that frowsy red giant, Murphy, a mystery within a mystery; for, though he seemed to pervade it, there was no point at which I could discover him quite touching it.

In vain I tried to detect a real connection. I started with the letters. They bore no single characteristic mark of this uncouth creature. As an artist he might have devised the curious silhouette signature, but there was something about that—some cunning, inventive subtlety—which I could not reconcile with the ogre I had played upon, stung to anger and aroused to curiosity.

That he could either have conceived or executed the ruin of the portrait I did not believe possible. The conception, like the letters and the signature, bore evidence of a craftiness too fine for such as he; and to fancy him, mammoth that he was, stealing unobserved into Cameron's stury, was to fancy the incredible.

And so, though the impression of intimate relationship persisted, I could find no point of contact, closer or more definite than through his servant's rifle practice, which after all might have been quite without motive.

There was little, therefore, in the line of reason, to convict Murphy of any knowledge of the matters which had so disturbed us. And yet, as I have said, I felt intuitively that he possessed an intimate acquaintance with the whole affair.

At the Greenwich station, I found my touring car waiting; my mother in the tonneau. My chauffeur touched his cap as I approached.

"You may drive, Francois," I said, and I took the place at my mother's side.

"You look tired, Philip," she announced when I had kissed her. "Was it very warm in the city?" Her eyes were ever quick to note infinitesimal changes in my appearance of well-being.

"Not uncomfortable," I answered, indulgently. "I had a very busy day, though. But I'm not the less fit because of it."

"We have had some little excitement here," she hastened, eager to give me the news. "Old Romney called you up on the telephone about noon. I happened to answer it, myself, and when I told him you were in New York, and would not be back until six, it just seemed he couldn't wait to unburden himself. 'Won't you please tell him, Mrs. Clyde,' he said, 'that Mr. Murphy's Chinaman was found at daybreak this morning, lying dead, just outside Murphy's back door?'"

"Found dead!" I cried, in amazement.

"That is what he said. Then he added that the poor fellow's head had been crushed with some heavy instrument, and that Mr. Murphy had been arrested on suspicion and was in the Cos Cob lockup."

For a full minute, I think, I sat in silent amaze. Then theories and conjectures in infinite variety gave chase, one after the other, through my excited brain. But it was more than ever difficult, I found, to reach anything like a satisfactory conclusion concerning the position the now lifeless Celestial and his accused master held in the chain of mysteries I wished so much to solve. That they were both of them more or less important links, however, I had small doubt.

"Did you know Mr. Murphy?" my mother asked. And all at once I realized that her question was a repetition. In my absorption I had not heeded the original inquiry.

"Nobody knows him," I answered, unconsciously echoing the words voiced by the man in the catboat on the previous night. "Nobody knows him. But I've met him in a rather casual way."

CHAPTER VI.

Neil Gwynne's Mirror.

With the approach of the twenty-first of the month, which is to say the seventh day following Cameron's receipt of the second letter, I observed in him a growing nervous restlessness, which with praiseworthy effort he was evidently striving to overcome. Of my visit to the red giant and the tragedy which followed it, he was, of course, informed; as he had been of the incident in the wood, including the finding of the bullet-pierced piece of canvas. Everything, save only that Evelyn was the discoverer of the portrait remnant—which I thought best under the circumstances to keep secret—was told to him in detail, and with all the circumstantiality necessary to an intelligent discussion of even the minutest point.

My description of Murphy elicited from him a recollection. He remembered having seen the man once. It was on the Fourth of July. Evelyn and Mrs. Lancaster, Cameron's housekeeper, had accompanied Cameron to what is called "The Port of Missing Men," a resort for motorists, on the summit of Titicus mountain. They had lunched there and were returning by a route which took them over a succession of execrable roads, but through some of the most glorious scenery in the whole state of Connecticut. For a while they had been following a stream, willow-girt, that went babbling down over a rocky bed which at intervals broke the waters into a series of falls and cascades. At the foot of one of these they had stopped the car and alighted for a better view, and so had come upon the unexpected.

Seated upon a great bowlder, his easel planted between the stones of the stream's shallows, was a red-headed, red-bearded Colossus, in a soiled suit of khaki and a monstrous straw hat such as is worn by harvest-farmers. Cameron told me that all three of them made bold to peep over the painter's shoulder at his work, and then, though it was of the most mediocre quality, to shower him with laudatory and congratulatory phrases.

"I can fancy how he thanked you," I broke in, smiling. "I suppose he said something very rude."

"He said nothing at all. He simply stopped painting, and turning, fixed his eyes upon me. It was as if he saw no other one of us. He seemed to be making a careful appraisement of my every feature. After a moment it grew embarrassing, and though I did not resent it—feeling rather that we, ourselves, had been in the wrong—I very speedily withdrew. To my surprise he rose from his stone seat; and, palette and brush in hand, followed us up the little acclivity to the road, watching in silence, until we got back into our car, and wheeled away."

"Did you gather from his inspection that he recognized you, or thought he recognized you?" I asked.

"I gathered only that he meant to be insufferably rude," was Cameron's answer.

"And you have never seen him since?"

"Never."

"He has evidently seen you. He spoke of the Russian wolf-hounds that go about with you."

Cameron made no response.

"Well," I added, in a tone meant to be reassuring, "I think we need have little fear of a continuance of this singular method of annoyance. Though we can't trace it directly to Murphy and his unfortunate Mongolian, I thoroughly believe that one or the other was responsible. With the Chinaman dead and Murphy in jail, the persecution will cease. The threat contained in the second letter will never be executed. See if I'm not right!"

My hope of putting Cameron at ease, however, was not rewarded. He continued to exhibit signs of an almost constant apprehension. There was, indeed, a sympathy-stirring pathos about the nervous disquiet of this man, usually so impenetrably self-contained. And at moments, in spite of me, a suspicion gripped and held that he had not been entirely frank; that somewhere in his past there was something unrevealed which might serve as a clue, if not an explanation, to the present. But these doubts of him were always transitory.

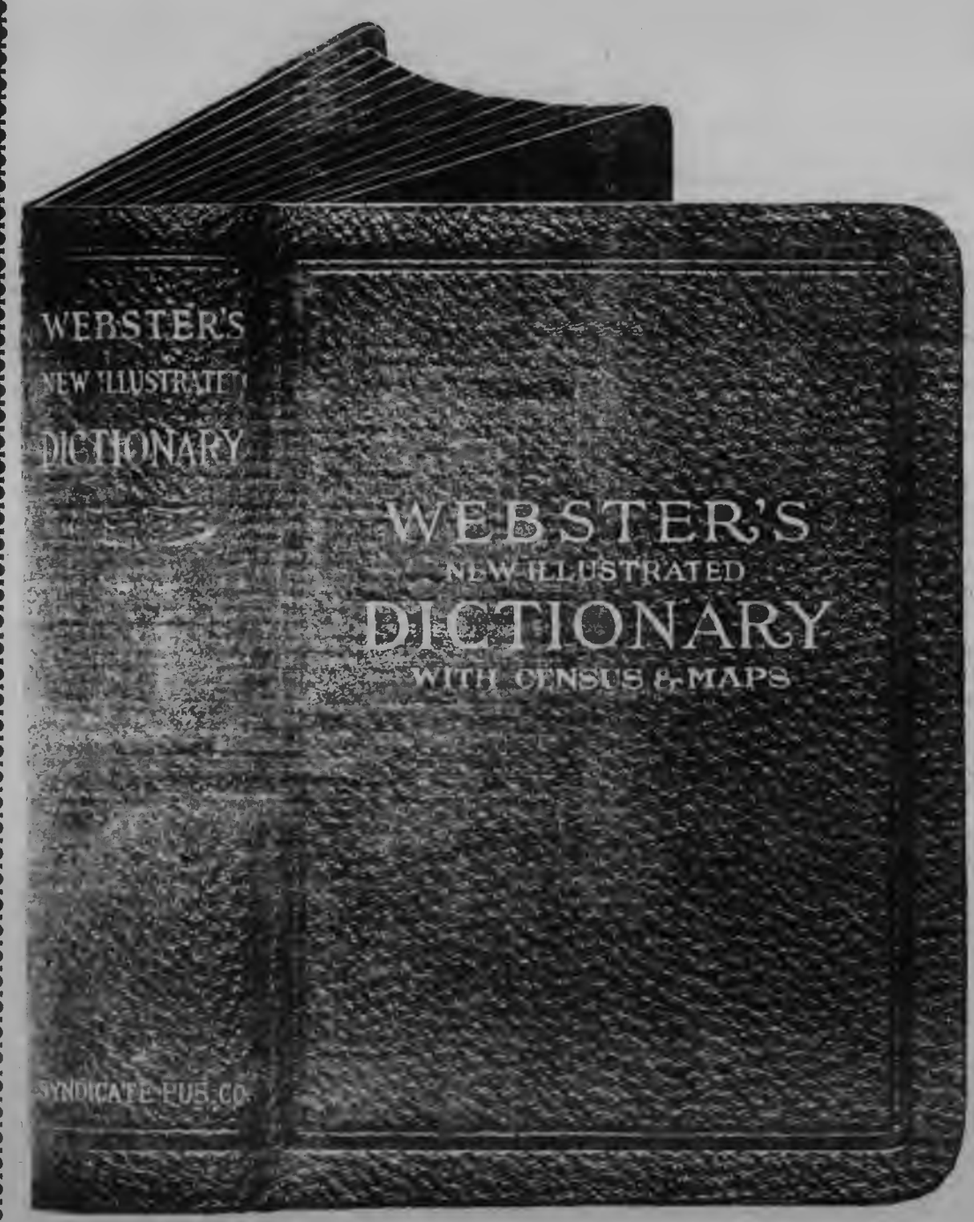
The twenty-first of September fell that year on Monday. My office demanded my presence, but I arranged affairs as well as possible by telephone and devoted the entire day to Cameron. When I told him I meant to do this he protested, pretending that he was quite without foreboding; while the unconscious tapping of his foot on the rug, even as he spoke, belied his words.

We spent the better part of the day golfing over the Apawamis links at Rye, lunching at the club house between rounds, for as a specific for nerves I have ever found that game of rare benefit. In the present instance it more than fulfilled my expectations. Cameron, apparently at least, forgot everything save his desire to out-drive, out-approach, and out-put me. And when it was over, and with sharpened appetites we drove back to Crigholt for dinner, he appeared stimulated by a new-found courage.

The day had passed without untoward event, and I felt sure that my friend was gradually coming around to my way of thinking. Neither of us mentioned the subject, but it must have recurred to him, at intervals, as it did to me. And as the hours went by without a sign, the conviction grew that Murphy, with hands tied, was fretting over the coup he was deterred from compassing.

Mrs. Lancaster, whom I have mentioned merely as Cameron's housekeeper, but who was, in addition, a distant kinswoman and acted as a sort of duenna to Evelyn, dined with us that evening, and our little partie carree seemed to me more than usually merry, owing doubtless to the relaxation of the strain which both Cameron and I had been under for the past week.

It gratified me to see my host so unfeignedly cheerful. I remember how he laughed over Mrs. Lancaster's recital of an incident of the morning.



"I had no idea," she said, "that Andrew," referring to the kennel master, "was married. He astonished me when he told me he had a wife and three children. And when I told him he did not look like a married man he seemed rather pleased than otherwise."

"It is odd," Cameron returned, "but it seems always to flatter a husband to tell him he doesn't look it." And then he laughed as though he had no care on earth.

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Boer War Who Lost Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Good Advice for All who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders

In his home at Waldegrove, N. S., no one is better known than Sergt.-Major Cross, late of the 8th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sergt.-Major writes "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sergt.-Major. It was perhaps owing to a continued diet of bully beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. I was in such a state that I could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

It was a foregone conclusion that clean comedy of the legitimate type, after lying dormant for several seasons, would come to life again and fasten itself upon the good opinion of theatre-goers even more forcefully than it ever did before. In proof of which may be cited "Baby Mine," said to be the funniest play ever written, with a record of a year in New York, eight months in Chicago and nearly two years in London.

SKIN PEELING NATURE'S AID TO NEW COMPLEXION

(From Woman's Tribune.)

Mercolized Wax is a natural beautifier. By flaking off the devitalized surface skin, it merely hastens Nature's work. The second skin layer, brought gradually to view, exhibits the healthy, youthful color produced by capillary circulation. This because the capillaries are thus brought nearer the surface; also because the new skin is unsoiled by dust and dirt. This wax, to be had at any drugstore (an ounce will do) is put on nightly like cold cream, washed off mornings with warm water. Its work usually is completed in from seven to ten days, long enough to show too marked results from day to day, or cause pain or detention indoors.

A face bath to remove wrinkles, made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, is another natural beautifier, since its astringent and tonic effects smooth out the wrinkles in accordance with Nature's own process.

No More Asthma A Cure Discovered That Really Does Cure

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. It is a scientific surprise, a perfect marvel the way it brings old chronics back to health. You will say so yourself after you have used it once, say so after the very first time. Ever since people first began to have asthma, Catarrhozone is certainly the best remedy discovered.

Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary, writes:—"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

The one-dollar package last two months; small size, 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The matter is under consideration by the Hydro-Electric Commission. Hon. John S. Hendrie is understood to be opposed to Peterborough interests and in favor of the company, while Hon. Adam Beck stands by the city in its contentions.

HUNTER STREET CREEK NECESSITATED DYNAMITE

The warm weather of the past few days has caused the local creeks to get busy. Some difficulty was encountered by street commissioner at the south side of Hunter street, recently erected by Mr. Isaac Eastwood. Here a seemingly piece of poor judgment was exercised. There are concrete piers in the centre of the stream. Yesterday huge blocks of ice, six and seven feet long, by a foot thick formed james against the piers. The blocks would tilt on end and ground there. This quickly led to other blocks making a dam, which raised the level of the creek a foot in half an hour. Mr. Evans used several charges of dynamite to break the blockades.

It might be noted that the piers above referred to were in place some ten years ago, and not put there by the present owner of the property.

A Freak Egg.

Yesterday Mr. Geo. Graham, discovered a freak egg, laid by one of his hens. The egg is covered by a skin instead of a shell. MOST BEAUTIFUL EASTER PRESENT!

The most marvelous mystic wonder of the twentieth century. Our Saviour nailed to the cross, a beautiful and marvelous work of art that has mystified the whole world with its startling luminous effect, which is everlasting. The figure of Christ as well as the Cross itself are of imitation marble material, showing white in daylight and in a glorious, luminous, mystic light at night in the darkest room. The luminous effect is everlasting. The greatest work of art ever known to science. It is indeed a glorious and most precious article of true devotion. Science has long been puzzled at this mysterious work of art.

There are two different sizes: The larger ones (11¼ by 6 inches) has been reduced to only $2 from the original price of $10, and the smaller one (4 by 8) from $5 to but one dollar in order to enable every Christian family to have one in their home. AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

OPPOSITION FOX BETWEEN THE RIVER AND THE WALL

Government Pressing Liberals Hard and Fight Has Become So Bitter That Compromise Seems Unlikely--Garrison Finish of a Dull Week

Ottawa, March 16.—Events have been moving swiftly since 11 o'clock on Friday night.

If the Government were too lenient during nearly all of the past fortnight, they have suddenly swung to the other extreme and are pressing the opposition hard. It looked at noon yesterday as though the fox was standing between the river and the wall.

Still it must be admitted that the opposition is resourceful and by no means inclined to surrender. They can probably prolong the present deadlock until midnight and the Coderre charges on Monday may give them additional rest and time for preparation and enable them to successfully hold out the naval bill in committee until the Easter adjournment.

Except for this garrison finish, the week has not been eventful. There was, of course, the publication of the Churchill correspondence on Monday, and the somewhat sensational encounter between Mr. Crothers and Mr. Pugsley on Friday last.

Apart from these, the news item of the week was the effort of W. F. Maclean (South York) to bring about a good understanding on the problem of naval defence between the two parties to the end that Canadians might present on this important question a united front to the Empire and to the world. His proposal was heartily seconded by Hon. Charles Marcil, but now the fight has become so bitter and intense that no compromise seems to be possible. The one question now is whether the Liberals can, by resisting closure and holding up estimates, force an appeal to the country.

LIBERALS MAY TRY FORCING ELECTION ON REDISTRIBUTION

Even Though Closure be Applied They Will Pursue Obstructive Tactics on Cencus Question

Ottawa, March 16.—The situation in the House of Commons changes every hour, but still two or three things stand out more and more in bold relief. The first is that the opposition might in a short time weaken in their obstruction; the second is that if they do not some sort of a closure will be attempted; and the third thing is that if the opposition weaken in their obstruction and if a closure is put in force they will nevertheless continue to delay proceedings and try to force an election on the demand for a redistribution based on the recent census, and which redistribution would increase the representation of the west and somewhat reduce the representation of the east.

ENGLANDS NEW NOISELESS GUN IS THE LAST CALL

Hull Chemist Invents Remarkable Machine Which Discharges Explosive Gases--Successful Trials

London, March 16.—A remarkable machine gun has been invented by Mr. Ernest Welsh, a Hull chemist. The gun, weighing about three hundred weight, is discharged by explosive gases, and it is claimed that it will send projectiles a distance of five miles, which will then ignite whatever they hit. The gun is not unlike a maxim in appearance and the mechanism consists in part of three generators which manufacture three distinct gases. In the stopper there is a small sponge saturated with a certain fluid, which also gives off a gas; while there is further, a supply of oxygen and hydrogen inside the cylinder. The cylinder rests on a plate and by the setting into motion of a small electric motor situated on the right hand of the gun the gases are exploded, and the projectile is propelled through the muzzle. There is no report when the gun is fired. Mr. Welsh states that there is no recoil, and there is no pressure on the outside of the cylinder. All pressure is felt forward.

The nature of the gases is a secret.

BROWN-ANDERSON FIGHT A DRAW

San Francisco, March 16.—The fight between Anderson and K. O. Brown yesterday afternoon resulted in a draw.

ANOTHER BORDER BATTLE EXPECTED

Fifteen Thousand State Troops are Awaiting Reinforcement Before Attacking Five Hundred.

Naco, Ariz., March 16.—The scenes were set for another border battle on Saturday with the remnants of the federal garrisons of Northern Sonora at Naco, Mexico, just across the line, under Gen. Ajeda, defying attack from more than 15,000 state troops. Camp fires of the opposing forces were plainly visible from here all night.

"I have only 471 men, but they say they will fight with me," said Gen. Ojeda. "Although I admit that my position is precarious, I shall defend it to the end, asking no quarter and giving none."

Col. Calles, one of the commanders of state troops, declared that the attack would be made as soon as Prefect Bracamonte arrived to-day from Agua Prieta with 750 men. All residents of the American side have been warned to keep well under cover.

HECTOR BAKER FACES MOST SERIOUS CHARGE

At Saturday's police court, with Mr. V. Eastwood, J.P., on the rostrum, Hector Baker's familiar face was once more seen in the local dispensary of justice. This time Hector faces a serious charge. It was that of incest with his thirteen year old daughter. Baker was remanded until Wednesday. Mrs. Baker was charged with having been drunk, although a blackhister. Her case was enlarged until Wednesday.

SNOWDEN HOUSE DEAL HAS BEEN PUT THRO'

The Snowden House sale to Mr. Braund, which has been discussed for some time is "un fait accompli." Mr. R. J. Kidd, who put the deal through, told The Times on Saturday, that $1,000 had been paid on to bind the bargain.

LAURIER'S ABSENCE FROM THE HOUSE SHOWS AGAINST PARTY

Ottawa, March 16.—The continued absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from the House is interpreted in some quarters as indicating his dissent from the tactics of his party.

It is asserted that his indisposition is not serious and that he has stated to personal friends that in his opinion a dissolution and general election is not desirable.

Color is lent to these reports by a front-page article Saturday afternoon in the Ottawa Free Press, the local Liberal organ, which is construed as foreshadowing a surrender on the naval bill. The Free Press article says

"The Liberal party has done its utmost to prevent the passage, until authorized by the people, of a piece of legislation that regards as threatening the fundamental principles of autonomy under which only can imperial unity be maintained.

"The Liberal party have been fighting for a great principle. They have availed themselves of all the British constitutional machinery provided for the protection of the people's rights. The Liberal members of parliament have made great personal sacrifices to do this.

"Brute force methods having now been adopted on the advice of a western political master, and the gag, which has hitherto been applied only to subsequent supporters of the government having now been extended to the champions of public liberty, the resources of the opposition in parliament have become exhausted.

"The naval bill may become law, but that does not by any means imply that the fight is over."

BAD FEELINGS BY GREEKS AGAINST BULGARIANS

Athens, Greece, March 16.—Strong feelings against the Bulgarians is spreading with great rapidity among the Greek population, and only the strong hand of the government prevents a virulent outbreak.

The editor of the newspaper Chronos was sentenced to-day to a week's imprisonment for editorially denouncing Bulgarian avarice, and proceedings have been begun against several other persons for similar offences.

The irritation of the Greeks arose from the Bulgarians laying claim to great stretches of erstwhile Turkish territory which Greece considers hers by right of conquest.

WOULD ISOLATE THE GERM OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

John Hopkin's Physicians Make Discoveries Which Startle Medical World

Baltimore, March 16.—Before an audience which packed the medical amphitheatre of John Hopkins Hospital and overflowed into the corridors, these announcements each of which was considered as sufficient importance to stir the medical profession throughout the world, have been made.

Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute for Scientific Research, New York City, announced that he had discovered the germ of epidemic poliomyletis.

Dr. Hideyo Noguchi of the same institution stated that he had demonstrated the presence of treponema pallidum in the brain of a patient, who had died of general paresis.

Translated from technical language the announcement by Dr. Flexner means that hitherto undiscovered organism which causes infantile paralysis had been found, identified and cultivated.

Similarly translated, Dr. Noguchi's announcement means that he has demonstrated the connection previously suspected, but not praved, between syphilis and general paresis.

With Sister Attempted to Cross a Small Stream Which Overflowed Its Banks.

Brockville, March 16. News of a fatality near Westport, a village in Leeds County, reached Brockville on Saturday.

Two little daughters of John McAndrews were returning from school to their home. The freshet had caused a small stream to overflow, and they were cut off from reaching home.

They decided to wade through the creek, but the rush of water was so great that they were carried along with it. When the searching party arrived they found the oldest, aged 9 caught by a wire fence and living, though suffering much from exhaustion. She could tell nothing of her sister, Reta, aged 7, except that she had been washed further down the stream.

Continuing, the party set out, and half a mile further away they found the body of the young girl washed up on a bank.

REVIVAL OF LAWLESSNESS AT PORCUPINE

A revival of lawlessness in the Porcupine mining district has assumed such serious proportions that Superintendent Rogers of the Provincial police, has detailed fifteen men to proceed at once into the north.

The trouble is now centered about the McIntyre, Plenaurum and Jupiter Mines, which some time ago affected a conciliation with their men, and are now in operation.

The rigors of the cold season and the fact that the mines were running with imported labor influenced some of the strikers to return to work, and this has caused the bitter feeling among some of the leading spirits who are still out.

In consequence the practice of waylying the returned workers at night and beating them up has grown alarmingly during the last two weeks, and increased police surveillance was asked.

ANOTHER SPLIT IN THE UNIONIST PARTY

Choice of Free Trader at Bye-Election Causes Great Dissatisfaction.

London, March 16.—A split is again developing in the Unionist party on the fiscal question. The arrangement of Jan. 13 with regard to the elimination of food duties from the party program at the next general election is in danger of breaking down owing to the choice of free trade candidate by the Unionists of Kendal for the bye-election to be held next Tuesday consequent upon the death of Sir J. E. Bagot.

The extraordinary fact of a free trader being chosen by the Unionists has not unnaturally given great offence to the extreme tariff reformers, whose sacrifice in signing the memorial for a modified program in the interests of harmony has been eloquently expatiated upon by Austen Chamberlain.

MILLER CASE BEFORE COURT OF APPEAL

Montreal, March 15.—The Court of Appeal opeans to-day with the case of R. C. Miller against the Diamond Light & Heat Company.

Miller, who was defendent in the original case, was ordered by the court to account for a sum of $41,000 which he alleged he had paid in order to procure business from the Government. The appeal is to determine whether he must give such an accounting.

It is for the same abstention before the committee of the House of Commons that R. C. Miller is now "the state prisoner" in Carleton County Jail, Ottawa.

TORONTO DOCTORS IMPRESSED BY DR. FRIEDMANN'S WORK

Approval of The German's Methods and Technique and Look For Favorable Results--Watching Outcome

Toronto, March 16.—The Toronto doctors who observed Dr. Friedmann's demonstration in the city on Friday were without exception impressed favorably.

The most critical and exacting scientists among the Toronto physicians approved of the cleanliness and precision of the German doctor's clinical technique. They admired his deftness, his great care in sterilization and in the use of antiseptics, and they felt his sincerity and earnestness. They appreciated his high scientific attainments, which are beyond doubt. They earnestly hope that his antitoxin for tuberculosis will prove to be as effective as Dr. Friedman himself is convinced it will.

Dr. Friedmann himself was greatly pleased with the friendliness of his reception here, and delighted with the arrangements made by Toronto doctors and by the medical faculty of the university for his demonstration. Since he landed in America he has not received anywhere so much consideration as in Toronto, and has not had, even in New York, such typical cases, and such facilities for rapidly treating a large number of patients. These facilities for quick work are greatly appreciated by Dr. Friedmann, whose natural wish it is to make as many tests as possible in the shortest possible time. In Ottawa the demonstrator was displeased by the lack of facilities and the small number of patients collected by the doctors.

Dr. Allan Adams, of 335 Jarvis street, who assisted at Dr. Friedmann's clinics here, said that he did not expect his chronic tuberculosis patients who received injections of the new serum on Friday to show any definite results from the treatment for two weeks. He is observing his cases closely

C. P. R. TO ERECT SEVEN STOREY OFFICE BUILDING

Two Freight Sheds Nine Hundred Feet Long, One Two Storeys High, and a Smaller Office Structure Are All But Completed

Toronto, March 16.—The C.P.R. are certainly doing big things with the good house property on West King street. Plans have been made for a large seven-storey office building with a frontage of 400 feet on King street. The building will be directly alongside the tracks which feed the new freight sheds and be started this spring.

As a rule freight sheds are so constructed that they appear an eyesore to the citizens, but the C.P.R.'s new structures have a trim and neat appearance.

Two brick structures extend from just west of the new freight offices on Simcoe street for a distance of 900 feet and having a width of 50 feet. One building, which is to be confined to incoming freight, will be two storeys. Plunger elevators will be installed to convey the freight to and from the upper floor. The outgoing freight building, although covering as much ground, will only have the one floor.

One feature which will be hailed with delight by teamsters, is the new system of one long line of sliding doors, which fold up into a hood over the wagon which is receiving or delivering freight. The sides of the building are nothing but doors so constructed that a car can be unloaded from where it happens to stop.

Fifteen tracks the full length of the sheds will be put down between them.

The freight offices now situated in the Union Station will be moved to a large seven-storey building on Simcoe street, at the corner of Wellington, which is now being erected

BRITAIN'S BIG ARMY BILL

London, March 16.—The estimated amount which the House of Commons is to be asked to appropriate this year for the expenditdre on the British Army is $141,000,000 against $139,300,000 last year, an increase of $1,900,000.

The sum of $1,170,000 is to be devoted to aviation.

SERUM PATIENTS ARE DOING WELL

Satisfactory Reports Received Regarding the People Treated in New York.

New York, March 16.—On his return from Canada to-morrow Dr. Friedmann plans to prepare for the clinics he is to hold next week, particularly that at Bellevue, which will be under the supervision of the federal health service, and be in the nature of a supreme test for the remedy.

Dr. Arthur C. H. Friedmann, the specialist's brother, said yesterday that the Berlin physician would probably spend all day to-morrow in his laboratory getting cultures ready for the many patients to be treated during the coming week.

Physicians who have been following Dr. Friedmann's clinics with interest say that a week is altogether too brief for any positive results to be obtained or expected. Dr. Friedman himself, said before he went to Canada, that he hoped for positive results only at the end of two or three weeks at the earliest.

Dr. M. A. Sturm, house physician of the Hotel Ansonia, says he was present at the People's Hospital when Miss Werger of Providence, the first woman treated by Dr. Friedmann, was examined to-day. He reports that the young woman's affected knee joint has astumed its normal proportion, and that the swelling has disappeared.

FELL DOWN STAIRS

Toronto, March 15.—Mrs. Matilda Davidson, 93 Grace street, is in the Western Hospital with brain concussion, caused by a fall downstairs in her home early this morning. Her recovery is expected

It appears that the woman was taking some food upstairs on a tray, when she overbalanced on the edge of the top landing and fell backwards down the stairs to the next floor.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaprilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

MAKING PATENT FUEL.

In the coal-mines a large amount of small coal is sent up, and, although the miner is not paid for it, it is far from being worthless or useless, the coal-owner selling all the small made at the pits.

In Cardiff, Swansea, and Port Talbot there are works where small coal is converted into blocks called patent fuel. The method is by tipping the coal into a large bin, after which it is mixed with pitch, and all ground very fine. It is then conveyed into pug-mills, and super-heated steam is passed through it, knives revolving on a shaft keeping it in motion while this is being done.

Afterwards, being then in a sticky condition, it is passed into a press, and a tremendous pressure applied. This turns the mass into hot, steaming blocks, which are then pushed off either on to endless travelling wires, which convey them into canal-boats, or to a jetty, whence they are loaded into ships for conveyance abroad. The different Governments use a great deal of it for naval purposes.

In the pit itself much of the small coal that is cut is thrown back with the rubbish, and only large coal is loaded and taken up.—G. F. Rundle, 6 Brookland Terrace, Caerphilly, Glamorgan.—5s.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Pankhurst and her militants find it difficult to admit the beauty and utility of suffraget methods when employed against them.

President and Mrs. Wilson have barred wine from the White House, but as yet it is uncertain what their policy is to be on the important question

Henri Bergson, the French philosopher, who has been visiting America, says he can conquer sea-sickness "simply by disregarding it. Possibly he has been reading "Cast up by the Sea"

In Mexico troubles are in bunches. The bloody uprising against Madero is to be followed by a presidential election, which in turn will be followed by another revolution.

In tis attitude on the Naval question, Premier Borden is pleasing a vast majority of the people of Canada, a few growls from the French Nationalists to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Toronto preacher who would tag the users of intoxicants apparently overlooks the fact that the man who overindulges tags himself rather conspicuously and needs no artificial advertisement of his condition.

Says President Wilson: "Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all onward-looking men to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them if they will but counsel and sustain me." These are the words that go straight to the hearts of the people, and they will response to the call to arms.

TO REPEAL THE RECIPROCITY ACT.

Washington advices indicate that the extra session of Congress will supplement its tariff revision by repealing the reciprocity act. A majority of members of the ways and means committee as understood to favor the course, arguing that the retention of the reciprocity law on the statute books in the face of the emphatic rejection of the proposal by Canada places the United States in a somewhat undignified and embarrassing position.

At no time during the passage of the reciprocity bill did the Democrats in the late Congress consider it as other than a political measure. It was a device intended by Mr. Taft to atone in part for the failure of his administration to keep its pledge to lower the tariff duties generally. It was supported by the Democrats for the express reason that it would make Mr. Taft still more unpopular, since the Western farmers were almost a unit in opposing the agreement. The Democrats supported reciprocity in order to weaken the Taft administration in that quarter. It was a political expedient on Mr. Taft's part, and the Democrats joined in supporting it because they realized its advantage as a partisan weapon.

With an administration and the Senate in Democratic hands, the Democrats in the House can proceed to revise the tariff and level duties are along the line. Under that condition reciprocity ceases to have merit as a policy. The law will be repealed, because with tariff revision any necessity for its continuance on the statute books ends.

THE HARD COAL ROBBERY.

As a result of the miners' strike in the anthracite coal fields in Pennsylvania a year ago, the arbitrators to whom the dispute was referred awarded an increase in the diggers' wages. The operators promptly began paying their miners the higher scale, and in the year since the strike was settled, have paid out a total of $4,000,000 above the wages of the preceding twelve months. But to equalize matters and to see that no portion of this increase came from the profits of the coal companies, the operators made two advances in prices. So that while the diggers received some $4,000,000 more in wages during the year, the consumers paid more than $13,000,000 over the old price of hard coal.

In other words, the consumers not only paid the wage increase, but contributed more than double that amount to the profits of the hard coal combine. Publication of this fact, in an official report of the former secretary of commerce and labor, has aroused a storm of wrath in the United States, and there has been a renewal of the demand for government ownership of the hard coal mines A Washington dispatch gives the news that a member of Congress is drafting a measure providing for government acquisition of the anthracite properties. It is added that a very strong sentiment exists among the Democrats in Congress in favor of this step.

The hard coal fields of Pennsylvania are under the absolute control of the anthracite trust. There are no actually independent operators. Those outside the combine are under agreement to sell their product to the trust. So that anything like an anthracite coal competition does not exist. Every consumer of hard coal, whether in the United States or in Canada—and there is a relatively large export trade to Canadian border points—is being compelled to pay what Mr. Nagel, late secretary of commerce and labor, describes as extortionate prices.

The hard coal trade bears no relation to tariff restrictions. The anthracite industry has developed a monopoly, not because of the tariff, but because the limited area is wholly in the hands of a combine which has fix and secure any price it may demand for its product. Every turn of the price screw is making more profits for the operators. But it is also making converts to the government ownership propaganda.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

There are two things essential to success every investor should be sure of before placing his money

First. Is the business the kind of an enterprise that has the power to pay large dividends? Is it one that has a big future before it, not behind it?

Second. Are the men behind the enterprise honest, experienced and expert in that kind of business?

This business was originally started three years ago practically without capital and today has assets worth nearly $30,000.00, besides paying good dividends.

With a paid up capital of $70,000.00 distributed among Bankers, Real Estate Men, Attorneys and Investors we are sure to do much better in the next three years.

The affairs of this Company will be governed by a Board of Directors elected annually by the stockholders, who choose the President, Secretary, and Treasurer. The officers will be bonded for the faithful performance of their duties.

Our references, Dun or Bradstreet Agencies, any Bank in Denver, or a list of over two hundred satisfied customers will be furnished on request.

SPRING.

Published by Request

Wild winds wail their dirges loud
O'er the earth in winding shroud,
Stark and frozen buried low
'Neath deep folds of drifting snow.

But the storm king's blustering sway
Sinks in ruinous decay,
And his surly visage hoar,
Frowning, chill our hearts no more.

Winter on his frosty wing,
Flies before the smile of spring;
His grim fetters all are vain,
Nature bursts the icy chain.

Balmy air and gentle rain,
Wake the dormant earth again,
Bids the rushing streamlets glide
Free and sparkling far and wide

Clothes the fields in gala dress,
Flower decked verdent loveliness,
Myriad insects flitting teem
In the sunshine's radiant beam

Loud a sweet voiced warbling throng
Trills their wild untrammeled song;
Pouring forth in joyous mood,
Swelling strains of gratitude.

Thankful hearts we too would lift,
Where descends each perfect gift,
To the source whence blessings flow
Ceaseless round our path below.

GIRLS AS HUSBAND HUNTERS

Experience Proves They Don't Want Much Help in Choosing a Life Partner.

To the many fads of vocational training in the public schools a new one was proposed at the recent Teachers' Institute in Cincinnati by Doctor Holmes, a psychologist of the University of Pennsylvania. He says, "All teachers should teach their girl pupils how to distinguish a real man from an imitation one. When a girl marries she is married to the family of the man for four or five generations back. If his grandparents were deficient she will have to expect trouble with her children."

There is a certain sex partiality in the inference that the proposed instruction be given only girl pupils, remarks the New York World. Surely, on equal grounds, boys should be taught to know a real girl from an imitation one. A boy may not have to marry a girl's family five generations back, but he certainly has to accept the old folks, and if he has been careless he will have to expect trouble with his mother-in-law.

But waiving the issue of partiality and considering only the vocation of the girl as husband chooser, very little reflection will bring out the well nigh hopeless absurdity of the proposed education. Nearly three thousand years of experience recorded in tales and histories proves that the more a girl is taught and educated to marry a particular man the more she doesn't do it. And who shall decide between what is a real man and what the imitation? Can any school teacher do it better than the school girl of marriageable age?

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

TRUSTS THRIVE UNDER FREE TRADE

How Combines and Monopolies Have Grown in Britain the Greatest Free Trade Country

It is often asserted in Canada that protection fosters combines and that a country enjoying free trade is exempt from the evils of monopolies and trusts. Several economic writers have investigated this question in Great Britain and their reports have been made public in various periodicals. One of these writers, Mr. H. W. Macrosty says in the Contemporary Review that in 1899 single amalgamations, while not entirely excluding competition controlled the screw, cotton, thread, salt, alkali, and india-rubber tire industries in Great Britain. In many cases where an actual consolidation had not taken place there was an agreement to maintain prices. In Birmingham 500 employers and 30,000 workmen were working under agreements to maintain prices, which were fixed by committees after examining the conditions of manufacture. Mr. E. J. Smith, the author of the Birmingham scheme of trade combination, said in January, 1898: "It was first adopted seven years ago in the metallic bedstead trade, and has been so successful in that industry that the trade is to-day one of the most envied in the country. Since then it has been tried by the makers of spring mattresses, cased tubes, spun mounts, rolled metal brass wire, metal tubes, iron and brass fenders, china, furniture, electrical fittings, pottery ware, common building bricks, and iron, brass and electroplated coffin handle plates and ornaments. Amongst other manufacturers who are taking it up are the makers of jet and Rockingham wares (potteries) galvanised hollow-ware, and brass and iron pins."

Many Consolidations

"There is no open market in antimony, nickel, mercury, lead pipes, fish supply and petroleum, said Mr. Macrosty. "Steel and iron rails are controlled by a ring. All the largest paper mills engaged in making newspapers have just consolidated their interests into one large combination. In the engineering trade twenty-four firms have a subscribed capital of £14,845,000. In 1897 Armstrong & Company absorbed Whitworth & Company, raising their capital to £4,210,000 in the process. In the spring of 1897 Vickers & Company, the armor-plate manufacturers, bought up the Naval Construction and Armaments Company, and later they acquired the Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns and Ammunition Company. Now they boast of being the only firm capable of turning out a battleship complete in every respect." The firm of J. & P. Coates of Paisley, after being formed into a limited liability company for the manufacture of sewing thread with a capital of £5,750,000, absorbed Kerr & Company of Paisley, Chadwick & Company of Bolton, and Jones, Brook & Company of Meltham, the capital being raised to £10,000,000, on which a dividend of 20 per cent. is being paid. In December, 1897, the English Sewing-Cotton Company, consisting of an amalgamation of fifteen firms, was floated with a capital of £2,000,000. Messrs. Coats took a large amount of the stock and it was thought that this would lead to an amalgamation with the great Paisley combination. In 1899 the new firm absorbed the Glasgow firm of J. F. & J. Alexander with a capital of £475,000. Seventeen firms of cotton spinners, mostly in Manchester and Bolton, had combined under the name of the Fine Cotton spinners' and Doublers' Association, Limited, with an immense capitalization. The Bradford Dyers' Association, Limited, is another combination which in 1899 embraced twenty-two firms with a capital of £4,500,000 and employing 7,500 men. As a result of a recent amalgamation of several coal companies one combination employed 12,000 men and an attempt had been made to consolidate all the coal companies. In the distributive coal trade W. Cory & Sons, Limited, formed by the union of eight large firms, handled 5,000,000 out of 8,000,000 tons of coal that reached London by sea in 1899.

Small Man's Struggle

In the retail trade the small man has a desperate struggle to retain a footing. Great department stores known as universal providers are crowding out the smaller stores. The joint stock system has spread to the distributing business. The capitalization of trading companies in the grocery, provision, meat, oil and drug trades organized in 1896-7 was over £18,000,000 and the movement has since been accelerated. One well-known retail provision company has a capital of a million pounds and another of two and a half million pounds. These large firms spread by setting up branches in both town and country, so that nowhere is the private shopkeeper secure from their competition. The prospectus of Lipton's Limited showed seventy-two branches in London and 181 in the provinces. The cheap restaurants of London are in the hands of four or five firms. The London milk trade is in the same condition. One tobacco company has over a hundred branches.

Where monopolies do not exist in the retail trade combines are generally arranged to control prices. The bakers, for instance, have a price list, and should any baker break away from it he is speedily starved out by the combination of the other bakers to reduce prices still lower. After he is disposed of the prices are raised again. The larger breweries have almost wiped out the private publican by taking over licenses through their nominees, and converting public houses into what are called "tied houses" bound to sell only particular kinds of liquors. Some of the large millers are getting a similar control over the baking trade by setting up employees of their own in bakers' shops, or by granting credit on condition of exclusive dealing.

Extensive Organizations

"The Proprietary Articles Trade Association," consisting of both wholesale and retail chemists and druggists, is an extensive organization. It was organized in 1896 and one year later included 1,709 retailers and nearly all the wholesale firms. The members bind themselves to sell below fixed wholesale and retail prices. A statement published by the association in the Pharmaceutical Journal says: "The plan by which prices are secured is simple. The proprietors of articles upon our list undertake to withhold supplies of their articles from any firm selling any one of them below the minimum prices or from any firm who after due notice supplies such a cutter with any of the goods."

"The Chemists' Aerated Mineral Waters Association, Limited," is a co-operative organization including 4,000 chemists.

Such was the condition of affairs in Britain in 1899, when Mr. Macrosty wrote his article. A great many more combines have been established in Britain since the year 1899.

It is evident that neither protection nor free trade can be blamed for the existence of combines. They flourish under both systems and a successful plan to regulate them is the solution for any evils they bring in their wake.

SCARCITY OF BUTTER

Lessons to be Learned From Importation From New Zealand

To quote from the Toronto Globe Toronto imports butter. Toronto, in fertile Ontario, with pastures sufficient to feed a nation with butter, has just received 58,000 pounds of very choice butter from New Zealand, at the other side of the world. The consignment was purchased by the Swift Canadian Company, and laid down there at a figure that will enable them to market it with profit. The purchase was made in view of the anticipated shortage of real good butter here. This is actually the condition of the market now. While there is plenty of winter butter and other off grades, first class summer and September stocks are limited so that there is a ready market for the new imports. Profits on this experiment would have been considerable had it not been for the recent mild weather and the consequent unexpectedly large production of butter in the country. More New Zealand butter is on the way to the city. While this purchase does not mean that Ontario is to become a regular importer of butter, the fact or the possibility that profit can be made out of such a deal is significant. Canada's dairy industry is not progressing in proportion to requirements, and the situation is rather serious. In 1912 Canada exported only 493,953 pounds of butter against 9,180,135 pounds the year before. Official figures show that stocks of milch cows on hand in Ontario on July 1, 1912, were 3,000 less than in 1911 and about 4,000 less than in 1910. Meanwhile the Province has been shipping many of its finest grade cattle to replenish the depleted farms of the Canadian west. Thirty-seven million dollars, the total value of the dairy industry in Canada during 1910, sounds like a good deal. Yet it is not sufficient or we could not bring butter half way round the globe to supply our needs. Not only is Toronto making New Zealand butter, Montreal and the Prairie Provinces are buying freely, and British Columbia has been liberally supplied from there.

More Mills Needed

Western Canada requires more flour mills, biscuit factories, cereal mills and pickle factories, etc. There is plenty of wheat and other grain in the raw state of the finest quality ready to be manufactured into the finished product, but in spite of this tons of biscuits, breakfast foods and pickles are imported from Europe and the United States for the local markets.—From The Dominion

VERBAL ENTRAPMENT

Happy Outcome of What Appeared to Be a Hopeless Mix-Up.

By Henry Mundon.

"If the firm doesn't raise my salary on October 19," said Allan Fielding, as he tried the new wedding ring on his fiancee's finger, "I shall do something desperate."

"But why October 19, Allan?" inquired pretty Lavinia Holden, patting his hand affectionately. "Why not wait till the New Year?"

"Because," replied Allan firmly, "everybody asks for a raise at the beginning of the year, whereas I am the only member of the staff who entered the firm's employment on October 19. Just think, next week I shall have been there five years. And to get a beggarly twenty-two-fifty a week! Why, we can't begin to live on less than twenty-five."

"But Allan, dear, you aren't going to do anything rash for the sake of two dollars and a half," said his fiancee. "Sooner or later they will do you justice, I am sure."

"You don't know old Briggs," replied Allan moodily. "No, it amounts to this, dearest. Unless he raises me to twenty-five our marriage must be postponed."

"Postponed!" exclaimed Lavinia in consternation.

"That's what I said. I'm not going to start life in a cheap flat with installment system furniture and—why, what's the matter, dearest?"

"If you think more of your old flat than you do of me," sobbed Lavinia,

"I'm Not Going to Marry a Man Who Says I'm Unreasonable."

"you may take your old ring and leave me forever." And, flinging the ring upon the table she hurried toward the door.

"But Lavinia!" implored the young man. "Be reasonable."

"It's you who aren't re-reasonable," she sobbed. "I'm not going to marry a man who says I'm unreasonable. If I'm unreasonable pray get some more re-reasonable girl." And she was gone, leaving Allan a prey to the deepest gloom.

For he knew that Lavinia, though sweet and loving, was of a disposition which could only be described as stubborn.

Allan came to the conclusion that it would be best to settle his difficulty with his employer before attempting reconciliation with his fiancee. Accordingly, the next morning he requested an interview with Jeremy Briggs, the head of the corporation in which he occupied the post of assistant cashier.

"Mr. Briggs," he began, "I wish to apply for an increase in salary, to take effect immediately. I am to be married shortly, and I find twenty-two dollars and fifty cents a week insufficient to support a wife."

Mr. Briggs spun round in his chair, his eyebrows lifted.

"How much did you say you receive?" he asked.

"Twenty-two fifty," faltered Allan.

"Weekly or monthly, Mr. Fielding?"

"Weekly, sir," replied the other, allowing a diplomatic smile to hover over his features.

"I did not know that, Mr. Fielding," replied Mr. Briggs. "I thought your salary was eighteen dollars. I should, perhaps, have been willing to increase it to twenty, but—no, Mr. Fielding, what you ask is impossible. Good morning, sir." And he returned to his papers, while Allan, too discomposed to utter the words which he had prepared for just such a contingency, retired to his work.

All was over, then. He must relinquish Lavinia and devote himself humbly to his firm's interests. He knew that the ultimate prospects were good; he was in line for promotion; he was too wise to carry out the threat he had made. But till these prospects materialised he dared not ask Lavinia to be his wife. That evening, seated at the table in his little room, he wrote two letters. One was to Mr. Briggs, apologizing for his action. "I very much regret that we failed to reach a satisfactory understanding this afternoon," he wrote. "I hope you will forgive the unreasonable nature of my request and disregard the incident." The other was to Lavinia. In this he passionately announced at once his love and his determination, with the secret, unwritten reservation that he would some day return to claim her.

Then he went moodily to bed.

He knew Lavinia's stubbornness and pride. He knew that she would never be the first to make advances to him again. The dawn broke, and he rose, after a sleepless night, ready for the new life to which he had pledged himself—a life of renunciation and labor. The sun was warm, the air fresh and ozone-laden from a sea breeze. All nature was smiling that fair October morning, and Allan's spirits went bounding up again. Only yesterday all had been well. What an ass he had made of himself—what an incomparable ass! If only he had thought things over! Now he had injured his

"Mr. Briggs wishes to see you in his office at once, Mr. Fielding," announced the office boy, as soon as he had taken his seat.

Fielding arose and went in to the interview. He cared little what the message portended. To his astonishment, however, Mr. Briggs was mild, almost apologetic.

"Er—Mr. Fielding," he began, "we have been looking up your record and I wish to say that—er—with regard to your letter, we have decided that we can afford to increase your salary rather than let you go."

"My letter, sir?" exclaimed Allan, dazedly.

"This is your letter, sir, I believe," said Briggs testily, laying a missive before him. "And let me say, Mr. Fielding, that you have pleaded better with your pen than you did yesterday in person. A vacancy is to occur in the auditing department on the first of the month. It is worth thirty-five dollars a week, and—"

But Allan only heard dimly, for, stretched out before him, he read the words of his own letter:

"Mr. Jeremy Briggs,

Eastern Reserve Realty Corporation.

"My Dear Mr. Briggs:

"I must leave you at once. You will not see me again. Think kindly of me, for I gave you all my devotion, and my entire life and hopes were centered in you. Yours, brokenheartedly,

"ALLAN FIELDING."

Half a minute later Allan was at the telephone. Just forty-five seconds afterward he heard Lavinia at the other end.

"I shall be home tonight, Allan," she said sweetly. "Forgive you? Yes, of course I forgive you, dear. But you will have to explain just why you wrote me such a dreadfully formal apology."

Western Canadian industrial centres are specially coming to their own under the aegis of the industrial policy of moderate protection which stimulates the creation of manufacturing establishments on western as well as eastern Canadian soil.

Commercial, industrial and financial enterprises in Edmonton made greater gains in 1912, the largest in the city's history, than in any two years previously, according to statistics quoted by H. Milton Martin, retiring president of the Edmonton Board of Trade. There is every indication that proportionate gains will be made this year. The percentages of increases for 1912 over 1911 are as follows: Building, 250; general business, 125; customs house returns, 113; bank clearings, 82; manufacturing, 75; postage stamp sales, 40. Permits for 3,611 dwellings, 101 warehouses, 117 stores, 20 office buildings, 15 factories, 11 apartment houses, 15 schools, four theatres and four hotels, involving a total expenditure of $14,446,819, were issued in 1912, Mr. Martin said, adding:

"Fourten wholesale firms began business during 1912, giving a total of 62 now maintaining warehouses and carrying stocks. We also have 90 industrial establishments, paying $46,834 a wek to 3,232 employes. Several concerns are building, and expect to begin operations this spring. The railroads operating in Edmonton have monthly payrolls of $100,000. This is exclusive of the hundreds of thousands of dollars paid by contractors. The bank clearings amounted to $220,727,623, as against $121,438,394 in 1911 and $71,533,115 in 1910."

A Bad Heart, Its Cause and Cure

Many, Firmly Convinced They Are Dying of Heart Trouble, Have Often the Strongest Hearts.

Sometimes you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and cause horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

Just read what happened to Isaac Malloux, of Belle River, Ont.:

"Three months ago I was a weak, sickly man. My appetite was poor, food fermented in my stomach, I had sour risings and indigestion. At night I would often weaken with gas in the stomach and heart palpitation.

"I consulted my doctor and used remedies that my friends advised.

NOTHING HELPED.

"One day I received a sample of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and my cure commenced. To-day I have a vigorous appetite, strong heart action and no sign of indigestion. I feel younger and healthier than ever before."

Your druggist or storekeeper sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Dog Among the Mourners

A pathetic incident was noted at the funeral of Alfred Austin Lucas, for many years ringmaster and equestrian director at the Tower Circus, Blackpool, at the Blackpool Cemetery. The hearse was followed by Mr. Lucas's faithful and constant companion, a black retriever. The dog wore a black bow and a bunch of violets round its neck.

AN ANCIENT DEPENDENCY

Mongolia has been administered after a fashion by China for about 400 years. Before that time, when the Russians had not as yet set their feet firm on Asian soil, the name of Mongolia was one to be dreaded. Mongols at times made their way as far east as Moscow and struck terror in the hearts of the Moscovites. The Seljuks, too, who overthrew the domination of the caliphate minions and gave to the rulers of Islam their great est warriors were of Mongol blood. Thus the Turks are the cousins of the Mongols. There are countless Mongols scattered throughout the dominions of the czar and they engage in a sort of peddling business.

In Mongolia proper, the Chinese province, the chief occupation is cattle raising and it is estimated that there are close on 2,000,000 camels in the country and 500,000 oxen.

Mongolia has been administered for some time past by a superintendent, who has headquarters at Pekin. It is known that Russia has had its eye on the country for some time and that the inhabitants are not enamored of the change of administration in Pekin.

Why London Was Chosen

The proposal to hold the Turko-Balkan peace negotiations in London appears to have emanated from the Porte, which, besides desiring that they should take place on some neutral ground, also wished to enjoy the advantages of Sir Edward Grey's advice.

The British Government agreed to the suggestion, and expressed gratification at the confidence shown by the belligerents. The Bulgarian Premier, M. Gueshoff, was especially pleased at the choice of meeting place, and in the course of an interview said: "I spent my youth in England, and studied at an English University, and learned to love and admire the English people."

Sandwichman and Princess

John Inshaw, a sandwichman, seconded a vote of thanks to Princess Louis of Battenberg for opening a bazaar at Liverpool, the object of which was to raise $30,000 for the League of Welldoers. During its nineteen years' existence the League has provided nearly 5,000,000 meals for children, 200,000 dinners and dainties for invalids, 43,000 garments for the poor, 182,000 beds for the homeless, and 123,000 midnight meals for the unemployed.

Boom on the Clyde

The leading Scotch industries are enjoying the greatest boom for years. Clyde shipbuilders have over sixty million dollars worth of British Naval work on hand, whilst the mercantile tonnage under construction in the Clyde yards exceeds three-quarters of a million tons.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of R. L. Deschamps Esq., 103 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal and of Thos. Hastings, Esq., Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

LADY WARWICK'S PETS

She Has a Great Fancy for all Kinds of Animals and Birds

Among the many things for which the Countess of Warwick is famous is her collection of pets at Warwick Castle. The countess has every opportunity to gratify her love for animals, as the estate has special advantages for the care essential to the different species. The birds have almost the freedom of a forest home. The Avon River, which separates just about the castle, surrounds a little island on which kingfishers and wild ducks mingle together.

Perhaps the best beloved of all her pets is the famous white peacock, which was presented to the late earl by Lord Beaconsfield some fifty years ago, before that having been the property of the author of "Lothair." It would thus seem to be quite an old bird, yet judged by peacock standards it is not yet middle aged, for a companion bird, also belonging to the aristocratic breed of white peacocks, which never mate with any but birds of their own feather, is established as being more than a century old, though by how much there are no authentic records to prove.

LADY WARWICK

A very old family servant remembers it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood, while his father, who died a very old man, remembered it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood. It is still hale and hearty, though it is losing its feathers and generally beginning to look aged.

Lady Warwick's most constant companion is a fine collie, which is never happy save when at her heels.

"Mother could never go about in disguise," says Lady Marjorie, the countess' daughter, "she would always be known by her dog."

Lady Marjorie is also fond of pets, and many pictures have been published showing her on the lawn with strange assortments of rabbits, lambs, terriers, collies and the favorite donkey. Lady Warwick is one of the best judges of a horse in England, and loves horses as only those who really know and understand them can.

TRANS-BALTIC MAILS BY AIR

Germany Makes Such a Proposal to Denmark

Germany has asked Denmark whether it is disposed to employ German airships in carrying the trans-Baltic mails, Denmark paying a small subsidy which will be devoted to building and maintaining an airship station at Amagar, near Copenhagen. Germany contends that air mail service would be particularly advantageous in winter, when the ice often delays steamships.

Denmark acknowledged the receipt of the proposal and expressed the greatest interest in the scheme, but as yet has made no decision.

Laughing Causes Death

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a chinese boy employed by Philletus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is "pulsed." He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the barrel of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

After dinner we had the usual music, and Evelyn sang again that lyric of Baudelaire's, this time in the original French. But the melody brought back to me in vivid vision our chance meeting in the woods and all its train of circumstances.

When I had finished applauding, Cameron turned to me.

"Do you like Baudelaire?"

"I like his art," I answered, "and his frank artificiality."

"He appeals to me," Cameron confessed, "decadent though he is. I have read everything he ever wrote, I think, prose and verse. Did you ever see my copy of his 'Fleurs du Mal'? The casket is worthy of its contents. It is the most exquisitely bound little volume I ever saw. Come, I'll show it to you."

I excused myself to Mrs. Lancaster, and with pretended formality bent over Evelyn's hand, brushing it with my lips.

"Won't you be back?" she whispered.

"I hope so," was my answer. "But I can't promise."

"Oh, what a trial it is to have a selfish uncle!" she murmured as I went.

Cameron led me through the library, across the hall, and thence into his study, where he dove into a miniature book rack reserved for his favorites. After a moment of fruitless search he said:

"It isn't here. How stupid! I took it upstairs a week ago, I remember. It is in my dressing room. Do you mind coming up?"

Did I mind coming up? How glad I was to see him interested! He was more like the old Cameron than he had been at any time in the past seven days. My golf prescription had proved even more efficacious than I had dared hope.

At the risk of being tedious I must describe Cameron's dressing room. It was not large—probably 20 feet square—with three doors; one on each of the three sides. That which admitted from the passageway faced that which opened into the bath room. On the left, the third door connected with Cameron's bedchamber. On the right were two windows, giving upon an outside balcony. Between them was a fire-place.

To the left of the bath room door was the entrance to a huge closet, guarded by a heavy curtain of old rose velvet. To the right, was a stationary wash-stand, and above it a rectangular mirror, probably ten inches wide and a foot long, and very curiously framed. Across from this, against the wall which divided the room from the passage, was an enormous chiffonier, or chest of drawers. In the room's center was a round table, on which rested a reading lamp. Between the table and the fire-place was a reclining chair. Other chairs, three or four, were variously placed.

I have given these facts because they are necessary to an intelligent understanding of what I am about to relate. That in furnishing and adornment the room was plainly utilitarian is not so material. But there is one exception to this general declaration which demands to be specified. The mirror above the wash-stand possessed a distinction quite aside from its practical utility. This was by no means the first time I had seen it. Cameron had showed it to me, with a degree of pride, early in our acquaintance, explaining that it was at once a relic and an heirloom. Originally the property of Nell Gwynne, it had descended to him through three or four generations of maternal ancestors.

The glass was framed in colored beadwork, to which were attached wax figures in high relief: at the top, a miniature portrait of Charles II. in his state robes; at the bottom, one of Nell herself, in court dress. The king appeared also on the right, in hunting costume, and on the left was another figure of his favorite in less ornamental garb. According to the legend which accompanied this interesting antique, it was Nell Gwynne's own handiwork.

It possessed for me a certain fascination due more to its history than its beauty, for it was not the most artistic of creations, and as Cameron poked about for his Baudelaire, I stood gazing at the glass and thinking of all I had ever read of the illiterate, but saucy, sprightly actress whose sole claim to fame hung on her winning the favor of that easy-going, royal hypocrite, Charles II.

"Here's the binding!" I heard Cameron say, and turned from the mirror to the table, where he had found his sought-for treasure beneath a pile of heavier, grosser works.

"You know something of bookbinding," he went on, with enthusiasm. "Now examine that carefully, and tell me if you ever saw anything more exquisite. I had it done in London, last year. It's a copy of one of Le Gascon's."

At first sight it seemed all glittering gold, but on closer inspection I found that the groundwork was bright red morocco, inlaid with buff, olive, and marble leather, the spaces closely filled with very delicate and beautiful pointille traceries. It was a veritable gem in its way, and I could not blame Cameron for his raptures.

When I had applauded and bepraised to his content, he took the little volume from my hand and opening it, with a sort of slow reverence, observed with something like patronism:

"I'm afraid you don't quite understand Baudelaire."

"Does anybody?" I flung back.

"He is not so obscure as his critics would have us believe," Cameron asserted. "Sit down in that lounging chair a moment, and I'll read you something." And as I obeyed, he drew up a chair for himself, speaking all the while in denunciation of Tolstoi and the injustice of his criticism.

One poem after another he read, while I lay back listening. To his credit he read them well, though he paused often in mid-verse to explain what he thought I might regard as an affectation or, as Tolstoi has put it, "an intentional obscurity."

There was one verse which impressed me particularly as he read it, and remained with me for a long while afterward, for, in view of everything, it seemed to have a special appositiveness. The lines to which I refer have been translated in this way:

From Heaven's high balconies
Geel in their threadbare robes the dead years cast their eyes,
And from the depths below regret's wan smile appears

Cameron sat with his back to the door leading to the passageway, and facing, diagonally, across the table, the Nell Gwynne mirror. My own gaze was on him as he read.

As he finished the verse, a portion of which I have quoted, he lifted his eyes, I thought to meet mine, but his look rose over my head, and clung while his lids widened, and into every line of his face there came a rigid startled expression, half amazement, half horror. And in that instant of tense silence the "Fleurs du Mal" slipped from his nerveless fingers, struck the table edge, and dropped with unseemly echo to the floor.

In a breath I was on my feet and staring where his vision had focussed. I hardly know what I expected to see. I am sure nothing would have surprised me. And yet I was scarcely prepared for the inexplicable ruin which my sight encountered. The glass of the Nell Gwynne mirror was in atoms.

Cameron rose, a little unsteadily I thought, and coming around the table joined me in closer inspection of his wrecked hereditament. I can find no word adequate to the description of what we experienced. Amazement and all its synonyms are far too feeble for the task. We were certainly more than appalled. What we saw suggested to me spontaneous disintegration. If such a thing were possible, which I believe it is not, it might have explained the condition of the mirror. No other ascription seemed admissible; for, though the glass remained in its frame not so much as a splinter having been dropped, it was fractured into a thousand tiny pieces, resembling a crystal mosaic, incapable of any but the most minute reflections. And the change to this condition from a fair unmarred panel had been wrought without sound and seemingly without human agency.

For just a moment Cameron stared in dumb awe. When he turned to me he appeared suddenly to have aged. His eyes were lustreless, and his cheeks wore a gray pallor.

"My God!" he murmured in a kind of breathless whisper.

I would have given a great deal to have been able to allay that terror of the impalpable which was gripping him. But I was helpless. Shocked and astounded myself, solace was not at my command. More to escape the piteous appeal of his silent gaze than in hope of making discovery, I turned in haste to one of the long window which opened on the outer balcony. Drawing back the sashes and flinging them wide, I stepped outside and, listening, over the railing.

But the night was strangely still. There was no sound, even, of stirring leaves. A brooding hush seemed spread over all the outdoor world—that ominous silence which often precedes the breaking of a storm. I looked up to find the heavens wrapped in a pall of inky cloud. And then, with a feeling of having fled from a lesser to a greater evil, I returned to the lighted room, and closed the window to shut out the horror of the night.

Cameron was standing where I had left him. He looked woefully tired and haggard.

"Explain it!" he cried, hoarsely. "My God, Clyde, explain it!"

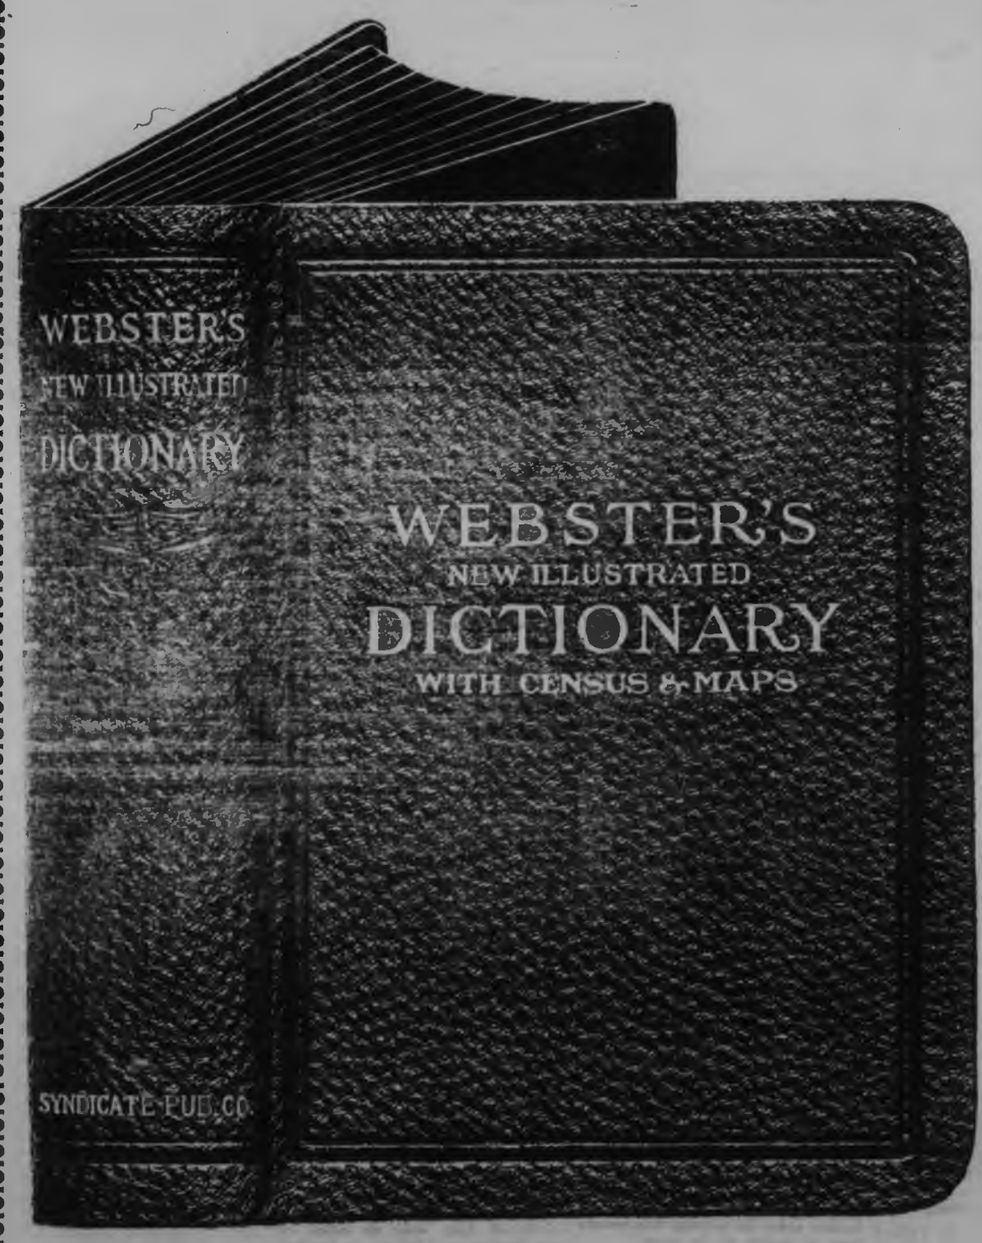
"I would to Heaven I could," was my forlorn reply.

CHAPTER VII.

"From Sight of Men into Torment."

Seldom have I passed a more miserable hour than that which followed upon the seeming phenomenon I have described. Cameron was nervously in tatters and my own poise was something more than threatened. The sight of a usually brave, strong, self-contained person of stolidly phlegmatic temperament transformed into a relaxed, nerveless, apprehensive creature is enough of itself to try one's fortitude, even with the most favorable collateral conditions. And the collateral conditions here were quite the reverse. That which had affected Cameron had exerted an influence upon me as well, knowing, as I did, all the circumstances and being interested, as I was, in my friend's problem. And so while his plight tore at my heartstrings, my own inability to grapple with the mystery contributed an added mental distress.

To my dismay I found Cameron quite incapable of anything approaching a calm, common-sense discussion of the matter, and realized to the full the mischief which this last performance, coming as a climax upon a week of more or less disquietude, had effected.



He sat most of the time with head bent forward and knees doubled, his toes touching the floor but his heels raised and in constant vibrating movement, as though stricken with palsy. The fingers of one hand toyed incessantly, too, with the fingers of the other, in a variety of twisting, snakelike involutions. In vain I endeavored to arouse him; to stir in him a spirit of retaliation. Some one was playing tricks upon him, and that some one must be discovered and brought to justice. Common sense told us that, however mysterious these happenings appeared, they could not have occurred without human agency. It was our task to discover the agent and punish him. This was my line of argument; but through it all, Cameron sat unmoved and unresponsive.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

During the cold weather the skin on the hands is liable to chap and the finger nails are liable to become brittle and break off. Both give the hands a very neglected appearance, which with just a little care and time can be avoided.

Before retiring for the night rub cold cream or a preparation of rosewater and glycerine on the hands till it has been entirely absorbed, also after washing the hands rub on a bit of cold cream, not enough to make them oily but enough to soften the skin. This will prevent chapping.

No More Asthma

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary writes: "Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

The one-dollar package last two months; small size, 50c; sample size 25c; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Judgment has been given at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, in the case of the Bishop Construction Co. vs. the City of Peterborough, as follows:—"It is reasonably clear that this is not an ordinary action. Law Should Stop Sale Of Elastic and Spring Trusses

Such Misery-Causing Makeshifts Are the Ruptured Man's Worst Enemies

Depending on elastic or spring truss—like shown above—is little less than slow suicide.—Such contraptions are almost sure to shorten your life.

It's hard to make them hold, even when drawn so tight that they scarcely give a minute's peace. They are simply a curse to wear.

And because they nearly always let their victims get worse all the time, they are yearly forcing thousands of people into risking their lives by undergoing operation.

These unscientific makeshifts cause so much misery and such a shameful waste of money that the law should put a stop to their sale

Don't Buy Anything for Rupture Without Giving It a Thorough Test.

There's only one reason in the world why you or anyone else gets saddled up with good-for-nothing makeshifts—

It's simply because you trust to a mere try-on or hasty examination instead of first making a thorough test.

A truss or so-called "appliance" may seem alright when you first try it on, or for the first few days, and afterward prove utterly worthless.

The only way you can ever make sure of exactly what you are getting in by sixty days trial—a thorough day-after-day test.

And there's only one thing of any kind whatever for rupture that you can get on such a long trial—

Only one thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test—

That's our guaranteed rupture holder.

Only Thing Good Enough To Stand a 60-Day Test.

We'll make you a guaranteed rupture holder—make it to your measure—and send it to you on a sixty days trial—

Let you give it a thorough test without asking you to risk a cent—

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way, no matter how hard you work or strain—if it doesn't prove every claim we make—then you can send it back and it won't cost you a single penny.

See What It Does.

This guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—is made on an absolutely new principle. It is far more than just a truss.

Unlike anything else for rupture, it is self-regulating, self-adjusting—instantly and automatically protects you against every strain so your rupture can't possibly come out.

And in addition to constant holding—without which you can never get well or even get better, just as a broken bone can't knit unless constantly held together—in addition to that the Cluthe Truss provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does that—entirely automatically—is all explained in the free book which the coupon below will bring you.

Will Save You From Operation.

The Cluthe Truss has such a remarkably strengthening and beneficial effect that it has completely cured hundreds and hundreds of people whose cases seemed almost hopeless.

It has so thoroughly proved its merits that many physicians in all parts of the country now recommend it instead of advising operation.

No Belt—No Leg-Straps—No Springs

This guaranteed rupture holder does away entirely with the curse of belts, leg-straps, and springs. People say it is as comfortable as their clothing. It is water-proof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof and easily kept clean.

Get World's Greatest Rupture Book

There are so many wrong ideas about rupture that we have taken the time to sum up in a book all we have learned during forty years of experience.

This remarkable book, cloth-bound, 96 pages—is full of facts never before put in print.

It shows why depending on elastic or spring trusses is about the worst thing you can do. Explains why druggists and many self styled "truss-fitters" should not be allowed to sell their misery making trusses.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc., and shows how old-fashioned elastic trusses are masqueraded under false and misleading names

It explains the dangers of operation. And shows why, if you do manage to live through it, you may have to keep on wearing a truss.

And it tells all about the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—how simple it is—how it ends constant expense—how you can test it on sixty days trial without having to risk a penny, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Also gives voluntary endorsements from over 5,000 benefitted and cured people.

The minute it takes to write for this book may make a big difference in the rest of your life. Don't fail to get it—just use the coupon or simply say in a letter or postal "Send me your book."

NAVAL BILL WILL PASS NO GENERAL ELECTION

Story That Word Has Been Sent Out by the Conservatives to Get Ready is False---Closure Certain

Ottawa, March 17.—The report sent out from Ottawa that the Conservative organizers have been advised to get ready for a general election is wholly without foundation. There is no thought of an election. Closure will be introduced and the naval bill will be passed.

LAURIER MAY RETIRE.

The London correspondent of The Yorkshire Post says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has written a friend here that if he fails to force an election on the navy bill, he will abandon the leadership of the Opposition. He is said to feel the strain of the present campaign of obstruction very greatly, and is really anxious to retire.

SOME FORM OF CLOSURE UNLESS LIBERALS CAPITULATE

Will Come in Form of Change in Rules----All Depends on Opposition---Premier Borden Big Man in House

Ottawa, March 18.—It is expected Premier Borden will give notice of closure some time today. This will be in the form of a change of rules. Whether these rules will have to be brought into effect depends entirely upon the attitude of the Liberals.

SIR WILFRID BACK IN HOUSE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had sufficiently recovered from his cold yesterday to be at his office, and will be in his seat when the Coderre charges are brought up. There is a feeling that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been present on Saturday he would not have allowed his followers to adopt the unruly tactics they did.

Premier Borden as a result of the Saturday night disorders, stands out the big man of the House.

Tact and Diplomacy.

It was his presence alone which prevented scenes of violence; in both the Clark and Martin episodes it was the Premier who by his tact and his diplomacy poured oil on the troubled waters. His closing speech also made it clear that the Government had no intention in the world of backing down, but would see that the business was carried on.

Before the Houses reaches the naval bill there will be a discussion of the Coderre charges, which are to be brought up by Mr. Gauthier of St. Hyacinthe, and this may develop into a lengthy debate.

HOCKEY NEWS

Special to The Times.

Toronto, March 18.—Last night the big Arena was crowded to capacity to see the intermediate championship played off between Collingwood and London. When the final bell rang the score stood the same as at half time, in favor of Collingwood, 3—2.

LADY CLOUSTON HAS VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. Gordon Greenshields Saves Her and Himself From Watery Grave.

Montreal, March 16.—A tragedy was narrowly averted at St. Agathe on Saturday evening last, whereby two well-known society folk of Montreal nearly met a watery grave. Through the heroism of a young brover of this city, Mr. Gordon Greenshields, both Lady Clouston and himself are enjoying the bracing breezes of that mountainous country, little the worse of their dangerous experience.

Mr. Greenshields and Lady Clouston were returning in a sleigh from a visit to the residence of Mr. Mortimer Davis, at about 11 o'clock at night. When nearly across the lake the horse took fright, and rearing suddenly, came down two or three times with great force on the ice. The repetition resulted in the animal plunging through into the water, bringing the sleigh and its occupants with it.

Mr. Greenshields and Lady Clouston were soon struggling in the ice-cold water, the cries of help went for nothing, owing to the lateness of the hour and the long-distance to any habitation. Mr. Greenshields through hard work finally succeeded in securing Lady Clouston and himself.

LINDSAY FREIGHT SHED WAS BURGLARIZED

A till in the Canadian Pacific Railway freight sheds at Lindsay, was robbed Friday at noon for the sum of $21, and although the police were notified, no trace of the thief has as yet been discovered.

The robbery took place when all the hands were at luncheon. Access was gained to the office through the door leading into the freight shed proper, and after entering the private office the thief pried open the till, evidently using a chisel or some other like instrument. The cash was purloined, although the burglar left a cheque for $80 in the till.

BELLEVILLE CITY HALL STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Belleville Ontario.—A terrific electric storm, the continuation of the one which swept over this district at midnight, burst over the city at 1.50 this afternoon. Every building in the district south of Bridge street rocked with the explosion of electric fluid. The fire alarm bell rang. Crowds rushed to the streets, where it was noised abroad that the City Hall tower had been struck.

Broken brick, brick dust, mortar encumbered the front walk. The whole centre of the south face of the clock was smashed into thousands of pieces. The hands were torn from their place on the dial and hurled to the roof of the main portion of the building. The whole interior of the tower between the four dials was wrenched and the clock proper stopped working. A huge section of the brick supports was torn out and the wires leading to the clock were melted off. It is thought the steel flagpole attracted the lightning. Fortunately no fire occurred.

SHAMROCK TEA UNDER THE FRASER MISSION

Yesterday afternoon a most successful "Shamrock Tea" was held in the Guild Hall of St. Paul's church, under the auspices of the Fraser Band. Mrs. Adam Hall presided and Mrs. Harry Thompson, received. Mrs. Ernest Moore and Mrs. Percy McLean presided at the tables. Mrs. (Dr.) Wightman and Mrs. H. Gillespie had charge of the tables, where home-made candy was dispensed. The proceedings realized $25 to the good. The decorations were in accordance with the title of the event, viz., shamrocks and similar ornaments.

LOCAL CONTRACTOR COMPLETES CONTRACTS

Mr. Pen Alexander, of the firm of Alexander and Miller, has returned home after completing two contracts. The first was the installation of a 5-horse power motor, to operate the fine new organ in Havelock Methodist Church. The other was placing a 25 horse power motor in Mr. Perk's elevator at Hoard's Station. Peterborough work is evidently recognized abroad.

TO STUDY ALL EFFECTS OF ATHLETIC TRAINING

Experts on Athletics and Professors to Demonstrate Theories and Methods.

Paris, March 18. The International Congress of the Physical Education opened yesterday by President Poincare, in the Amphitheatre of the Sorbonne, brought together delegates from most of the European countries.

In the course of the sessions athletes from Sweden, Italy, Germany, Denmark and Belgium, are to give demonstrations on the platform, of the theories and methods of various professors of physical training.

The Congress has been divided into sections which will study the physiological effects of natural and artificial movements, training for war, boxing, athletic sports, games, amusements and the influence of sports on women, particularly mothers and therefore on the human race.

Mme. Girard Mangin, who is taking a very active part in the women's section, declares that girls are not given fair chances to develop themselves in strength, health and grace.

FATHER, MOTHER AND FOUR CHILDREN DEAD IN SNOW

A Second Son Found Delirious and is in Hospital With Face Hands and Feet Frozen---Tragedy of South Dakota Blizzard

Rapid City, S.D., Mar. 17.—A. N. Perry, his wife, three daughters and a son were found frozen to death on Box Elder divide, 16 miles east of here, on Saturday. Leslie Perry, 19 years old, another son, was found delirious by W. E. Gearen, of St. Paul.

He talked incoherently of searching for his parents since early Friday morning. When told they were dead he fainted and is in the hospital.

His face, hands and feet are frozen.

Perry, who was Postmaster at Big Bend, left here Thursday afternoon with his family and household goods loaded in four teams, attempting in the severe storm to reach the ranch he had leased. The first intimation of their fate came when a pair of horses with gunny sacks over their heads and traces dragging, wandered into the corral of Milton Freaze's ranch. The trail of the horses led the searchers to a wagon half buried in snow. In the wagon, Perry's four children and Mrs. Perry were found. The father lay half on the ground, his feet in the wagon spokes. The other wagons were found at Cordez ranch. Two men who left Friday morning to search for the Perrys are missing.

AWFUL CONDITIONS WHEREBY GIRLS TAKEN FROM FOREIGNERS

Toronto Police Paid Another Night Visit to the Slums in the East City

Toronto, March 17. Police activity, which manifested itself on Saturday night in another house-to-house visitation by officers of the Wilton-avenue Station, showed that conditions in the east end slum district, which came into unenviable notoriety following the recent exposures, had not improved in the slightest. As before the houses were found to be in filthy condition, the rooms overcrowded, and the sanitary arrangements in a nauseous state. An average of seventy or eighty roomers were found in each of the premises visited, while in one restaurant no less than 130 Macedonians were discovered under the one roof.

In many places large numbers of foreigners were found asleep on the floor, the overtaxed accommodation of the wretched beds prohibiting their occupancy by more tenants. Those who had sought sleep on theor cots were fully dressed even to their mud-stained boots. The odors were so pestilential that frequently the investigators were forced to beat a retreat to seek fresh air.

Three Girls Removed.

In one restaurant two French girls were found, while in another small restaurant a girl who had recently been charged with vagrancy was discovered. The girls were removed by the police.

According to Inspector Allison the district is fast becoming a menace which will cause considerable trouble to deal with the overcrowding problem. He thought that the landlords should be prevented from letting their houses to so many tenants.

In many of the rooms there are no bades and the lavatories are used by hundreds of persons daily. As much as $5,000 per year is the estimate placed on the income of one Macedonian who rents a few houses and sub-lets sleeping space to his fellow-countrymen.

KEY WEST'S WIRELESS CAUGHT AT CAIRO, EGYPT.

Key West, Fla., March 17. Captain Hayden, commandant of the naval station, has just received a letter from Cairo, Egypt, stating that the Lloyd's wireless station in that city had on numerous occasions copied messages being sent out by the Key West station. It is said this breaks all wireless records, the distance involved being more than 7,000 miles, or more than 500 miles farther than a former's world's record.

WARNING TO LAURIER FROM LIBERAL PRESS

Montreal Herald Finds Justification in Mr. Kemp's Speech for Its Friendly Attitude to Mr. Borden's Policy---Winnipeg Paper on $75,000,000 Folly

Montreal, March 18. The Montreal Herald, the leading Liberal paper in Quebec Province, comes back again to its earlier friendly attitude towards Mr. Borden's policy of an emergency gift of three Dreadnoughts.

In a leading editorial it says:

"Hon. A. E. Kemp, a member of the Cabinet, has made a somewhat significant declaration on the naval question, in the course of which he says:

"What the Government is asking Parliament to do is to permit it to give an order for three battleships which the Admiralty consider most useful in strengthening the naval defences of the Empire at the present time. About the time that these warships are being completed and put into commission a general election will be about due. Whatever party is successful at the polls it will be their duty to direct whether these vessels will be subject to the direction of the Admiralty or brought within the scope of any policy which at that time it may be deemed wise for the Government of Canada to determine."

"This is a direct and unequivocal statement that the Government looks forward to the possibility of the Canadian Dreadnoughts being brought to Canada to form the basis of a Canadian navy. Of course, Mr. Borden's resolutions provide for such a course being followed, but the Liberal speakers have been disposed to treat this feature somewhat cavalierly, and Mr. Borden's followers have fought shy of emphasizing it, apparently through a consciousness that any reference to it draws renewed attention to the fact that the Conservative party has not yet made up its mind as to what is its permanent naval policy.

"Mr. Kemp, however, is sufficiently explicit. He accepts the logical consequence of the clause in the resolutions, and assumes the possibility of Canada, through either party, deciding at the next general election, not to have these ships under the British Admiralty.

A Justification.

"The fact thus developed by Mr. Kemp is the justification of course, for those advocates of a Canadian-controlled navy who have been willing in order to preserve harmony, to ensure speedy and effective participation in naval defence, and to emphasize upon the world the solidarity of the Empire, to give the Government the authority for which it is asking, i.e., to build three first-class ships, and to place them at the disposal of the Admiralty, subject to recall upon reasonable notice. We are being told that Mr. Borden is determined on a permanent policy of contribution, but one of his chief lieutenants is now saying that at the next general election the question of contribution, of a Canadian navy, or of any alternative plan, may be decided by the people themselves. It would be interesting and significant to have from either Mr. Kemp or Mr. Borden, a further declaration as to whether the Conservative party's permanent naval policy will be made to secure a favorable verdict on the present confessedly temporary policy. If the Premier will undertake to present his permanent policy to the electors, on his first appeal to them, a contest over it may be avoided if he adopt the principle of a Canadian navy, while if he adopt the contribution plan the issue will be clearly defined between the two parties."

ANOTHER BATTLE ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

Six Hundred Rebels Used Lard Factory as Fort—Woman and Child Hit.

Laredo, Texas, Mar. 18. A battle unexpectedly began in Nuevo Laredo, the Mexican town opposite here at daybreak yesterday. Carranza rebels reported to number 600, during the night had forced their way into the city and occupied a large factory. At dawn a salvo of rifle firing awoke Americans in Laredo. The first sight that greeted them was a rush of refugees across the bridge between here and Nuevo Laredo.

At 6.30 their rifles awoke the twin cities with a sudden fusilade.

This was followed by an hour's silence. Then the firing was renewed for a few minutes, only to be succeeded by another silence.

No details of the nature of the fighting have been received here. It was said a woman and child were hit.

NOBLEMAN AND WIFE END LONG QUARREL

New York, March 17. A quarrel of long standing between Count Cyula Di Festetics, an Austrian nobleman, and his American wife, over possession of their son, Dwight, was legally settled Friday, when, at the request of the countess, the court dismissed an indictment, charging the count with kidnapping the boy in 1907. The child died two years ago, and the controversy continued as a contest over the custody of his grave.

The mother was awarded the care of Dwight when the couple separated. The count carried the boy away on his yacht and kept him in New Jersey, where the governor declined to permit the count's extradition on the indictment of kidnapping found in New York.

FORMER LOCAL MAN BACK FROM ALBERTA

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, formerly Market Clerk here, who went out to Edmonton a few months ago to look after his interests there, returned home yesterday at noon. In conversation with The Times, Mr. McIlmoyle noted that the second day he arrived in Edmonton, he sold out his six lots he owned there at a profit of over $1000 above what he had been offered by wire. In addition to these lots, he disposed of $12,000 worth of other property at good prices. He still has heavy interests in the Albertan Capital.

In reply to a question put by The Times, Mr. McIlmoyle thinks Edmonton has a great future. "Why," he said, "the farmers out there have already sown their Spring wheat!"

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fresh southwesterly winds and mostly fair, with rising temperature.

Can't Afford

to put yourself in range of point blank danger.

Many people are the Bull's Eye for daily shots of the tea and coffee drug, "caffeine," that strikes home in wrecked nerves, upset stomach, and weak heart.

Some think tea and coffee don't hurt, but repeated shots from the drug is pretty sure to batter down the most rugged health in time.

If Tea or Coffee Is Firing at You

Better quit and get back to steady health by using.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Fractions shrieked when Kosciusko fell but from all accounts she will rejoice mightily when the obstructionists at Ottawa are given a quietus.

"On the Banks of the Wabash" has been adopted by Indiana as a State song. But a man who sings it outside of the borders of Hoosierdom will take his life in his hands.

Anybody who witnesses a bargain-day rush in a Peterborough department store will be convinced at once of the ability of fair women to fight their way to the polls.

A man who bet on the election of the Hon. Ted Roosevelt is going to lend a donkey from Portland, Me., across the continent to Portland, Ore. It will be an interesting parade of two donkeys.

Toronto Telegram, (Independent): "The revolt of British America in 1913 may have Winston Churchill for its George III, but who of the Liberal statesmen will officiate as George Washington in view of the latter's inability to tell a lie?

The Toronto Globe says: "It has never been made quite plain why there should be orchestral music during a meal." Dear brother, don't you know that that orchestra is utilized to prevent the other guests from hearing the spoon symphony which they newly-rich play when they eat their soup.

A headline in the Mail and Empire a few days ago says: "Premier Borden ate dinner, attended a smoker, and then went to bed." The fact that he went to bed shows how we have improved. In the good old days of yore the statesman who attended a smoker had sometimes to be carried to bed.

During the local option campaign in Peterborough one of the speakers at a public meeting said: "No man was ever lifted out of a tight place by a corkscrew." Which may be perfectly true, but many a time it has been the means of relieving him from a condition of distressing dryness.

In the interest of the hotel business, the new Nevada law will require a residence of a year in Reno to obtain a divorce. The old plan of getting a divorce between the schedule time of west and east bound trains did not provide the town with the money it needed.

Our esteemed local Liberal contemporary, in speaking of the situation at Ottawa, says: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." Well, we venture the remark that there is not going to be any pudding for the Examiner for some years, hence it will not have a chance to make the enjoyable test.

THE NEW BABY.

London leads the fashions in many things, but if London is to be allowed to extend this leadership to all things there must be something like a revolution.

London sounds the knell of the fat baby. No more will the weigh scales bring joy to the hearts of mothers, if an increased weight is shown.

Among fifty or sixty babies shown at a recent show organized by the Church Medical Mission, there was but one which could be called Falstaffian, and it did not get a "look in" as regards the prizes. Weight, in fact, was not considered at all in judging the qualifications of the youngsters for general conditions, cleanliness, feeding and teething were the important things.

The modern infant in arms is said to be as different from its predecessors of five or six years ago as chalk is from cheese. The beefy "John Bull" baby has gone out of fashion. The up-to-date baby has an elfin touch in its face; its buttony nose has a touch of insolence and audacity, and it has the "rare smile" which used to be the special perogative of the lady lovelists' hero. But it is a smile as subtle as that of Mona Lisa.

The modern baby is more intellectual than emotional. There was wonderfully little weeping at the Hoxton Baby show. But there was a great deal of self-respect. "Let me see its teeth," said the lady judge, apropos of a sprite of three months who have Ralked straight out of a picture by Arthur Rackham, we read. The little morsel with its infinitesimal fist tried to push the lady away. An old fashioned baby would have "yelled the house down" under similar circumstances.

Say to the Hoxton baby "Didums, then," or "O the pretty ickle sing," and it will look at you with cold disapproval. Its predecessor of half a dozen years ago would have gurgled with delight. But address the twentieth century infant in Johnsonian dignity of diction and it will smile its subtle, intelligent smile and become your friend for ever more.

Blinding Headaches From Catarrhal Irritation Now Quickly Cured

The New Inhaler Breathing Treatment Does Away With All This Sort of Thing.

"A stuffy cold in the head, or an simply ancient history to me nowadays," writes S. Nathan Smith, from Cornwall, Ont. "I used to have the worst kind of building headaches. They were torture to me on damp days when my catarrh was bad. I would still perhaps be suffering but for the fact that I saw a friend inhaling Catarrhozone with apparent pleasure, and I got the dollar outfit in the Windsor Hotel Pharmacy in Montreal. I could scarcely believe the way Catarrhozone cleared out my head. It let me breathe easier than I had breathed for five years. Catarrhozone has cleared away every vestige of Catarrh from my system. My breath used to be rank—now it is sweet. My digestion was constantly disordered, but since the catarrh is cured I have no stomach trouble. I am a perfectly well man, and Catarrhozone did it all."

For speakers and singers and persons troubled with an irritable throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh or la grippe, Catarrhozone is of inestimable value.

The inhaler can be carried in your pocket and may be used at any time or in any place.

Large size, guaranteed, and sufficient for 2 months' use, costs $1: smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c.: all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PULL STALE JOKE ON THE SUFFRAGETS.

Joker Has Piano, Coal and Other Merchandise Sent to Headquarters.

London, March 17.—A practical joker brought the suffragets again in to the limelight Tuesday at the expense of a number of tradesmen. The headquarters of the militants on Kingsway was the scene of the jokers activity. Throughtout the morning truck after truck drove up to the woman's offices, bringing all manner of merchandise, ranging from a piano to a load of coal.

The truck drivers all had orders written on the printed forms of the Women's Social and Political Union, and they refused to leave until the police threatened to arrest them and send their carts and wagons to the pound.

Ask your druggist for it. If he cannot supply the MARVEL, accept no other, but send stamp for Illustrated book—sealed. It gives full particulars and directions invaluable to ladies. WINDSOR SUPPLY CO., Windsor, Ont. General Agents for Canada.

NOT UNDERSTOOD.

Published by Request.

Not understood, we move along asunder,
Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep
Along the years. We marvel and we wonder
Why life is life, and then we fall asleep.
Not understood.

Not understood! How trifles often change us!
The thoughtless sentence and the fancied slight
Destroy long years of friendship and estrange us,
And on our souls there falls a freezing blight.
Not understood.

Not understood! How many hearts are aching
For lack of sympathy? Ah, day by day,
How many cheerless, lonely hearts are breaking,
How many noble spirits pass away
Not understood.

O, God! that men might draw a little nearer
Or judge less harshly when they cannot see;
O, God! that men might draw a little nearer
To one another. They'd be nearer Thee,
And understood.

THE EMERALD ISLE.

(By one of her sons—published by request.)

Farewell, dear old Ireland, my heart is with thee;
The land of the Shamrock no more shall I see.
No more shall I traverse thy mossy green dells,
Nor list to the music of sweet vesper bells.

Farewell to thy valleys and deep mountain rills,
Their grandeur my soul with ecstacy fills:
Every tree in the forest, every flower on the lea,
Reminds me, dear Erin, of home and of thee.

Sad, sad, is my heart as I sit here alone,
And think of the dear ones I've left far at home,
Of the little thatched cottage wherein I was born,
That sheltered my childhood in sunshine and storm.

Away up on the hillside 'neath the yewtree's shade,
My sweet gentle mother and father are laid:
And the ivy-clad church wherein they were wed,
Looks silently down on the graves of the dead.

Long years have passed since I left the old home;
Strange faces I've seen and lands I have known,
But there's naught can efface where'er I have been—
My own native land and its shamrock of green.

The land of the patriot, of song and of story,
Her deeds and her virtues are Ireland's great glory;
May she ever continue both steadfast and true,
To the little green flag and the red, white and blue.

Brave are her sons on sea and on land,
Ever ready to strike at the word of command;
Dear, dear to my heart's every foot of her soil,
The land of the shamrock, my own Emerald Isle.

MISSES WILSON MAY LOSE WARBIOR BEAUX

Washington, D.C., March 17.—The Misses Wilson may be deprived of the greatest joy of White House belleship if the quota of military and naval aids at the White House is reduced from twelve to six and the custom of having one of the good-looking young officers act as escort to the president's daughters abolished, as Major Rhoades plans.

During the reign of Miss Alice Roosevelt, now Mrs. Longworth, one aid was never sufficient, but she would have two or three as her escort. Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Miss Helen Taft were two other White House belles who enjoyed the distinction of being escorted about Washington by an officer in full uniform.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$37,000—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 50,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW.

As to the Tired Business Man.

See the tired business man! Is he really tired? Well, we are always hearing that he is.

What does he do? Why, he looks over his mail, smokes a few good cigars, dictates to Miss Snappityclick, motors a bit, lunches a little too well or banquets in the same fashion, roots at the ball game, gawfs some and possibly basks in the smiles of a peach or two in no way related to him, and incidentally talks a little business with a few other tired business men.

But what makes him tired? We do not know. But it is the shows that are put up for his delectation, the books that are printed for him and the everlasting piffle that is written about his weariness that makes the rest of us tired.

U. S. FACTORIES ARE COMING IN

And the Canadian Customs Tariff is the Lever Which Forces Them to Our Side of the Line

In a long letter dated at Medicine Hat, Alberta, on February 17th, Mr. Norman Lambert, a staff correspondent of the Toronto Globe, dwells upon the fact that American salesmen sell vast quantities of United States factory products in the Canadian prairie provinces, but he adds:

"When the manufacturer of the United States see that he can get such a large proportion of the rapidly increasing trade of western Canada, obstructid as he is by tariff restrictions, it is an easy guess that he will come over here and compete harder than ever for business by actually manufacturing his products on this side of the line wherever it is possible to do so. Western Canada is rapidly finding itself. The interest which is being shown by the manufacturer of the United States in western Canada is distinctly related to the interest which has been shown by his farmer brother."

Industrial Opportunities

To quote the correspondent further:

"That American capital is most assuredly taking advantage of the industrial opportunities in western Canada was borne upon one's mind very much more forcibly after looking about Medicine Hat and the little town of Redcliffe, which is situated only six miles west of it. During the past year nine separate industries entered Redcliffe, representing an invested capital of $1,750,000, and of that amount only $600,000 is Canadian money; the bulk of it came from the United States. In fact, the man who induced industries to go to Redcliffe is an American. He founded the place three years ago, because natural gas was to be found there, and he knew that it would not be difficult to establish an industrial community at Redcliffe. Medicine Hat also during the past year has seen eighteen new industries located within its boundaries, representing investments of from $4,000 to $1,000,000 each, the total amount of invested capital being $4,800,000. A very large proportion of Medicine Hat's new capital is also of American origin. At Calgary, too, one finds a company from Minnesota investing two million dollars for the purpose of manufacturing traction engines, and another concern from across the border spending a hundred thousand dollars in a brick and clay products plant.

Where is Jack Canuck?

The Globe man continues:

"This industrial development is illustrated rather graphically on the cover page of a special factory edition which The News of this city will publish this month. The artist pictures Miss Medicine Hat standing before long, lanky, benevolent-looking Uncle Sam, whose hat she holds in her outstretched hands, and into which that wise old gentleman is pouring factory buildings and dollars. John Bull is shown in the distance, hurrying forward over the prairie with a bulgy-looking grip in each hand. But nowhere, even on the far-distant horizon is there to be seen a sign of young Jack Canuck.

In this frank testimony three points are worthy of especial emphasis:

(1). The Toronto Globe's accredited agent admits that the national Policy of moderate protection is encouraging American industries to establish important branch factories at a number of strategic points on the Canadian prairie. In this way important centres of population are created as profitable markets for the neighboring farmers.

(2). British capital is following the American lead.

(3). Eastern Canadian manufacturers are slow to take advantage of the great opening made for them in the already great and rapidly developing western market.

Warren Overpack has purchased the Parmal Brick Company's plant, Medicine Hat, Alta., and will greatly increase its capacity by extending and installing new machinery. When completed it will have a capacity of 100,000 bricks per day.

The shareholders of the Alberta Rolling Mills Company have increased the capital stock from $150,000 to $500,000. The increase will be used to make further additions to the present plant.

It is stated that Mr. Felix Frank, Prince Albert, Sask., will erect a factory to produce nitrogenous fertilizers and other chemical substances, which would employ 2,000 workmen.

The William Galloway Co., Waterloo, Iowa, U.S.A., has purchased a site and will erect an agricultural implement plant in St. Boniface, Man.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will erect a nine-storey hotel, costing $1,000,000, in Regina, Sask.

UNUSED GUILLOTINE NEARLY CAUSES DEATH

Practical Joker Nearly Lost His Head Under the Falling KNIFE.

Berlin, March 17.—The police ordered the guillotine exhibited at one of the museums, to be roped in so that visitors can no more approach it. The other day a human head was nearly cut off by the old-time instrument of death, the victim being saved by a miracle, it seems. There were five or six in the party, if inquisitively inclined. One of them, when no guards were present, laid his neck on the block and told his friends to set the machine going. They understood, of course, that the guillotine had long been out of working order and couldn't be moved by the usual means. However, one of the practical jokers strained on the rope regulating the fall of the hatchet and suddenly it began to descend, making a big noise. The people surrounding the guillotine uttered a cry of horror, but were too dumbfounded to act, while the young man on the block simply stared with wild eyes, but he said afterwards he felt like lead and couldn't move. Only a foot above the neck of the venturesome young man the hatchet stopped in its course. Then all jumped forward and tore the man on the block away. That movement loosened the hatchet once more and it came down with a crash, burying itself in the block.

FIRED RIFLE INTO LOAD OF DYNAMITE.

Explosion Wrecked Boat; Girl Was Drowned; Suit is Begun in Federal Court.

Boston, March 17.—A case that is unique in court annals came to trial in the United States district court Monday when the suit of Karl Muller against the Albert Hanson Lumber Company, whose mills are located at Garden City, La., was called.

The plaintiff asks $15,000 damages for the death of his daughter, Katharine Muller, who, he alleged, was killed May 26, 1911, while riding in a gasoline boat on Hanson Canal in company with T. C. Lawless, vice-president of the lumber company.

The petition says the explosion of 450 pounds of dynamite on the bank of the canal sank the boat. It is alleged the blast was set off by a rifle shot fired into it by one Davidson, an employe of the lumber company.

The explosion which followed the report of the rifle wrecked the launch which sank immediately, throwing its occupants into the canal. The girl's body was taken from the water five minutes after the explosion.

The plaintiff alleges that the lumber company was guilty of gross criminal negligence in leaving the synmaite on the bank of the canal.

GOLDEN RULE POLICE CHIEF ON DEFENCE.

Cleveland, O., March 17.—Chief of Police Kohler probably will take the stand Thursday in his trial on charges of misconduct and gross immorality, and give his version of events that are alleged to have taken place in the home of Samuel D. Schearer on the night of June 5, 1912, and in which he and Mrs. Schearer are claimed to have figured prominently.

It is said Chief Kohler will seek to prove that his visit to the Schearer home on the night of June 5 was made on official business, and that he will deny absolutely that he visited Mrs. Schearer on the night of Feb. 2 and May 23, 1912, as the prosecution contends he did.

Orillia After Cobourg's Scalp.

Orillia Packet: The Cobourg Grand Jury deplored the presence of fourteen men in jail for drunkenness, and urged the Provincial Government to "find more stringent measures to wipe out this growing evil." The Provincial Government already has found local option, but Cobourg will have none of it. Cobourg enjoys the distinction of being the only municipality in Ontario which ever applied to the Legislature for a special act empowering it to issue liquor licenses in excess of the legal limit. It does not lie in Cobourg's mouth to complain of the fruits of the traffic which it is so ready to nurse.

Ninety Minutes of Matrimony

Evidence was given at Edinburgh in an action for divorce by Jessie Duncan, or. Cruickshanks, of Dundee, against James Cruickshanks, a bicycle salesman, once a resident of Owen Sound, Canada. The complainant said she was married at Dundee in March, 1908. It was arranged before the marriage that the defendant was to go to Ontario immediately after the marriage to take a situation, and that he should send for his bride as soon as he was able. They were married at ten o'clock in the morning, and at half-past eleven Cruickshanks left for Glasgow en route to Canada. For two months he wrote to her in affectionate terms, but after that he stopped writing. His present address was not known. The decree was granted on the ground of desertion.

'ADVOCATES CHANGES CANADA'S SCHOOLS

Kingston Professor Would Abolish Frills and Teach Essentials, Especially Writing and Spelling

From all over the Dominion apparently complaints arise from time to time as to the wretched results of the various systems of education in vogue, says Prof. A. Knight, of Queen's University, Kingston. Business men are loud in their denunciation of systems which turn out so called educated young men, who when taken into offices are found unable to write decently, to spell correctly, and, consequently, to compose an ordinary letter. The same complaint is heard from the authorities of many college throughout Canada: that students come to them without a right grounding in the very foundation of knowledge, the ability to write good English.

The impression is growing, at all events amongst the public, and in some cases among the educationalists themselves, that the cause of it is a too full curriculum. Before a proper grounding has been laid in reading, writing, and arithmetic, the three R's which used to be considered the true basis of all education, other subjects are crowded in, with the result which we see.

Speaking of country correspondents who write for city newspapers, Prof. Knight says: "The writing of most of them is exceedingly bad; uneven, untidy, slipshod, and what is usually regarded as uneducated. In the second place the contents of the letters show no signs of education; that is of an education which would lead the writers to choose subjects beyond trivial ones. It may be, of course, that gossip is what people want to read in these letters; but can it be of any great interest to learn that 'house cleaning is the order of the day,' or that someone 'has finished painting his buggy, which makes a fine improvement on it'?"

Then the mistakes in grammar are shocking, continues the Professor. Over and over again such items appear as "Mr. and Mrs. — was in town Saturday."

"Here, then, are positive proofs of the failure of our educational systems in the first absolute essentials. That they can be found among others than the country correspondents no one can deny. Surely there must be something hideously wrong with educational systems that force people not to be able to write their own language properly, and to have to acknowledge in this sad way that they cannot. Would it not be far better that our children should be taught to speak and write in pure English, even if half or more of the extra subjects be cut out?"

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of R. L. Deschamps Esq., 103 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal and of Thos. Hastings, Esq., Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

TWENTY MILLIONS IN THIRTY YEARS

An Estimate of the Future Population of Saskatchewan and Alberta Provinces

A Canadian correspondent of an English newspaper predicts that in thirty years from the present time the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta will have a population of from twenty to twenty-five millions, an annual agricultural wealth of 3,500,000,000 and an output of manufactured products of $3,000,000,000 or more; one city of over two million population; two cities with populations between four hundred thousand and seven hundred thousand, three cities of from one hundred thousand to three hundred thousand, and nine cities between fifty thousand and one hundred thousand, and in addition several dozens of large towns. He bases his calculations on the growth of the Middle West of the United States within the past fifty years.

Big Immigration

At present Western Canada has an annual immigration of three hundred thousand, while the average number of people who entered the Middle Western States from 1880 up to the present time has been only two hundred thousand per year; yet the Middle Western States, covering an area no greater than that of the two Canadian provinces, have now a population of twenty millions. Before 1880 there was no real development in this territory, and even after that there were obstacles to its settlement and advancement which do not exist in the Canadian provinces. For the development of her West Canada has the advantage of three transcontinental railways, facilities for obtaining a very abundant capital for productive purposes on a scale which contrasts most favorably with the conditions which obtained thirty years ago when the United States West was being developed. Besides this the markets of the world are open for the profitable disposal of everything that Canada can possibly raise, a factor which assures continued prosperity and cumulative growth.

Splendid Opportunities

Commenting upon this glowing estimate, the Vancouver Sunset says:

"On its face this calculation may appear exaggerated, but a little reflection will convince the most conservative mind that the picture is not overdrawn. Immigration is increasing year by year, and increasing at an astonishing rate. It is not too much to expect that within seven or eight years it will be double what it is to-day. All of this, of course, will not be taken by Saskatchewan and Alberta, but the greater part will go to the West, and a simple arithmetical calculation will show that an estimate of twenty millions of people for the territory from Manitoba to the Pacific Coast in thirty years' time is in reality a modest one."

The West affords splendid opportunities for the Canadian manufacturer if he will only take advantage of them by establishing branch factories at strategic points. At the moment United States manufacturers are showing great enterprise in that direction.

BRITAIN AND HER COAL

Supply Sufficient for Four Hundred to Six Hundred Years

Based on statistics compiled in 1903, and on an increase annually of 2½ per cent., the coal consumption of Great Britain is as follows:

Railways	16,000,000
Coasting Steamers	9,000,000
Factories	66,000,000
Iron and Steel Works	35,000,000
Other Metal and Mineral Industries	1,250,000
Brick, Pottery, Glass, and Chemical Works	6,500,000
Gas Works	19,000,000
Private Houses	36,000,000

5 to 8 tons of coal per household is burned in open grate fires of British homes per annum.

Output of coal in British mines increases 2½ per cent. pen annum.

Exports of British coal increase 4½ per cent. per annum. Coal resources estimate sufficient for from 400 to 600 years.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Phineas Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is spurned. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

And then there came to me again, that unwelcome suspicion that all along he had been hiding something from me; that he divined the cause and the source of the persecution but for some reason of his own would not divulge them.

I rang for one of the footmen and had some brandy brought, and forced Cameron to swallow a stiff drink of it, in which I joined him. But even this stimulant had small effect upon him. And when, finally, I reluctantly bade him good-night, I was overwhelmed by the pathos of his condition. So wrought and tortured, indeed, was I, by the sad picture of dethroned courage which followed me home, that sleep fled me and left me wide-eyed until the dawn.

The tidings which came to me with my coffee that morning were more than half expected. Cameron was ill, and his physician had been summoned from New York.

When I reached Cragholt the doctor had come and gone, and a trained nurse was in attendance. Evelyn, meeting me in the hall, conveyed this intelligence in a breath, and then, laying hold upon me, a slender hand upon each coat sleeve, her big eyes pleading and anxious, she ran on:

"It is shock, Dr. Massey says. Deferred shock, he called it. He says Uncle Robert has suffered from some sudden grief, fright, or other dreadful mental impression. His temperature is way below normal and his pulse is a sort of rapid feeble flutter. Oh, do tell me what you know about it. What shock has he had? You were with him last evening. He was gay enough when you and he went from the music room. What happened afterward?"

Caressingly I rested my palms upon her shoulders.

"My dear little girl," I said, soothingly. "I am sorry I can't satisfy your very natural curiosity."

"But it isn't curiosity," she corrected, promptly. "It's interest."

"Well, interest then. I'm sorry, I say. Something did happen; but to tell you just what it was, and why it was a shock to him, I am not able. Not now, at least. Maybe, some day, you'll know all about it."

There never was a more reasonable young person than Evelyn Grayson. Most girls, I fancy, would have teased and grown peevish at being denied. But she seemed to understand.

"Do you want to see uncle?" she asked me.

"I don't believe it would be wise," I answered. "Probably I, being a reminder, might do him harm. Tell me how he seems? He isn't unconscious?"

"No. He answers questions. But he never says anything for himself. And, Philip, he looks so pinched and old and pale! And his hands are so cold. The nurse has taken away his pillows and raised his feet, and—it's gruesome, that's the only word that describes it."

"But he'll soon be better? The doctor said that, didn't he?"

"Yes. He said that."

But the reaction which usually follows shock was only partial in Cameron's case, and for days his life was in danger. Then followed a period of slow, general recovery.

As the month of October progressed I feared the liability to relapse I knew, instinctively, with what dread sensations he must be awaiting the fourteenth of the month. He had been forbidden, of course, to receive any mail, just as he had been denied visitors; but I felt that an uncertainty that must of necessity prove injurious. And so I took Dr. Massey, in a measure, into my confidence, and gained from him permission to see Cameron for a brief moment.

"He has been asking for you," the physician informed me, "but I fancied it better to make no exceptions. Now, however, I see that you may be a help instead of a hindrance."

Despite the more or less circumstantial reports as to his condition and appearance which had filtered to me from the sick room, through the medium of Evelyn, Miss Collins, the nurse, and Dr. Massey and his assistant, Dr. Thorne, I was not altogether prepared for the marked change which less than three weeks had wrought in my friend. He was peaked and bloodless and tired and old. And his voice was little more than a whisper.

He made a brave effort to smile, as I came in, but it resulted in a sad grimacing failure. I lifted one of his thin, clammy hands which lay inert on the coverlid, but it gave me only the feebles answering pressure.

"I'm so glad you're better," I told him, cheerily. "Fancy the doctor allowing me to see you! That shows what he thinks."

"Yes," he whispered, "I'm coming round, slowly. And I wanted to see you, Clyde. What day of the month is this?"

"The twelfth."

"Day after tomorrow, it will come," he said.

"Don't be too sure," I replied. "I think they've done about enough to satisfy any ordinary villains."

He was silent for a moment. Then, with just the faintest turn of his head from side to side, he said:

"But they are not ordinary villains."

"Well," I said, "if it does come, I shall find out how it got here; and that will be a step towards bringing them to justice."

"You'll find out?" he queried, incredulously.

"Yes. I'll get your mail that day, myself. I'll tell that monument of pomposity, your butler, Mr. Checkabeedy, that I am to see every letter that comes to the house and know how and by whom it is delivered. Letters can't get here without hands, you know."

"Other things seem to be done without hands," was his conclusive comment; and I had no reply for him.

Concerning Murphy and the murdered Chinaman, Cameron did not ask, and I was glad he did not. For Murphy had been discharged from custody, for lack of evidence; and though there were some desultory efforts making to place the blame for the Celestial's violent taking-off, I doubted that they would have practicable result.

The precautions against surprise on the fourteenth, which I had outlined so briefly to Cameron, I carried out with added detail. For instance, I instructed Romney to report to me every person who passed in or out of the gates guarded by his Lodge. I had Kilgour, the superintendent of the Cameron acres, issue similar orders to his men concerning any strangers seen on the estate that day. And, finally, when not fetching the mail from the post office, myself—and four times I made the trip—I sat on guard in Cameron's study, waiting and expectant.

But the day passed; it seemed, without the looked-for incident. Every letter, by post or by hand, which came that day, inside the Cragholt limits was by me personally inspected, and amongst them all there was no one which bore the faintest resemblance to those two baleful missives of the two preceding fourteenths.

When I had made my last trip to the post office, finished my final inspection, and was almost jubilant over the significant cessation of the threats which, in their ultimate fulfilment at least, had brought my friend so close to dissolution, I made haste to carry to Cameron the glad news.

Oddly enough, his condition in the past forty-eight hours had materially improved, and as Dr. Massey attributed this, in part at least, to the influence exerted by my brief visit, I was now permitted to repeat the treatment at pleasure.

It wanted but a few minutes of eight o'clock, and Checkabeedy seized the occasion to inform me, as I passed through the hall, that dinner had been waiting for nearly a half-hour; a fact which I knew quite as well as he, but when I had chosen to disregard in favor of more pressing and important employment. Nevertheless I had dressed before going for the last mail, and as a moment would suffice to assure Cameron that all was well, I relieved the mind of the distressed butler, by assuring him that dinner should not wait over five minutes longer, so far as I was concerned.

A very light tap on the chamber door was answered by Miss Collins, who came out into the passage and closed the door behind her.

"I fear it is not advisable for you to see him, now, Mr. Clyde," she said, "He has suddenly had a return of some of his worst symptoms, and I am sure Dr. Massey would object to his being at all excited."

"But I shan't excite him," I explained. "I have the very best of news for him. It is his anxiety over a certain matter, no doubt, which has brought about the symptoms you speak of. I know I can relieve his mind, which I have reason to believe has been all day under an unusual strain."

But still this efficient-looking, white-clad woman was not wholly convinced.

"It must be only for a minute then," she finally allowed. "You can go in alone. But at the end of sixty seconds," she added, as she glanced at the little gold watch she wore pinned to her spotless waist, "I shall interrupt you; and then you must leave."

Yielding, perforce, to her condition, I entered. And as I did so, Cameron half rose on his elbow, regarding me with what I thought was anxiety for my report.

"It's all right," I said, quietly. "All right. Not so much as a line from the enemy. They have withdrawn, just as I—"

But he interrupted me.

"Here, quick!" he was saying. "Take this!" And I saw then that one hand was drawing something from beneath his pillow. The next moment he had given me a long envelope of that thin, waxy texture I had learned to loathe.

For a heartbeat I stood appalled, transfixed.

"Quick!" he insisted, excitedly. "Open it! Read it! She'll not leave us long and I must know its contents."

"But how—" I began, as I tore the end of the envelope.

"God knows," he answered, before I had put my question into words. "I had been dozing; about an hour ago. I stretched out my hand, unconsciously, and that lay beneath it, on the counterpane. It crackled as I touched it; and I knew then, even before I recognized the feel of it."

Sixty seconds! Was there ever such an interminable period? Sixty long seconds before that door would open with the interruption that would spare me. I fumbled with the devilish paper; let it slip through my fingers; tore a bit here and a bit there; finished the tearing; and then, dissembling, began tearing the other end. And still the seconds lagged; still the door remained stationary.

"My God, Clyde!" Cameron cried, in a frenzy of impatience. "What's the matter with you tonight? Are you never going to get that thing open?"

And then I, desperate, too, with eyes fixed imploringly on the door, was about to answer him with the truth—that I did not want to open it; that I would not, could not read the contents; that he must wait and trust me, absolutely—when, quite without design on my part, the envelope fell to the rug at my feet. And as I stooped to recover it, I heard the door-knob turn.

When I regained the upright, Miss Collins was entering, and the letter was in the pocket of my dinner jacket.

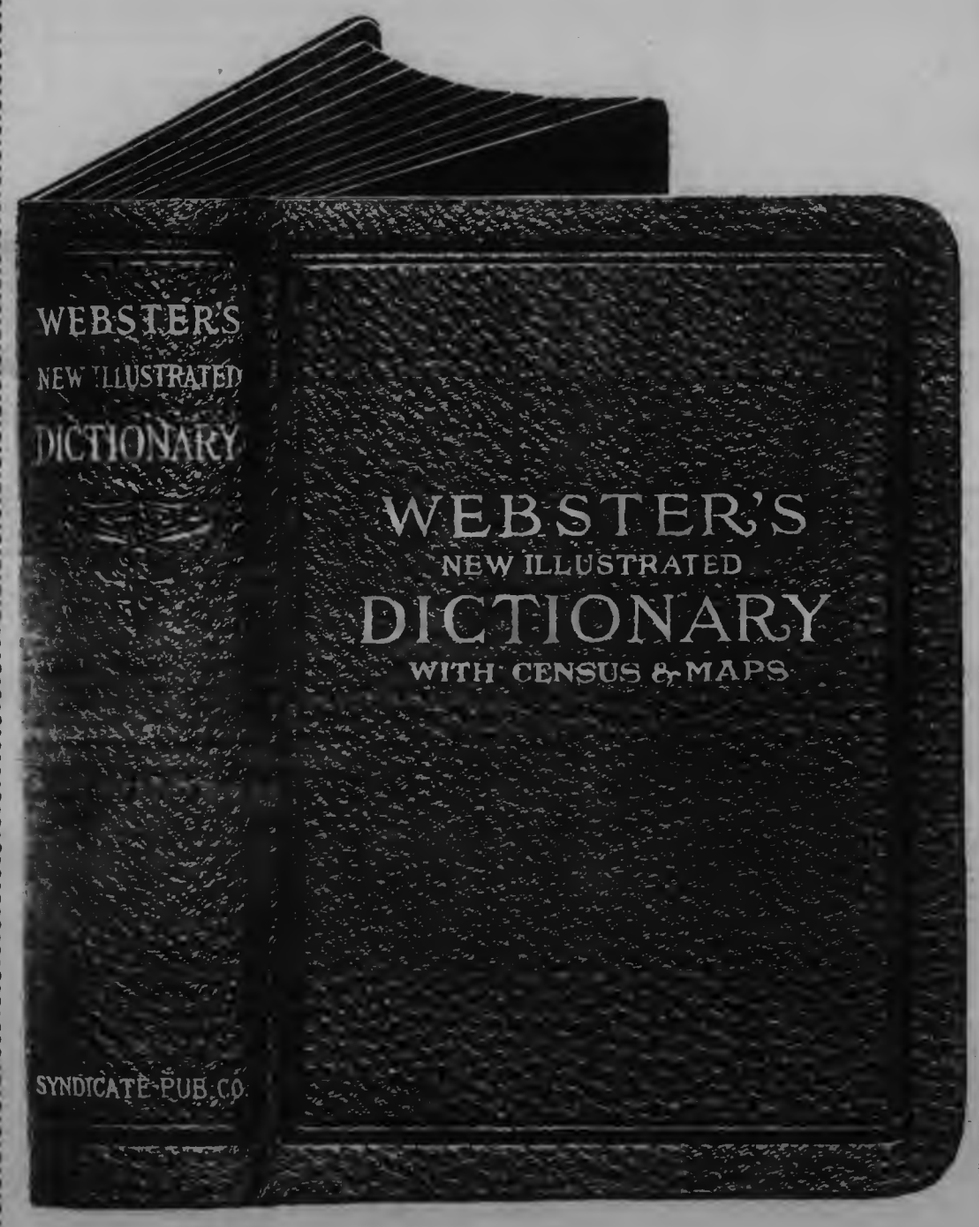
A MANY FINGERED FAMILY



In the Village of Koshilovo (Grodno Government), Russia, there are over fifty peasants who have more than the usual number of fingers.

According to particulars published in the Novoi Vremya, they are all descended of a peasant who married in the first half of the last century and who had extra fingers on one of his hands.

In the present generation this abnormality is reproducid to the extent of two, three, and four or even five additional fingers. Some cases simply show a thumb duplicated from the first joint.

As a result of intermarriage the deformity is spreading to neighboring villages. It dispenses the young men from military service, however sound they may be constitutionally.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Dr. King Loses Valuable Dog.

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock as a car came along Charlotte street Dr. King's 9150 thoroughbred Boston terrier bitch, "Gobel's Tess," crossed the track. Anyhow, the car killed the dog.

Men Stand on Left Foot.

Did you ever notice that the average man, waiting to be served, or, for information, at a counter, does not stand with his feet parallel? He does not. In 90 cases out of 100 one foot is swung back of the other. Yesterday a Times reporter had occasion to wait in the Oriental rotunda until a manufacturer from outside the city should arrive. The reporter kept his eyes open and watched 51 men doing business at the office. Of these, 3 stood with their feet parallel, 39 put the right leg, with foot attached, behind the left foot and 9 placed the left foot behind the right.

To Save Brigade Needless Runs.

Fire Chief Howard is a good natured and long suffering man. Still, if a lady, living in the suburbs of the city sees tabby-cat's tail ignite as she (the cat) purrs near an open grate, or a perfectly safe chimney shows signs of ignition, he seems to think that the owner of cat or chimney need not send in a general alarm and take the brigade and waggons on a needless trip for blocks. Besides a telephone message to the station would save a lot of trouble

PROVINCIAL GRAND ORANGE LODGE.

The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East will be held in this city to-morrow, Wednesday, March 19th, at the hour of two o'clock, in the afternoon. In the evening a parade will take place to St. Paul's Church, when the Orangemen and their friends will be addressed by the Rev. Mr Pogue, assisted by Rev. Mr. Biddiford. All members of the Order are requested to meet at the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, no later than half-past seven o'clock in full regalia. Everybody welcome.

Tried to Imitate a Camel.

At yesterday's police court, fines of $2 and costs were handed out to Bob Ryan and a man named Gummerson. It seems that Bob, on Saturday night did the camel act, and laid in a supply of liquor calculated to carry him over the dry deserts of the Sabbath. Unfortunately for Bob, that liquor got busy and Bob got tight. He tried to play quoits with a bale of dry goods in front of a George street store and was caught by one of the cops, as said bale made a parabola over the muddy street. Bob was copped. On the way to the station with his prisoner, the cop was halted by Gummerson, who remonstrated. The officer warned Gummerson to go in peace, but instead Gummerson went to the station. Hence his $2 and costs.

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

GREECE'S KING ASSASSINATED WITH TROOPS AT SALONIKI

This Was the Second Attempt to End the Life of King George, the First Failing Some Fifteen Years Ago

Early Story Gives No Details of how the Deadly Assasin Did the Work---The Dead King Was a Brother of Mother Queen Alexandra of England

Saloniki, March 19.—King George of Greece was assassinated here yesterday afternoon.

Saloniki, March 19.—King George, who had taken personal command of his troops during the earliest period of the war, had been here since December when the Turkish fortress was occupied by the Greeks after a short siege.

The Queen of Greece also has been here and has paid great attention to the care of the sick and wounded.

King George in December had a meeting here with King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and it is supposed that they discussed the fate of the captured Turkish territory after the war.

King George was in his 68th year. He was a brother of Queen Mother Alexandra of England, and a son of the late King of Denmark. He was chosen King of the Hellenes in 1863 in succession to King Othe I.

A previous attempt to assassinate him was made in 1898, but was frustrated

King George was married in October, 1867, to Princess Olga, eldest daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, a brother of the late Emperor Alexander II.

Warrior to Succeed.

Crown Prince Constantine, who has been in active command of the Greek troops throughout the hostilities in the Eastern part of Turkey in Europe and who was at the head of the army which recently captured the Turkish fortress of Janina with its garrison of 32,000 men, will be the successor of his father. He is married to Princess Sophia, a sister of the German Emperor William II.

King George was often rated as an autocratic monarch, but in spirit he was democratic and did much for the prosperity of Greece, which advanced rapidly under his rule. He took great interest in the organization of the defensive forces of the country and with the assistance of the Crown Prince brought the army to the state of efficiency which enabled it to overcome the Turkish resistance at the beginning of the war.

Warmly Greeted at Saloniki.

His name was mentioned after hostilities broke out as a candidate for the presidency of a permanent federation of the Balkan States consisting of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Greece, but the matter was allowed to drop.

THE BORDEN POLICY ENDORSED AT CHEMONG

A pleasing function was held in the basement of the Methodist Church at Bridgenorth on Monday night, under the auspices of the Young Men's Guild, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Ireland, in the chair. The occasion was a 17th of March concert. A splendid vocal and instrumental programme was rendered.

The feature of the evening was a debate or Mock Parliament with Rev. Mr. Ireland as Speaker of the House. The subject discussed was the naval bill. Mr. J. W. Kelly acted as Hon. Mr. Borden, whilst Mr. P. T. Kelly took up cudgels for Sir Wilfrid. Mr. Allen Mann, in uniform, acted as sergeant-at-arms. Mr Rolly McMann and Redvers Jobe were pages. After an hours' discussion on this burning question of Canadian history, and after the Grits had exhausted every obstructive tactic, the latter were caught napping, and a vote resulted in the Borden policy beinb endorsed.

Dainty refreshments, including hot walnut sandwiches for the ladies, and served by the young men, made a pleasant termination to a most enjoyable evening. It might be added that Rev. Mr. Ireland, assisted by Mr. J. Jobe, the genial postmaster, ably acted as cooks.

THE WEATHER.

THE LIBERALS CALM DOWN ADJOURNMENT APPROACHES

Disorderly Tactics Forgotten---Minority Rule is Shown Failure---Laurier is at Helm

Ottawa, March 19.—Liberals yesterday were inclined to be in a more reasonable mood; in fact there is a peaceful and conciliatory spirit brooding over Parliament more in keeping with the Easter season.

The Liberals now realize that the Government will not submit to minority rule and has no intention of being forced to the country. If they persist in their obstruction they recognize that closure is inevitable and also that the country will be inclined to support the Government in such a move. Under the circumstances, there is a feeling among the rank and file that they should bow to the inevitable. Whether leaders like Hon. William Pugsley and Hon. Mackenzie King, who have been in control of the party for the past two weeks, will agree to this, remains to be seen.

Laurier Opposes Rough Tactics.

It is said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier who is again in command this week is opposed to carrying the blockade any further. He has always been a thorough believer in strict constitutional procedure and ever lends his influence in upholding the dignity of the House. He was very much annoyed at the unruly conduct of his followers during his absence and is inclined to bring the fight on the Naval Bill to a close within a reasonable time.

Closure Depends on Liberals.

It is rumored that negotiations are in progress between the leaders at the present time and that the Liberals are willing to accept Premier Borden's suggestion of Saturday night that a reasonable time be fixed for the closing of the debate in committee and for passing the third reading. If the Liberals agree to this then closure will be dropped for the time being.

WELCOME TO OUR ORANGE VISITORS

The Times joins with the city, in extending a hearty welcome to the visiting brethren of the Grand Orange Lodge of Eastern Ontario. Peterborough has always had a deep seated admiration for the Orange Order, whose methods are distinctly advocative of loyalty to the Empire and equal rights for all without respect to creed or race. His Worship, Mayor Bradburn will officially welcome our distinguished visitors.

THE ORANGE ORDER.

The Orange Order, originally of Irish Protestants, has ramifications in other parts of the United Kingdom and British Colonies. The name is derived from William III., Prince of Orange. Whilst a secret society, their toasts and sentiments given openly, display their patriotic spirit and broad minded tolerance. The legend "No Surrender," so frequently seen emblazoned on banners carried in Orange processions, is an illusion to Londonderry. The words oft used in toasts: "A fig for the Bishop of Cork," alludes to Dr. Peter Brown, who, in 1715, wrote cogently against the practice of toasting the dead. The original object of the Society was the maintenance of Protestant ascendancy, and that spirit still survives. The first regular lodges were founded in 1795, but the system existed earlier. Orange lilies are worn in Ulster on the 1st and 12th of July, anniversaries of the Boyne and Augrim. Another great day is the 5th of November, when William III. landed in Torbay.

CANADA'S BUSINESS WOULD SUFFER BY AN ELECTION

On Economic and Non-Political Grounds Liberal Policy Condemned--Peace, Progress and Prosperity

Montreal, March The Financial Times publishes a long series of letters from men in the front rank of the financial and business life of Canada, almost without exception deprecating in the strongest possible terms, upon purely economic and non-political grounds, the holding of an election in the present critical state of the country's monetary conditions.

Among these are the following:

Very Hurtful.

Mr. Andrew A. Allan:—My humble opinion is that an election at this time would be very hurtful to the financial position in Canada and to the country.

Mr. Geo. T. Somers, Toronto:—Replying to your inquiry regarding the advisability of holding general election in Canada during the year 1913, this in my opinion would be very inadvisable. The severe criticism of Canada's borrowings and her ability to make good her past borrowings, not only from London, but from the financial centres of Europe and the United States, and the present condition of the money market in Canada as well as in other parts of the world, seem to me would make it advisable that we, as Canadians, should devote our whole time and energies to the work of development and productiveness, thus showing those centres of criticism the fallacy of statements made by some of their financial journals and public men. An election in Canada in 1913 could not help but disturb business conditions for many months in every part of the Dominion and in my opinion would be very ill advised. The people of Canada want peace, progress and prosperity and elections only at such times as they are demanded by the constitution, or where some question on which there is a much greater difference of opinion among Canadians than anything before the Canadian Parliament, requires the voice of the people.

"If she spent as much time on her grammar as she does on her clothes perhaps she could pass in a crowd."

GRAND BLACK CHAPTER OPENS THEIR ANNUAL SESSION HERE

Eastern Ontario Orangemen Thronging into the City in Great Numbers---The Grand Lodge Opens To-day in Forresters Hall at 2 o'clock

The 37th annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario, opened their first session at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street. More than one hundred delegates were present, being the largest meeting in the history of the Chapter, and was presided over by Grand Master W. H. Sproule, of Ottawa.

General committee work and business of a routine nature occupied the attention of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter yesterday and will today, and will be followed by the Grand Orange Lodge meeting, which opens to-day at 2 o'clock.

The session will continue to-day, Thursday and part of Friday.

The two most important questions to be dealt with are Marriage Laws and Bi-lingual Schools, and it is expected that there will be considerable discussion on both of these points from the delegates present.

The district represented in the convention includes Victoria and Durham, west of this city, and all Ontario East. Colonel John Hughes, Grand Master for Ontario, will preside at the convention. He and Mr. W. H. Sproule, of Ottawa, Grand Master of the Black Knights, will be among the chief speakers.

GRAND MASTER'S REPORT.

To the Officers and Members of Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East,—

Dear Sir Knights,—

I fully appreciate the compliment conveyed in my appointment to the office of which I have the honor to hold. I nevertheless regret that its duties were not entrusted to abler and worthier hands; for in my case enthusiasm must somewhat take the place of ripe experience and devotion be received in the place of the rare gift of oratory and the rounded periods of eloquence. Still enthusiasm in the accomplishment of a worthy object is well, and what is nobler than devotion to a sacred cause. There is a charm, a beauty, aye a moral sublimity in unchanging devotion and unwavering faith and where do we find more devotion and faith than in the Order to which we belong and in accordance with whose customs we are assembling here to-day.

In looking over the work of the past year, we can look back with pride on the progress which our Order has made. Large numbers have been added to our membership and several new Perceptories have been opened, and all along the line, vast progress has been made, as you will see by the reports of the Grand Registrar and Grand Treasurer.

There is special need for an organization of this kind in Canada at the present time. We have in this country a great heritage; there is probably no similar area of the earth's surface so richly endowed as the Dominion of Canada. If we except the Rocky Mountains, speaking broadly, every acre of our land is productive. We have the finest agricultural areas in the world. We have a series of fresh water lakes that are veritable inland seas, not only producing high ways for our commerce, but producing an inestimable store of fish. We have forest wealth almost incalculable, and we have mineral deposits the extent of which we have only the faintest conception.

I will not detain you any longer as there are other reports to be presented to this Grand Chapter. I trust that the decisions which I have given during the past year in matters referred to me have been satisfactory as I have endeavored to do my duty faithfully and to bring honour to our Order.

My brethren I have done. When this Grand Session is over you will go back to your several callings for another year's work. Let not the lessons of these returning seasons be lost upon you, or forgotten in the busy battle of life. They each mark to us the rapid passage of time and the nearing of Eternity. They are pleasant spots in memory to which we turn. Let us hope not so much as momentoes of the past, as prophesies for the future, but each admonishingly points us to that last gathering that sooner or later will come. And then—what then. Then, my brethren, comes the examination and test. Look well to the East and see to it that you possess the true word that gives admission to the City and Temple of our God.

Fraternally yours,
W. H. SPROULE,
Grand Master.

REPORT OF GRAND REGISTRAR.

To the Right Worshipful Grand Master, Officers and Members of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario.

Rt. Worshipful Sir and Sir Knights—

Another year has past and we are again permitted by the Gracious Providence of Almighty God to assemble in this enterprising City of Peterborough in open Chapter to discuss various causes as to the advancement of our beloved Order.

State of the Order.

In reviewing the work of the past year it affords me much pleasure to report a very successful year. Four new Perceptories have been organized. One at Napanee on April 9th, 1912, with 26 members, Sir A. Graham of Kingston, Instituting Officers. One at Cardinal in the County of Grenville on July 9th, 1912, by Sir Howard Mills, with 12 members. One in the City of Belleville, on Mar. 7th, Sir W. McMechan, Deputy Grand Master, Instituting Officer, having a membership of 19, and in the issue of The Sentinel of March 13th, I find that a new Perceptory has been started at Toledo, in the County of Leeds, Sir John A. Graham of Smith's Falls, Instituting Officer. No correspondence of any kind has ever been received at this office in connection with the opening of above Chapter. Instituting Officers should not consider their work completed at the organization meeting, they should report at once to the Registrar of the Provincial Chapter. Applications have been applied for to start a Perceptory at Trenton in the County of Hastings, one at Fermoy in the County of Frontenac, and one at Havelock in the County of Peterborough.

Correspondence.

The correspondence during the past year has been to me of a most pleasant and profitable nature.

Copies of the resolutions passed by this Grand Chapter at its last session were forwarded to the Most Worshipful, the Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of Ireland and to the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Ontario West. The annual reports of this Grand Chapter were mailed to the officers of this Grand Chapter and to each Perceptor in Eastern Ontario as soon as received

Because it is rich in the vital food elements, including the organic phosphate of potash, that valuable mineral element stored by Nature under the outer shell of wheat and barley.

Ottawa, March 19.—Liberals yesterday were inclined to be in a more reasonable mood; in fact there is a peaceful and conciliatory spirit brooding over Parliament more in keeping with the Easter season.

The Liberals now realize that the Government will not submit to minority rule and has no intention of being forced to the country. If they persist in their obstruction they recognize that closure is inevitable and also that the country will be inclined to support the Government in such a move. Under the circumstances, there is a feeling among the rank and file that they should bow to the inevitable. Whether leaders like Hon. William Pugsley and Hon. Mackenzie King, who have been in control of the party for the past two weeks, will agree to this, remains to be seen.

Laurier Opposes Rough Tactics.

It is said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier who is again in command this week is opposed to carrying the blockade any further. He has always been a thorough believer in strict constitutional procedure and ever lends his influence in upholding the dignity of the House. He was very much annoyed at the unruly conduct of his followers during his absence and is inclined to bring the fight on the Naval Bill to a close within a reasonable time.

Closure Depends on Liberals.

It is rumored that negotiations are in progress between the leaders at the present time and that the Liberals are willing to accept Premier Borden's suggestion of Saturday night that a reasonable time be fixed for the closing of the debate in committee and for passing the third reading. If the Liberals agree to this then closure will be dropped for the time being.

WELCOME TO OUR ORANGE VISITORS

The Times joins with the city in extending a hearty welcome to the visiting brethren of the Grand Orange Lodge of Eastern Ontario. Peterborough has always had a deep seated admiration for the Orange Order, whose methods are distinctly advocative of loyalty to the Empire and equal rights for all without respect to creed or race. His Worship, Mayor Bradburn will officially welcome our distinguished visitors.

THE ORANGE ORDER.

The Orange Order, originally of Irish Protestants, has ramifications in other parts of the United Kingdom and British Colonies. The name is derived from William III., Prince of Orange. Whilst a secret society, their toasts and sentiments given openly, display their patriotic spirit and broad minded tolerance. The legend "No Surrender," so frequently seen emblazoned on banners carried in Orange processions, is an illusion to Londonderry. The words oft used in toasts: "A fig for the Bishop of Cork," alludes to Dr. Peter Brown, who, in 1715, wrote cogently against the practice of toasting the dead. The original object of the Society was the maintenance of Protestant ascendancy, and that spirit still survives. The first regular lodges were founded in 1795, but the system existed earlier. Orange lilies are worn in Ulster on the 1st and 12th of July, anniversaries of the Boyne and Augrim. Another great day is the 5th of November, when William III. landed in Torbay.

CANADA'S BUSINESS WOULD SUFFER BY AN ELECTION

On Economic and Non-Political Grounds Liberal Policy Condemned--Peace, Progress and Prosperity

Montreal, March The Financial Times publishes a long series of letters from men in the front rank of the financial and business life of Canada, almost without exception deprecating in the strongest possible terms, upon purely economic and non-political grounds, the holding of an election in the present critical state of the country's monetary conditions.

Among these are the following

Very Hurtful.

Mr. Andrew A. Allan:—My humble opinion is that an election at this time would be very hurtful to the financial position in Canada and to the country.

Mr. Geo. T. Somers, Toronto:—Replying to your inquiry regarding the advisability of holding general election in Canada during the year 1913, this in my opinion would be very inadvisable. The severe criticism of Canada's borrowings and her ability to make good her past borrowings, not only from London, but from the financial centres of Europe and the United States, and the present condition of the money market in Canada as well as in other parts of the world, seem to me would make it advisable that we, as Canadians, should devote our whole time and energies to the work of development and productiveness, thus showing those centres of criticism the fallacy of statements made by some of their financial journals and public men. An election in Canada in 1913 could not help but disturb business conditions for many months in every part of the Dominion and in my opinion would be very ill advised. The people of Canada want peace, progress and prosperity and elections only at such times as they are demanded by the constitution, or where some question on which there is a much greater difference of opinion among Canadians than anything before the Canadian Parliament requires the voice of the people.

"If she spent as much time on her grammar as she does on her clothes perhaps she could pass in a crowd."

GRAND BLACK CHAPTER OPENS THEIR ANNUAL SESSION HERE

Eastern Ontario Orangemen Thronging into the City in Great Numbers---The Grand Lodge Opens To-day in Forresters Hall at 2 o'clock

The 37th annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario, opened their first session at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street. More than one hundred delegates were present, being the largest meeting in the history of the Chapter, and was presided over by Grand Master W. H. Sproule, of Ottawa.

General committee work and business of a routine nature occupied the attention of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter yesterday and will today, and will be followed by the Grand Orange Lodge meeting, which opens to-day at 2 o'clock.

The session will continue to-day, Thursday and part of Friday.

The two most important questions to be dealt with are Marriage Laws and Bi-lingual Schools, and it is expected that there will be considerable discussion on both of these points from the delegates present.

The district represented in the convention includes Victoria and Durham, west of this city, and all Ontario East. Colonel John Hughes, Grand Master for Ontario, will preside at the convention. He and Mr. W. H. Sproule, of Ottawa, Grand Master of the Black Knights, will be among the chief speakers.

GRAND MASTER'S REPORT.

To the Officers and Members of Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East,—

Dear Sir Knights,—

I fully appreciate the compliment conveyed in my appointment to the office of which I have the honor to hold. I nevertheless regret that its duties were not entrusted to abler and worthier hands; for in my case enthusiasm must somewhat take the place of ripe experience and devotion be received in the place of the rare gift of oratory and the rounded periods of eloquence. Still enthusiasm in the accomplishment of a worthy object is well, and what is nobler than devotion to a sacred cause. There is a charm, a beauty, aye a moral sublimity in unchanging devotion and unwavering faith and where do we find more devotion and faith than in the Order to which we belong and in accordance with whose customs we are assembling here to-day.

In looking over the work of the past year, we can look back with pride on the progress which our Order has made. Large numbers have been added to our membership and several new Perceptories have been opened, and all along the line, vast progress has been made, as you will see by the reports of the Grand Registrar and Grand Treasurer.

There is special need for an organization of this kind in Canada at the present time. We have in this country a great heritage; there is probably no similar area of the earth's surface so richly endowed as the Dominion of Canada. If we except the Rocky Mountains, speaking broadly, every acre of our land is productive. We have the finest agricultural areas in the world. We have a series of fresh water lakes that are veritable inland seas, not only producing highways for our commerce, but producing an inestimable store of fish. We have forest wealth almost incalculable, and we have mineral deposits the extent of which we have only the faintest conception.

I will not detain you any longer as there are other reports to be presented to this Grand Chapter. I trust that the decisions which I have given during the past year in matters referred to me have been satisfactory as I have endeavored to do my duty faithfully and to bring honour to our Order.

My brethren I have done. When this Grand Session is over you will go back to your several callings for another year's work. Let not the lessons of these returning seasons be lost upon you, or forgotten in the busy battle of life. They each mark to us the rapid passage of time and the nearing of Eternity. They are pleasant spots in memory to which we turn. Let us hope not so much as momentoes of the past, as prophesies for the future, but each admonishingly points us to that last gathering that sooner or later will come. And then—what then. Then, my brethren, comes the examination and test. Look well to the East and see to it that you possess the true word that gives admission to the City and Temple of our God

Fraternally yours,

W. H. SPROULE,
Grand Maste:

REPORT OF GRAND REGISTRAR.

To the Right Worshipful Grand Master, Officers and Members of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario.

Rt. Worshipful Sir and Sir Knights—

Another year has past and we are again permitted by the Gracious Providence of Almighty God to assemble in this enterprising City of Peterborough in open Chapter to discuss various causes as to the advancement of our beloved Order

State of the Order.

In reviewing the work of the past year it affords me much pleasure to report a very successful year. Four new Perceptories have been organized. One at Napanee on April 9th, 1912, with 26 members, Sir A. Graham of Kingston, Instituting Officers. One at Cardinal in the County of Grenville on July 9th, 1912, by Sir Howard Mills, with 12 members. One in the City of Belleville, on Mar. 7th, Sir W. McMechan, Deputy Grand Master, Instituting Officer, having a membership of 19, and in the issue of The Sentinel of March 13th, I find that a new Perceptory has been started at Toledo, in the County of Leeds, Sir John A. Graham of Smith's Falls, Instituting Officer No correspondence of any kind has ever been received at this office in connection with the opening of above Chapter. Instituting Officers should not consider their work completed at the organization meeting, they should report at once to the Registrar of the Provincial Chapter. Applications have been applied for to start a Perceptory at Trenton in the County of Hastings, one at Fermoy in the County of Frontenac, and one at Havelock in the County of Peterborough

Correspondence.

The correspondence during the past year has been to me of a most pleasant and profitable nature.

Copies of the resolutions passed by this Grand Chapter at its last session were forwarded to the Most Worshipful, the Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of Ireland and to the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Ontario West. The annual reports of this Grand Chapter were mailed to the officers of this Grand Chapter and to each Perceptor in Eastern Ontario as soon as received

Brains of Tomorrow

Find their foundation in food of today

Scientists have proven that the three vital elements of brain and nerve matter are water, albumen and phosphate of potash.

Water and albumen exist plentifully in every day food—meat, potatoes, etc., but phosphate of potash is often lacking.

Grape-Nuts
Is the Food of Today

Because it is rich in the vital food elements, including the organic phosphate of potash, that valuable mineral element stored by Nature under the outer shell of wheat and barley.

This necessary element is lacking in white bread flour, but faithfully preserved in Grape-Nuts food, which supplies true, well-balanced nourishment for body and brain.

Tens of thousands eat their regular morning dish of GRAPE-NUTS AND CREAM.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Bideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

When any one of these lines commence operations look out for an immense increase in price of RUSKIN PLACE Lots.

Lots at Ruskin Place Now Sell for $275, $300 and $375

BOON TO THE BALDHEADED

The bald-headed are likely to take an interest in what the Budapest papers describe as the sensational invention of Dr. Szekely.

The doctor recently explained to the Society of Hungarian Physicians his method of implanting hair in a bald scalp. He ties together an extremely thin gold wire and sterilized hair, implanting the latter by means of a thin injection syringe in the scalp where it is fixed with small hooks of gold wire. He states that in this painless way he can implant 300 to 500 hairs per hour. Of course the hair will not grow, and the transplantation only produces a new kind of wig.

Dr. Szekely presented to his colleagues three men wearing these wigs, which could not be distinguished from natural hair.

WEDNESDAY MARCH 19 1913

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Easter will surely bring a resurrection of good sense to the mulish section of parliamentarians at Ottawa.

In spite of sporadic dance-reformers, Satan finds some mischief still for idle feet to do.

Mrs Pankhurst says that in bringing public questions to the front, militancy is the cheapest way. For whom?

The way Dr. Friedmann was treated in New York will probably give him some idea of what was handed out to Doc Cook.

The Examiner, in referring to the Ottawa deadlock, says that "truth crushed to earth will rise again." A lie will do the same thing, and when it gets on its feets circulates faster than ever.

Jersey City police are at least watchful of detail. They forbade Rodman Law to scale the skies on a twenty-five foot rocket until he procured a permit for discharging fireworks within the city limits.

During an attorney's argument in an Ontario court the jurors arose and asked: "Do we have to listen to this rot." We dare say that if the law privileged all jurors to propound the same question there would be less rot.

One of the bills dealing with woman suffrage suggested for introduction in the approaching session of the British parliament would restrict the franchise to women over 25 years of age. We doubt if the militants would register under that condition.

Our suffragist friends never tire of telling us that woman does not get justice under man-made laws administered by men. A Rhode Island woman who murdered her husband has just been sentenced to a jail term of three months. If this good lady had the right to vote, possibly she might have been less severely dealt with.

The report about President Wilson having decided to banish wine from White House banquets was, it appears, premature. The president is considering the subject, but as yet he has given no decision. The Washington correspondent of the New York Sun says that "close friends of the president believe that wine will be served at state dinners, but no other White House functions."

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

Whether Germany has a war with France or not, will make a great difference to Great Britain, although it is not believed that matters will come to so grave a crisis. Trouble between France and Germany has been threatened at intervals for the past decade and there are some who believe that war must come to bring to an end the feeling existing between the two countries, which not even diplomacy has failed to hide. Whatever happens, England is determined if possible, not to be drawn into the embroglio and it is believed that both Germany and France have been given to understand as much. Britain's dreadnoughts are the Empire's safety.

MAKE HASTE SLOWLY.

It would be hard to set a limit to Canadian potentialities given the necessary time in which to develop them. Doubtless there is good ground for the following boast by the Toronto Star "Canada can build ships of any kind. We have the iron, we have the coal, we have the greatest source of nickel in the world. We have the industrial ambition and the industrial skill. There is nothing in the world that we cannot manufacture or build. We have the men to build the ships and to man the ships. These are questions on which Canadians can speak with greater authority than Winston Churchill or anybody else outside of Canada."

In time Canada will be able to do all that the Star says, and much more. But not to-morrow or next year. We must creep before we walk. Even with assistance from the British admiralty it would be a good many years before a single battleship could be built in a Canadian navy yard and put in commission on this side of the ocean. And the cost of preparation for the work would be enormous—probably as much as it would cost to reconstruct the whole St. Lawrence canal system so as to allow of the passage of ocean vessels from Montreal to the head of the lakes.

Would it not be more sensible to begin in a more modest way? A navy yard for the construction of the smaller war-craft will have to be established soon. Let that suffice. Let not Canadians become obsessed with the notion that Canada can suddenly emerge as a naval power, "armed and well prepared."

SPECIAL MEDALS ARE GIVEN TO LADY SCOTT

Is to Receive Casket From Geographical Society by King's Consent.

London, March 19.—There are certain noval features connected with this year's award of honors which the Royal Geographical Society has annually at its disposal. The Founders' Royal medal was not awarded this year, but with the King's approval, a casket with a suitable inscription will be presented to Lady Scott to contain the Patron's medal and a special Antartic medal awarded to her late husband in 1904. The Patron's medal this year was awarded to the late Dr. E. A. Wilson, in recognition of his services with Scott, while Lieut. Campbell receives a gold watch for his conduct as the leader of the northern Antartic party.

Ask your druggist for it. If he cannot supply the MARVEL, accept no other, but send stamp for Illustrated book—sealed. It gives full particulars and directions invaluable to ladies. WINDSOR SUPPLY CO., Windsor, Ont. General Agents for Canada.

Stars in Baseball

The star system is as profitable in baseball as in the theatre. Ty Cobb, "Matty," and others are as big an attraction at the gate as Maude Adams is for the box office. Brush would not take $50,000 for Mathewson. The picking of stars, however, is a risky business. Marquard, for example, "fell down" for three seasons after Brush paid $11,000 for him. Hailed as the "$11,000 beauty," he became known to the fans as the "$11,000 lemon." But finally he made good, and to-day the announcement that Marquard is going to pitch at the Polo Grounds is good for a crowd that will more than pay his $11,000 purchase price at the gate.

Most cricket bats come from the willows that grow in the east of England, but a few come from the North. As a rule, the former are of the better quality. Good bats have the grain running down the blade like parallel railway lines. A careful player will oil his bat every two days for a month before it is used. It is really advisable to keep it a year before use. This ensures its being well-seasoned.

We Are Developing

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently

We Have Millions

in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT $5.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Better Make Your Application at Once

A word to the wise is usually sufficient and what we are telling you is for your own good. If you don't get these shares, some other lucky individual will. NUF CED. So get them while the getting is good.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore locking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—327,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 88,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

CRICKET PROWESS A FAMILY TRAIT

Nine Members of One Family Famous —Syd Gregory's Sisters Play the Game

Probably in no other game does talent run through a family to such a large extent as it does in cricket. For instance, no fewer than nine members of the Hearne family have distinguished themselves in first-class cricket, while at one time there were seven almost qually famous Fords. The whole of the seven were in the school eleven at Repton, and six of them were captains. In all, their name appears twenty-two times in the lists of the school elevens at Repton, and for a period of twenty years without a break Repton cricket was represented by one or other of the Fords.

The Lyttelton family were almost equally famous at Eton, while the six Studds also distinguished themselves in the cricket matches at the same school, three brothers being in the school eleven at the same time.

Then there are the Fosters of Worcestershire, a conspicuous example of cricket talent running through the members of a family. Altogether six Fosters have appeared in first-class cricket. W. L., H. K., B., E., B. S. G. N., ... are all familiar initials in the cricket world.

Perhaps the most interesting clerical cricketer of to-day is the Rev. J. C. Crawford, M.A., who, although he gave up active participation in what is termed "serious" cricket several years ago, is still capable of wielding a bat to very good purpose, in spite of his fifty-eight years.

Mr. Crawford, who for the past twenty-five years has filled the position of chaplain to Cane Hill Asylum, Surrey, is a noteworthy personage in the cricket world, not only on account of the feats with bat and ball which he has performed in the past on behalf of Kent, Surrey, Leicestershire, and various representative elevens, but also because of the fact that he is the father of a wonderful family of cricketers. His three sons—V. F. S., R. T., and J. N.—are well-known in first-class cricket; while one of his daughters has earned the distinction of being the only Surrey lady who has scored a century in a cricket match.

Mention of the daughter of the Rev. J. C. Crawford reminds one that in June, 1910, the first inter-State ladies' cricket match between New South Wales and Victoria was played at Melbourne. Mrs. Donnan, a sister of Syd Gregory, captain of the Australian cricketers, was captain of the New South Wales team, which got beaten by the way, by nine runs, the team also including four other relatives of Syd Gregory's—two sisters, Mrs. Clyma and Mrs. Meagher, and two nieces, Miss Donnan and Miss Varley. Mrs. Donnan, whose husband was a member of the 1894 Australian eleven, is a good left-handed bat and fields at point. Both her sisters are right-hand bowlers, while her daughter bowls with the left hand.

NEW MOTOR SPEEDWAY

Every Possible Scheme to Make Racing Safe to be Employed

In erecting the projected Metropolitan Motor speedway at New York those building it will be able to profit by the mistakes made by others in putting up motordromes elsewhere. At Atlanta, for instance, it was found that the turns were not banked quite high enough to stand the maximum speed of several sensationally fast cars. The Indianapolis speedway builders made their course originally with a concrete surface, and when this proved unsatisfactory were obliged to resurface the entire oval with vitrified brick at a great additional expense for material and labor.

Lessons can also be learned from the Los Angeles motordrome at Playa del Rey, which was the first experiment made in mile board track building. Every known and tried device to make the track and stand safe for contestants and spectators alike will be introduced. The same energy and management which prepared the twelve miles of Long Island motor parkway for the 1908 Vanderbilt Cup race in four months will be employed to put the new stadium into shape.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA.

The Grand Trunk Railway System will issue round trip tickets from stations in Canada to points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, each TUESDAY, March 4th to Oct. 28th, inclusive, at low rates. Tickets are good for 60 days. Through coaches and Pullman Tourist Sleeping cars will leave Toronto 11.00 p.m. on above dates, running through to Winnipeg, via Chicago and St. Paul, without change. Tourist cars will be equipped with bedding and porter in charge. Berths may be secured in these cars at a nominal charge. The route via Chicago is an attractive one, as many large cities and towns are passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg-Saskatoon-Edmonton, with smooth roadbed, electric lighted sleeping cars, through the newest, most picturesque, and most rapidly developing section of Western Canada. Through tickets sold and reservations made by all Grand Trunk Agents. Costs no more than by other routes. Trains now in operation, Winnipeg to Regina, Yorkton and Camora, Sask., also to Camrose, Mirror and Edson, Alta.

ENGLAND'S TEAM WAS NOT READY

Their Coach Was Not Optimistic About Team for Stockholm—Carelessness in Training

The outstanding feature of the Olympic games was the failure of the British teams to make good against other teams of big nations, and some of the small ones as well. It was no surprise that the British athletes did not beat those of the United States, because that was forecasted by the trainer of the British team away last winter. At that time he said to a newspaper correspondent "We are not going to Sweden this year prepared as we should be, nor are we going to get together enough good men to make a proper showing. Athletics in England have gone to the bowwows. We should have started preparing an Olympic team two years ago, but now with the games only a few months away we have not yet made a start.

"I am absolutely astounded at the absolute ignorance of many of our best athletes. Why, some of them do not know the first principles of conditioning themselves. Many of them do not know enough to rub themselves down after a race. When I ask these fellows what system they follow in training they say: 'We haven't any system; we really haven't thought much about training, you know.' It is typical of England's haphazard way of doing things. This putting off everything till the last minute and then making a frantic rush to get ready for the games. England may make a fair showing in the running events in Stockholm, but in the field we will be nowhere. Great Britain will have to depend on Scotchmen and Irishmen to hold the Yankees in check, and even then I expect little more than an absolute rout for our boys.

"In the past it has been a matter of boast that Englishmen could win track events without having to go into the severe training required in the United States. But there is, of course, no use of attempting to make a showing without some training."

England had some notable victories at that, and when Jackson pulled the fifteen hundred metres race from the best the world could put against him, he did a thing well worth sending that telegram home to his mother to tell her what her boy had done. But Jackson was one who won among many who lost, and the general results of the Stockholm Olympiad must be very discouraging to the athletic world of Great Britain. And yet it may well be a good thing in the end because the lesson taught is that to win against other nations in these big world's meets, British athletes must conform to the practices of the winners, and make the men who are to uphold the honor of the Old Land at Olympic Games take better care of themselves and train with greater dilligence.

OLDEST EXISTING GAME

Tennis Made Its Appearance In Europe In the Middle Ages

Most people, when they speak of "tennis," refer to lawn tennis and not to the far more ancient game which was the forefather of the modern adaption. Tennis proper is perhaps the oldest of all existing ball games. It is also one of the most difficult games to learn, on account of the number and intricacy of its rules, which, however when learned make it one of the most interesting.

It has an additional interest, also, owing to its historical associations. Tennis first made its appearance in Europe in the middle ages, when it was played in open courts and in the parks belonging to the feudal castles of France and Italy.

The name of tennis is suggested to have sprung from the exclamation "Tenes," which was used by early French players when serving the ball. In France the game was called jeu de paume. It would seem from this that originally the ball was struck with the palm of the hand only. Afterward the players wore a glove. Strings and cross strings were next stretched upon the glove to give a greater impulse to the ball, and from this to the addition of a short handle was an easy transition.

The game was much improved by the building of closed-in tennis courts, at first with walls only, then with both roofs and walls. In France they still play it, sometimes in the open, and in Italy a rough version of it, called pallone, can still be seen. In England there are 27 courts, and there is one in Dublin.

SCHOOLGIRL AN ATHLETE

For Five Years Nellie Stockwell, Aged 13, Has Been a Champion

For the fifth year in succession a Rotherhithe girl won the sports championship of the London County Council Schools in South London.

Nellie Stockwell is 13 and the daughter of the keeper of the Rotherhithe mortuary. Her latest trophy was the championship medal won at the school athletic meeting, where she was first in six events and second in four others.

She won the championship first when she was 9, and has secured it every year since, although the girl competitors have numbered more than 1,700 each time.

"I don't train in any special way," she said. "My father gives me plenty of sugar and I have running exercise but that is all."

Besides her sports trophies she has a first class swimming certificate.

THE WRECKING OF A ONCE GREAT POLITICAL PARTY

A Few Plain Words Regarding the Present Situation at Ottawa.

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, March 18. — The conduct of the blockade at Ottawa has revealed a situation within the Liberal party humiliating to those Liberals by whom the principles of true Liberalism are still held dear. These men look dolefully on while a truculent and irresponsible section of the party, obsessed with the idea that they can usurp the power wrested from them by the Canadian people, trample upon the old party principles, run amuck and hold up all the business of Parliament. The effort of these would-be wreckers to destroy the whole machinery of parliamentary government has done more than anything else could do to make remote the day when a party bearing the old name of Liberal can ever hope to be placed again at the head of affairs in Canada.

THE MEN BEHIND.

The men behind the movement which has disgraced the record of Liberalism, are the ex-ministers, members of the government which the Canadian people punished so severely for their attempt to betray the national and fiscal future of the Dominion. The most active and insistent have been those of the ex-ministers whose administrative records were such that their own constituents refused to return them to Parliament at all.

THEORY OF THE BLOCKERS.

The situation has been a remarkable one. It is known that Sir Wilfrid Laurier after the disaster which overtook him and his Government in September of 1911, was not anxious to take the position of Opposition Leader. He had declared to the electors in his own province that he would never again lead an Opposition. He was persuaded to take the position of nominal leader, but there is evidence enough that he kept the promise made in Quebec, in spirit if not in letter. He has not been leading the party. It has been led by the seatless ex-ministers whose sole idea has been to get to the country on some pretext or other before Sir Wilfrid Laurier, no longer a young man, passes out of public life.

NOTHING TOO BAD.

To attain this object, considerations of political decency have been cast aside. Liberals have not hesitated to malign the old mother nation whose sea power they have refused to support. The American Declaration of Independence has been produced and quoted by a Liberal ex-Minister on the floor of Parliament. The talk has been of separation. There has been in many of the Liberal speeches more than a note of hostility to the mother country and it has come from men of the English-speaking provinces.

STRANGE DELUSION.

While this has been going on in Parliament a strenuous effort has been made in the country to organize for an election, the seatless ex-ministers being under the curious delusion that, having seized control of the Opposition, they could bring about a dissolution without the Government having any say in the matter. It is not impossible that out of all this evil, good may come. The fight has had the result of immeasurably strengthening the Conservative party and Government in the House and in the country. It may also result in a determination of the better class of Liberals to assert themselves, to recognize their political responsibility and to free the name of Liberalism from the shame which a few men, calling themselves Liberals, have put upon it.

A Walking-Stick Farm

A walking-stick farm has been established in Surrey, England. Instead of the cornfields, pastureland, and root-crops usually expected on a farm, the walking-stick acres present the appearance of long, neat rows of tiny sapling trees, some four years old, others younger.

Quite a forest of walking-sticks may be produced in four years; but the handle occasions some delay. To obtain a right-angled handle, the growth is pegged down along the ground, and from this the sapling shoots vertically upwards.

A BALACLAVA STORY

Another of the rapidly-diminishing band of survivors of the Light Brigade charge at Balaclava passed away at Thornton Heath in the person of Henry Herbert, who, a few months ago, although he was seventy-eight, began to write an account of his adventures, which, however, he was unable to finish.

At the battle of Balaclava Herbert saw Captain Nolan gallop up to Lord Lucan, after which horses were mounted. According to Herbert's account, Lord Lucan came in front of the Light Brigade and said, "Keep your horses well in hand, men, and when you get amongst them skiver them well."

On the question whether the "Charge!" was sounded or not, Herbert's account was that the first order was "Walk," followed by "Trot." So galling became the fire that the brigade spontaneously broke into a gallop, and then into the "Charge," without it having been sounded by the trumpets. Other survivors, he claimed, bore him out in that particular. He came out of the fray unscathed. Another man who got back safely was flogged with the "cat" for leaving his post in camp without leave to join in the charge.

For ten years Herbert was chairman of the Balaclava Committee. He was three times married, and had twenty-four children.

The Girl Who Thinks.

"My estrangment, if you can call it that, from my mother, dated from the moment I began to think," says a writer under the title of "My Mother Didn't Tell Me," in Harper's Bazar. "I had been very much a 'mother's girl.' My mother and I planned my frocks, we sewed a great deal together, we chatted together, we read poetry aloud together, and also a good deal of modern fiction. My mother was very fond of books, and kept abreast of the times. Our companionship was of a very beautiful sort and still is—as long as I keep within those prescribed limits and as long as I do not venture into any question that has to do with the life or thought of the country today. My mother is as much interested in my frocks today, now that I am twenty-seven, as she was when I was seventeen. She still has that interest in books, nor does her dislike of the tendency of modern thought extend very far into literature."

Busy German Women.

In Germany there is a total number of 11,900 women filling honorary positions in cities and on charity boards. In 155 municipalities seven thousand women are in active service for the care of the poor and of orphans. In 115 towns there are women serving on school boards.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of R. L. Deschamps Esq., 103 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal and of Thos. Hastings, Esq., Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

RAILWAY KING RETIRES

Canadian Who Did Much to Open up West Seeks Well Earned Rest

When James J. Hill, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Great Northern Railway System, formally resigned his high and responsible position, he made his valedictory. He gave a brief resume of the creation and progress of the system of which he was the master builder. The Great Northern in the lifetime of a generation has grown so that it now ministers to the transportation needs of the great northwest of the United States. The history of the system forms an integral part of the history of the American northwest. It opened up and developed the west, and has in return been richly compensated. For thirty-three years Mr Hill guided its destinies, ever appreciating the great possibilities of the future, and not hesitating to stake large sums of money when faith pointed the way.

Of peculiar interest to Canadians is the fact that Mr. Hill, who is himself Canadian-born, had as his associates when the enterprise was launched two noted Canadians. George Stephen, now Lord Mountstephen, and Donald A. Smith, now Lord Strathcona.

Previous to the panic year, 1873 railway enterprises had been started to open up the American west, but being on an unsound basis they did not survive the unsettled conditions of that time. One of these enterprises, the old St. Paul & Pacific Company, went into the hands of a receiver. Mr. Hill and his associates, seeing the possibilities of the productive areas of the northwest, bought the defaulted bonds of this company in 1878, with practically all its outstanding indebtedness. The actual railway amounted to 886 miles in the Red River country. Extensions were made immediately to the Manitoba boundary, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company was organized with George Stephen President and Mr. Hill General Manager. In 1882 Mr. Hill became President.

The steady and rapid expansion of the system since then is paralleled only by that of Canadian roads. Foresight, aggressiveness and efficiency were the outstanding characteristics of the management, and the dynamic centre of it all was James J. Hill.

CHARACTER IN THE NOSE

Scientists would have us believe that disposition, inclinations and even character can be read by taking notice of the color and texture of the hair, the shape of the eyes and mouth, and especially the shape of the nose and its size.

It is claimed that hair can be arranged to please the eye of the observer; the eyes can be used in such a manner to charm their beholder, but no man or woman can disguise the nose.

The long nose is the sign of power even of genius. This is quite a consolation for those so blessed.

The straight nose indicates a just mind, serious, fine, judicial and energetic. The nose like an eagle's beak is the sign of an adventurous spirit, greedy for gain.

The broad nose with spreading nostrils indicates great sensuality.

The fleshy, arched nose is indicative of a cruel, domineering nature, and is to be avoided, if possible.

A blunt, slender nose means that its possessor is quickwitted, somewhat ironical, but not deep in knowledge.

The retrusse (pug) nose is the mark of a feeble mind, even coarse in breeding, their owners are usually cheerful and gay, however.

Pale noses show egotistic qualities, envious natures and coldheartedness, but often great intelligence.

A highly colored nose indicates a lively disposition. The owner is usually indulgent in his or her pleasures and full of emotional outbreaks.

Big Canadian Tobacco Farm

What is believed to be the largest individual tobacco growing farm in the world is located in Essex County, Ontario. It is not an uncommon sight to see fields ranging from one or two acres up to twenty-five or thirty acres. The largest covers 260 acres. The plants are raised from the seed in beds under cotton or glass till they are ready to plant in the field, which is usually about June 15. If the season is favorable it requires about three months for the tobacco to mature and ripen before cutting and harvesting.

Most farmers hang the product in barns to dry, while a few dry by heat in barns specially constructed for the purpose. The actual expense of growing an acre of tobacco in Ontario, outside of supplying the plants, which any farmer can raise himself, is estimated to be $50. The crop yields from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds. The price varies from year to year; in 1909 it averaged 15 cents a pound and in 1910 17 cents.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

"And so you see, Cameron," I said, speaking distinctly and with double purpose, the nurse being in ear-shot, "everything is quite right. The matter you spoke of shall be attended to, at once, and I'll report to you, tonight—before ten o'clock, surely."

The reproach in his eyes stung me, and the pain of it followed me from the room and stabbed me at intervals during dinner. And yet it was not the part of sanity to have acted otherwise than I did. The temptation had occurred to me to invent phrases and sentences expressive of satisfaction over the effort of the previous communications. But I doubted that, in my agitation, I should be successful in the deception. And so, my only course had been delay—stupid, bungling, palpable delay it was, I suppose, but after all it had served; and, though it left Cameron in doubt, it gave me time and opportunity to arrange some plan for extracting the fangs of this epistolary adder before it could strike its prey.

Purposely I delayed reading the letter, myself, until after I had dined. I chose uncertainty as to its contents as less likely noticeably to affect my demeanor than an exact knowledge of the minatory message which I felt sure it carried.

I think I fancied I should be able to conceal my real state of mind. Certainly I willed to do so. But I was very soon conscious that Evelyn had divined my dissimulation. Her eyes became suddenly grave and questioning, her laughter quieted, and her conversation, which had been glad and gay, relapsed abruptly into the serious. When the coffee and liqueurs had been brought on, Mrs. Lancaster asked to be excused, and left us alone together.

There followed then a moment of silence between us, while I selected a cigarette and lighted it. She had edged her chair a little closer to me—she was sitting on my right, as usual—and leaned forward, her slender but divinely rounded forearms extended across the shining damask of the tablecloth.

As I dropped my match upon the tiny silver tray which the inimitable Checkabeedy had placed conveniently at my elbow I turned to her and saw her question in her imploring gaze and attitude even before she voiced it.

"Tell me!" was what she said. And although I knew that she would demand it I was unprepared. To gain time rather than information I bade her be more explicit.

"Everything," she pursued, inclusively, with a peremptory emphasis which indicated her determination not to be denied.

My hesitation resulted in some amplification on her part. She was impatient as well as resolved, and resented what she interpreted as my reluctance to gratify her.

"Everything," she repeated. "Everything that you have been hiding from me from the first. I am entitled to know. What about the head that was cut from the portrait? What was it that caused the shocks which brought on Uncle Robert's illness? Why did you go for the mail four times today, and sit all the rest of the time in Uncle Robert's study? What has happened to make him worse this afternoon? What is troubling you, now? I'm not a child, I'm a woman, and I refuse to be kept in ignorance any longer."

She was glorious as she thus formulated her demands, her cheeks blazing, her eyes brilliant, her voice a crescendo. She must have seen my admiration. Certainly I made no attempt to hide it; and before she had quite finished I had possessed myself of her clasped hands, and was bestowing upon them an applauding pressure.

And her argument prevailed. She knew too much not to know more. Cameron's wishes in the matter could no longer be regarded. Just how tactfully I managed the disclosure, it is not for me to judge. Perhaps I told more than I should. Possibly I revealed too little. I was guided solely by the wish not to alarm her, unduly. And yet, as nearly every feature of the affair was of necessity alarming, it became a vexing problem as to what to include and what to omit.

Eventually she heard the whole story, every phase of it. And so it is not altogether clear in my memory how much I conveyed that night and how much was left for me to add ten days later.

There is no question, however, regarding that third letter which had been so mysteriously received that day. I drew it from the envelope, there, at the table, and we read it together, by the light of the pink-shaded candles; our chairs touching and her cool little left hand clasped hard in my sinewy right.

As I spread the sheet that sinister appearing black daub at the bottom smote me with a sense of ill as acutely poignant as a rapier thrust, and the heavy, regular, upright chirography, with its odd f's and p's, so awesomely familiar, was scarcely less disturbing.

Silently the girl and I ran through the dozen lines.

Like its two predecessors the letter began with the sentence:

"That which you have wrought shall in turn be wrought upon you."

No longer could this be regarded as idle boasting. It had become an edict of grave significance. And what followed only emphasized the proven force behind this series of singular communications.

"All having been performed as foretold, our power is demonstrated."

Then, simply, almost crudely, but of horrid poignancy, ran the words:

"Know then, that before the morning of the Eighth Day hence, as passed the face from the portrait, as passed the reflection from the mirror, so you, physically, will pass from sight of men into torment."

As I read my breath caught in my throat and my pulses paused. Evelyn pressed closer to my side, and I felt her shiver as with cold. The final words, solemn, admonitory, priestlike, were these:

"Say not Heaven is high above! Heaven ascends and descends about our deeds, daily inspecting us, wheresoever we are."

Instantly she turned to me, and I saw there were tears on her cheeks, and that her long dark lashes were wet.

"You cannot tell him this, Philip," she said, her voice low but unfaltering.

"No," I replied, "I cannot tell him. In his present condition, it might be fatal."

"And now he must get well," she declared, with decision. "He must be well enough in a few days to be moved. He shall not stop in this house any longer. He shall go where he can be protected, and these fiends, whoever they are, cannot, or will not dare to follow."

As she spoke an inspiration came to me.

"The yacht," I said.

Impulsively she laid hold upon my arm, in a way she had.

"The Sibylla," she agreed, delightedly. "Of course. It will do everything for him."

"But what am I to tell him about this?" I asked, in perplexity.

For a second she was thoughtful.

"We couldn't imitate the writing, could we?" she asked.

"Oh, yes," I answered. "We could. I think I'd even guarantee to reproduce that hideous black thing, but—"

"But what?"

"We can't imitate the paper. The paper is as characteristic as any of the other features, if not indeed more so. And he knows that paper."

"Then you must just lie to him," she decided. "You must tell him the envelope was empty; and you must make him believe it."

CHAPTER VIII.

Somewhere East of Nantucket.

The Sibylla under stress of her powerful turbines was racing easily, reeling off her thirty knots with no seeming effort and scarcely a perceptible vibration. There had been a stiff breeze during the night, but it had died down at sunrise, and now, at noon, the sea was calm as the bosom of a nun. The sun blazed on the yacht's polished brasses, intensifying the snowy whiteness of her glossy paint, and turning to jewelled showers the spray which fell away from her sharp prow and caressed her long, sleek sides. It was wonderful weather for late October. On the nineteenth the temperature had risen to ninety in New York, breaking all records for that date; and now, two days later, here at the meeting of sound and ocean, with Point Judith just coming into view over our port bow, and Block Island a blur abaft our starboard beam, we sat, Cameron and I, shaded by spread awnings, on the after-deck, as though it were midsummer. For he had been convinced by my righteous untruth, after repeated and emphatic dinning, and had daily grown stronger; readily agreeing at length to a cruise along the coast, with Bar Harbor as objective.

"That is precisely what I had the Sibylla built for," he told me, when my suggestion found acceptance. "Did you ever notice the inscription on the brass tablet over the fireplace in the saloon? No? Well, it's this: 'Sibylla, when thou seest me faynte, address thyselfe the gyde of my complaynte.'

"I found it in an old book, published in 1563, a poetic induction to 'The Mirror of Magistrates,' written by Thomas Sackville. You can fancy how my application distorts the original intention; but Sackville isn't likely to trouble me over it."

I repeat this explanation now mainly to indicate the improved temper of the speaker. His mind was placid once again, and with this recovered placidity had come a return of his quiet humor. For my own part I was not altogether happy. My delight over my friend's recovery, and Evelyn's pleasure thereat, was curdled by self-reproach regarding the instrument I had employed to bring it about. A lie is to me a most contemptible agent, and to make use of one has been always abhorrent. In this instance I had salved my conscience in a measure with the old excuse that the end justified the means, but it was only in a measure, and I was far from being as happy as I pretended.

Moreover, I could not rid myself of an uneasiness—a misery, indeed, in which I was now without company—concerning the day and its menace. I say "without company," for Cameron, of course, had quite dismissed the subject, and Evelyn, who previously was greatly perturbed, had seemed to put away all apprehension directly she saw us safe aboard the yacht. There had been some talk of her accompanying us, but without signifying my real reason, I had managed to dissuade her.

For my disquietude there was certainly no logical ground. I had taken the precaution of having the Sibylla searched from masthead to keelson before sailing. The coal was examined as carefully as that of a battleship in time of war; every locker and cupboard was inspected; even the ventilators were metaphorically turned inside out and the record of every man of the crew was looked into with vigorous scrutiny. So I could see no loophole unguarded. But the past was an argument which set logic at naught. If such things could be as that which had happened a month ago in Cameron's dressing room, how much further might the inexplicable carry? Of what use were precautions against an enemy who with apparent ease calmly defied all natural laws?

Women's Ailments Caused by Neglect

Proper Treatment Will Quickly Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated, another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly responded to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, and finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers 25c per box, five for $1.00 postpaid The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Cured My Cough In One Night

Relieved Me of a Throat Weakness That Resisted Every Treatment.

"SUFFERERS, FOLLOW MY PLAN"

"After being loaded down with a chronic hacking cough for months, you can imagine my joy at finding even a relief from it," writes Mrs. O. A. Tooker, of Monson, Mass., U.S.A. "I was troubled with an irritable throat weakness and asthma that simply defied every medicine I ever used. I was discouraged until a friend recommended Catarrhozone so strongly that I bought a dollar outfit from my druggist. I breathed in the helping fumes of Catarrhozone very deeply—used the inhaler five minutes every hour. After the first day I was better, and next morning my cough was gone. My asthma is cured, my throat weakness is gone, and I am well. For two years indeed, with the aid of Catarrhozone, I have kept perfectly well. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pills for constipation with grand results, and consider your remedies have done wonders for me."

Thousands of wonderful cures are reported every year. Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it, and is certainly most efficient for colds, bronchitis, throat trouble, asthma and catarrh. The two months' treatment (large size), price $1.00, is guaranteed, smaller size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Who Gets That Reward?

As an aftermath of the Giles brothers conviction, it would seem that Mr. D. Jackson, whose fur coat was recovered by Detectives Newhall and Maher, does not seem disposed to pay the $25 he offered for recovery of the same. Dr. Amyx laid the train by placing an electric bell at his residence, whilst the two local disciples of Sherlock Holmes, did the rest. Police Chief Thompson suggested to Mr. Jackson that he make the Children's Aid Society a presentation of $25.

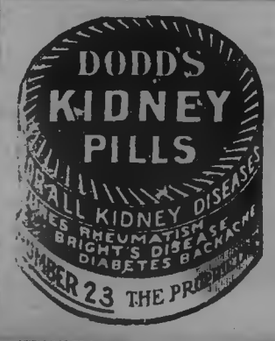
SURE WAY TO REMOVE FRECKLES AND ERUPTIONS

(From Fashion Record.)



Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drugstore, apply this before restiring like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire cuticle is removed in this way in about a week, with all its defects. No bleach could so completely remove every freckle or blemish. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accomplishes this simple treatment.

In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½-pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.

From a portion of the correspondence during the year, your Registrar is under the impression that the reports of this Grand Chapter are not read in the Primary Perceptories. The major portion of the Private Chapters are content with the report of their delegate to this Grand Chapter. This should not be. A number of the Private Registrars have sent their returns to the Grand Registrar of British America through neglect of not reading our report. Instructions and the address of the Provincial Grand Registrar are fully given on the front page of this Grand Chapter report.

The Registrars of the Primary Chapters under the jurisdiction of this Grand Chapter have in a majority been more prompt than last year in sending in their returns, but still a number continue to hold back until the last moment.

The annual return forms were mailed to each Perceptor in Eastern Ontario on November 21st last. We have under the jurisdiction of this Grand Chapter, 468 Primary Chapters, a gain of four.

FORESTERS HALL OVERCROWDED BY GRAND ORANGE LODGE MEET

Great Unaminity and Loyalty to Empire Expressed---Reports of Leading Grand Officers

Yesterday afternoon the Foresters' Hall on Simcoe street resembled somewhat an overcrowded sardine box, when more than 350 representatives to the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Orangemen of Eastern Ontario met.

The chair was very ably filled by Bro. Sproule, Grand Master for Eastern Ontario. Possibly the most important business brought before the meeting was presentation of the following reports:

GRAND MASTER'S ADDRESS.

Bi-lingual Schools and Ne Temere and Navy Question Dealt With.

To the Officers and Members of the Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ontario East.

Brethren,—I extend to you, Brethren, to-day a hearty welcome to this the Fifty-fourth annual meeting of this Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ontario East. Let us acknowledge our gratitude to the Supreme Giver of all good, who has preserved our lives during the past year and enabled us to again meet in Grand Lodge. May His presence be with us to guide us in our deliberations and labour, so that when our session is ended we will proceed to our homes imbued with renewed vigor to work in our several localities for the cause of Orangism and the Protestant religion.

Place of Meeting.

We are meeting to-day in the busy and enterprising City of Peterborough, a city noted for its rapid growth, its great manufacturing industries, its fine business streets, its superb and stately residences and for the loyalty, prosperity, industry and wealth of its citizens.

Events of the Year.

I am pleased to congratulate you that during the past year, the great British Empire of which we have the honour and privilege of being a part, has been at peace with the world, and that she has not been involved in any withering, devastating war, but that all great international questions have been solved by friendly negotiations amongst the great nations of the earth, a year of peace has blessed our nation, and unbounded prosperity prevails throughout the whole British Empire.

The Navy.

The most important question agitating the minds of the people of Canada to-day is the Navy Bill. Ever since Canada became a British colony we have had the protection of the British Navy without ever contributing one cent to its maintenance.

I am willing to admit that heretofore we have spent all of our energy and our resources in developing our own country, which was a great work but I am of the opinion that now when we are able, we should in more tangible form show our appreciation of the protection that has been given by the old land to us and contribute to that great bulwark of our Empire's defence—the navy; thereby showing to the world that we are no sordid poltroons, but a loyal people loving with our whole hearts the great Empire of which we form a part. When we do our duty and make this contribution, no Canadian can in future years be taunted with the reproach that in case of emergency, Canada did not do her part. I love the traditions and the ties that bind us to the mother country, and I am proud as a Canadian that we are part of the British Empire, the greatest Empire that the world has ever seen.

Triennial Council.

It was my privilege and pleasure as your representative to attend the meeting of the Triennial Council in the City of Glasgow, Scotland. I there met delegates from not only England, Ireland, Scotland and Canada, but from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United States. I found all of those men strongly imbued with the principles of our Order, and all maintaining the absolute necessity of the existence of the Orange Association in each of their countries to resist the arrogant requests of the Church of Rome for its church and people. At our meeting, business of great importance to our association was introduced and discussed and in every case, decisions were arrived at, which were perfectly agreeable to all present. I regret that the time allotted for the business of the meeting is too short; in my opinion another day should be added to the time for the Council's meeting. I would be remiss in my duty did I not inform you of the hearty reception given to the delegates by the Grand Lodge of Scotland; while there we were their guests at receptions, at banquets and on a trip down the Clyde past Rathsay and around the Isle of Butte, and during that day, they and their lady friends interested us by pointing out and describing to us old and historic spots and places in that historic land. All honour and praise to Scotland, Scottish Orangemen and Orangewomen for their whole-hearted reception and lavish entertainment of the delegates while there.

Home Rule.

During the year the Home Rule bill has been before the British Parliament and notwithstanding the opposition of the Unionist party, it has after strenuous and prolonged debate been carried through the House of Commons and since rejected by the House of Lords. This makes it necessary to again pass the bill in the Commons.

While in Ireland this year, I endeavoured to ascertained the opinion of the Protestants of Ireland upon this measure and without exception those with whom I conversed whether Liberal or Unionist were most emphatic in the opinion that the passing of such a bill was detrimental to the interests of the Protestants of Ireland, and, should it become law that they would either have to emigrate or be under the rule of the Roman Catholic Church and her prelates. In fact I never saw people so anxious about any question or so determined in their opposition to it as they were in regard to this Home Rule bill.

They wish to be British subjects as before and claim that they are loyal subjects of the King. They point with pride to the effect that, in all the Empire wars, whether by land or sea, the Protestants of Ireland have been foremost in the fight and more than done their duty to King and flag. As an example of this, I saw an immense monument in Enniskillen, Ireland, erected to the memory of the heroes of our Irish Regiment, "The Enniskillens," and the tablet commemorated in marble the fact, that this one regiment in the South African war while doing duty nobly for King, Empire and our flag, lost by death 457 officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

HON. COL. SAM HUGHES
One of Canada's Leading Orangemen.

The Ne Temere Decree.

Since our last meeting it has been decided by the Supreme Court that the Ne Temere Decree has no standing nor is it in operation in any part of the Dominion of Canada, but that a marriage solemnized by any regular ordained minister who is authorized to perform marriage, no matter what the religion or belief of the contracting parties may be, is valid and legal in our country.

Bi-lingual Schools.

Changes have been made in the regulations for those schools since our last meeting, which have aroused strong opposition from our fellow French Canadian citizens. A strong deputation of them waited upon the Premier, Sir James Whitney, protesting against the said regulations but the Premier was firm and informed them that we had separate schools in the Province and that he as Premier would not stand for racial schools in Ontario. As this subject as well as the Ne Temere Decree will be dealt with fully by the committee on Legislation, I will not refer further to it.

Progress of the Order.

It is with pleasure that I inform you that our Order has made very substantial gain during the year, not alone in increase of membership, which has been large, but in a much greater interest being manifested by the Proptestant people of the jurisdiction in our Order. This will be increased as the principles and purpose of our Order are better understood. The Grand Secretary will present in his report full information upon our progress.

Committee on Legislation.

Several meetings of this committee were held during the year, as well as meetings of special committees of the same. I am of the opinion that our Order cannot but be pleased and satisfied with the work that this committee has done and they should have the generous thanks of this Grand Lodge.

A full report of the work performed by this committee during the year will be presented at this meeting, to which I ask your earnest attention.

12th July.

Each year chronicles a greater celebration than before of this historic day by the brethren throughout our jurisdiction. For myself, I did not witness any paradee on that day in Canada. I was in Belfast, Ireland, where I witnessed the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of my life, where notwithstanding the fact that the day was wet, raining incessantly from early morning until after noon, the ardour of the brethren was not dampened, but thousands marched through the rain and mud five miles to the place of speaking, with their bands and colors. While not present with you in Canada on that day, I know from the reports of my brethren and also from the press accounts, that never before were there such large celebrations and such commendable conduct upon the part of the brethren taking part.

Organization.

Your committee on organization have consistently pursued this work during the year, having had Bro. McCarthy visit and work in places which they considered the most needy. I had the pleasure of meeting our Grand Organizer at the instituting of a new lodge in Bowmanville a few weeks ago and was much pleased and benefited by the manner in which he performed his work. The committee on organization will give you a full account of the work done during the year in their report.

Our Honoured Dead.

Every year we are called upon to mourn for our fraternal dead, vividly reminding us of our own inevitable destiny. Many honoured and worthy brothers have been called to their rest since our last meeting, some of our oldest and most distinguished members have passed to their last home, as well as some of our younger and active brethren. Our sympathy and condolence go out to the widows, orphans and families who mourn their loss.

Benefit Fund.

This fund of our own in Ontario East is in a strong healthy financial position. I again urge upon the members to take advantage of this fund for it is under our own control, is cheap and ably managed, and fo any wishing benefits from any benefit society. I strongly recommend it. The auditors' report which will be presented to you at this meeting, shows a substantial increase in both the membership and the reserve fund for the year.

Orange Mutual Association.

The claims of the Insurance Department of our Order are at present time being strongly placed before the members of our Order in Ontario East by Worshipful Bro. Duff, Grand Organizer for Canada. From a personal acquaintance with Bro. Duff and after hearing him speak upon the advantage of this fund and upon the principles of our association in general, I respectfully commend him to the brethren of the jurisdiction and trust that every assistance will be given him by the country, District and Primary Lodge Officers, to have good meetings in their respective localities.

The Sentinel.

I desire to once more bring to your attention the merits of our own organ, The Sentinel, the best and most fearless exponent of the Orange cause and of Protestant principles published in the British Empire. I am pleased to know that the circulation of this paper is greatly on the increase and hope that every Orangeman will not only subscribe for it, but will work for the increase of the circulation of this well conducted and ably edited paper.

Recommendations.

I am in hearty accord with the notice of motion to change our constitution, given by Right Worshipful Bro. Duncan Munroe, which is that no member shall be eligible to sit in

DEATH OF MRS. ALLAN'S MOTHER

Mrs. John Allan of 539 Downie street, received a cablegram yesterday morning, informing her of the death of her mother, Mrs. Russell, in England, on Monday. Mrs. Allan and Miss Dorothy leave for England on May 1st, and had hoped to be in time to see the late Mrs. Russell, but the end came sooner than the doctors in attendance had expected.

MOTION BY PREMIER TO CHANGE THE RULES

This is Expected Step as Result of Indefinite Liberal Attitude.

Ottawa, March 20.—The Liberals held a noisy caucus yesterday morning at which they discussed the present parliamentary situation. At the close the leaders of the Opposition refused to make any statement, but it was understood that nothing definite was decided upon with regard to the line of action pursued on the Navy issue at Easter.

During the next week, while at home in their constituencies, the members will endeavour to arrive at a knowledge of the feeling of the country and immediately after the House reassembles there will be another Liberal caucus that will probably settle the policy to be pursued.

In view of the fact that the Opposition is not sure of its mind and Sir Wilfred Laurier is unable to give the Government any definite assurance as to whether the bill will go through or the blockade will be renewed, Premier Borden will go ahead with the closure proposals and it is probable that before the House adjourns to-night he will give notice of a motion to change the rules.

THEY PLAN TO KIDNAP THE HOME SECRETARY

London March 20.—Sir Arthur Markham, a Liberal member in the suffragette debate in the House of Commons remarked that there was a conspiracy on foot among the militant suffragettes to kidnap Home Secretary McKenna. He hoped the forcible feeding awaiting the Home Secretary would give him the backbone he lacked at the present.

NEW KING BURST INTO TEARS WHEN TOLD OF FATHER'S DEATH

When Telegram Was Read to Him He Was Overcome With Grief---Left For Salonika To-Day

Janina, March 20.—King Constantine left for Saloniki yesterday morning after handing over to General P. Danglis the chief command of the Greek army.

His Majesty was informed of the death of his father by Col. Dousmanis, who said to him: "Your Royal Highness, I have important and sad news to impart to you."

Prince Constantine, grasping the back of a chair, interjected: "From Saloniki?"

When the telegram announcing the tragedy was then read to him the Prince was so overcome that he was unable to fully grasp its purport, and Col. Dousmanis was obliged to read it to him a second time.

Prince Coastantine thereupon burst into tears and for a considerable time was quite overcome with grief.

BULGARIANS ARE BADLY BEATEN BY THE TURKS

Stormed From the Heights at the Point of Ottoman Bayonets.

Constantinople, March 29.—A victory is officially claimed for the Turks' forces, after a very fierce battle, which lasted throughout yesterday along the front at the Tchatalja lines defending this city.

The Ottoman troops took the offensive opening the attack by an advance of their right wing.

Large forces of Bulgarians were encountered, and fierce fighting soon spread along the whole front. The Turkish troops drove the Bulgarian from their trenches and took possession of the position they had been holding.

At the Point of the Bayonet.

The Turkish center then advanced and stormed the heights in their front, from which they routed the Bulgarians at the point of the bayonet.

Other columns of Turkish troops operating in conjunction in the general advance captured several heights held by Bulgarians to the south of the Turkish lines.

The battle raged until after sunset terminating in a complete victory for the Turks.

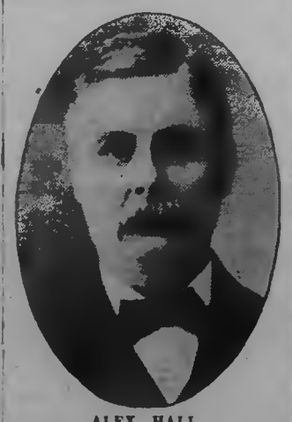
Two Airships Used by Turks.

The casualties have not yet been ascertained, but the commanders declare that the losses of both armies were very heavy.

Two Turkish aeroplanes flew over the scene of the fighting throughout the day, reconnoitring the Bulgarian positions, and signalling all the movements of the enemy to the Turkish commander.

F. M. CLARKE
Grand Secretary Ontario East.

The Church as a Political Machine



During the election campaign of 1911, when the Liberal party, assisted by doubtful Tories, did their best to belittle the present member, they did not realise what they were up against. The "solid Catholic vote" was not able to prevail this time against a United and progressive Protestant combination, as results clearly demonstrated. This should at least serve as a warning to whose who try to make terms with the Church in order to secure its support. This everlasting pandering to the heirarchy by politicians must cease, and the sooner this is realised the better. Priests and bishops must be taught to attend strictly to their religious duties, and leave politics to the politicians.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN CHICLE GUM CASE

His Honor Judge Huycke held court yesterday, when an action was brought by the Canadian Chicle Co., of this city, against A. D. Williams, of Toronto, to recover the sum of $223.25. The plaintiffs were represented by Mr. G. N. Gordon and Messrs. Morris and Roach, of Toronto for the defendants. It appears that defendant acted as a commission agent to sell goods manufactured by the Canadian Chicle Co., employing agents to further the sales. Business dealings were broken off between the two parties, leaving the foregoing amount outstanding, which plaintiffs allege was due them. Judgment was reserved.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 304 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Rideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

When any one of these lines commence operations look out for an immense increase in price of RUSKIN PLACE Lots.

Lots at Ruskin Place Now Sell for $275, $300 and $375

New Warming up Rule

President John Dewar, of the Western Canada League, has announced a new ruling, which he expects will expedite the playing of league games. In the past a new pitcher going in during the game has been allowed to pitch five balls to warm up. The president believes that the pitchers use too much valuable time with this warming up process, and in the future they will be allowed to heave but three balls before the batter can take his position at the plate.

No Opening.

A man had been absent from home for some time, and during his absence had raised a luxuriant beard and mustache. Shortly after his return he paid a visit to his sister, who had a little daughter of whom he was especially fond.

The little girl made no effort to embrace him or offer him a kiss, but hung back, reluctantly.

"Why, Eleanor," said the mother, "why don't you give Uncle Ed a kiss?"

"Well, mother," returned the child, with the most perfect simplicity, "I don't see any place."—Harper's Bazar.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The forbearance of the Greeks in America is admirable. They did not celebrate the capture of Janina by increasing the price of shoe shines.

It is said that some of the Nationalists are through with Premier Borden. The latter will now be greatly loved for the enemies he has made.

"Keep your rye pure" is the advice of The Examiner, in its farm column. It may be that our contemporary takes his without sugar or water.

The "Laurier March" has made its appearance, and doubtless will be played at the head of the column if ever a forward move is made for the pie counter.

President Wilson's cabinet does not include a single Roman Catholic. This does not look as though the Church in the United States had the pull.

The Toronto Telegram advertises for sale "a three-horned lady's saddle, from which we draw the inference that the three-horned lady has purchased an automobile and abandoned horseback riding.

No, Clarence, your can rest assured the story that the editor of our local Liberal contemporary is so fond of the Irish that he imported a hen that laid green eggs on St. Patrick's Day, is a joke.

Dr. Friedmann has public sentiment to thank for the opportunity of making a test of his vaccine cure for tuberculosis. The gadflies of his profession in New York and outside of it did all they could to harass and discourage him.

When Parliament prorogues, and there is no more scrapping to be done, it may be that the habit will have been formed by the Obstructionist Party, who possibly will continue the war amongst themselves when they have no Tories to fight.

It is said that a syndicate is shortly to be formed in Peterborough County to operate a skunk farm, as there are regarded as valuable furbearing animals. The farm, it is said, will be located near Lakefield. Doubtless, those living in the neighborhood regard the promoter as an enterprising man, and will be welcome to every scent that comes from his farm. Please don't shoot, for this g.f.j. couldn't resist the temptation to inflict the pun on the helpless public.

SARCASM IN THE KING'S SPEECH.

It is to be hoped that none of us missed the delicate sarcasm contained in that paragraph in the King's Speech with which the British Parliament was opened the other day—the paragraph which referred to the manner in which the various parts of the Empire were coming to the help of the Imperial Government in the matter of naval defence. We will print it again, just in case—

"The recent gift of a battleship by the Malay States, the ready consent of the New Zealand Government to retention in the North Sea fleet of the battleship contributed by them, the steady progress towards the establishment of an Australian fleet and the discussion now proceeding in the Canadian Parliament on matters of defence, testify to the universal desire in the Empire for the maintenance of the common safety."

There you have it. The Malay States came forward with the gift of a battleship.

OIL AS A SEA-FUEL.

One strong feature of the Panama canal is that it lies between the rich oil fields of Texas and those of California, and fuel for steamships can be supplied quickly and at a minimum of cost to the extensive oil depots established at the canal terminals by the U.S. government. There are such depots already at Suez. Wherever oil can be had in sufficient quantities at a reasonable price, it has quickly supplanted coal under the furnaces of merchantmen.

Fear of the explosive quality of oil on shipboard has been disappearing as the new fuel has been tried. Its great advantage lies in the economizing of labor. Thus the chief engineer of the larger American steamer Texan of the American Hawaiian service, that will soon be running through the Panama Canal, reports that since the ship was converted from a coal to an oil burner there has been a considerable increase in speed, with less repair work and longer life of boilers. Only six men are now required in the fireroom of this 8615 ton steamer, where 15 were employed to handle coal. Moreover, oil requires less room, and the turning of the coal bunkers into cargo space has enlarged the earning capacity of the Texan. So with the new Minnesotan af the same fleet, of 9635 tons. This larger freighter carries only five men in her fireroom, where 15 would be employed if they were burning coal—a saving of $330 a month in wages. Enough oil can be stowed to take the ship from New York to San Francisco without replenishing, while the same ship as a coal burner would have to stop at way ports for fuel. Engineers of the swift Morgan line passenger steamers between New York and New Orleans, declares that the fireroom crews of these vessels could be reduced 50 per cent. if the ships were refitted for oil burning.

An American paper claims that the displacing of coal by oil menaces the commercial prestige of Great Britain, for the products of England and Welsh collieries have for half a century been shipped all over the world to supply the need of the world's steamers far from home. These immense annual exports of British steam coals have furnished an ever-ready outward cargo for a large part of the British mercantile marine required for the bringing back of the foodstuffs and raw materials of manufacturing.

America, with abundant fuel oil and cheaper coal must now gradually succeed to this advantage. A very large proportion of all the steamers that regularly use the Panama Canal will undoubtedly be oil burners—particularly of the ships that ply through from coast to coast. No fewer than 20 oil tank steamers to supply fuel are now under construction on the seaboard and the lakes in this country—an indication of the greatly increased use of oil in place of coal both afloat and ashore

FATHER AND SON BOTH SPEAK OUT

Tell What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did For Them.

Old and Young Are Alike Liable to Kidney Disease But Both Can Find New Health and Renewed Vigor in Dodd's Kidney Kidney Pills.

St Faustin Station, Terrebonne Co., Que., Mar. 19.—(Special).—That kidney disease is liable to strike the young as well as the old and in either case is surely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is shown in one family resident here. The father, aged fifty-two, and the son, aged eighteen, have both made statements for publication.

Pierre Breton, the father, says: "I suffered much from kidney disease. I urinated very little at a time and it was very thick. I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and they cured me."

Eugene Breton, the son, says: "Those who suffer from kidney disease should use Dodd's Kidney Pills, as they cured me."

Kidney disease is not hereditary but weak kidneys undoubtedly are. Weak kidneys are liable to break down under the constant strain put on them. To prevent a breakdown and the bad health all over the body that is sure to result you must use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

FORESTERS' HALL OVERCROWDED

Grand Lodge unless he has attended at least three regular meetings of his Primary Lodge during the year. This will force some members to take more interest in their Primary Lodge and in the case of Past Masters, it will benefit the Primary Lodges by having men present at their meetings of experience and years of service.

In some lodges in our jurisdiction, the rule and custom has been established of presenting a copy of the Bible to each candidate upon his initiation, with a suitable leaf inserted in the front page, said leaf giving name in full and the date that he joined our Order. I am fully in accord with this custom and earnestly suggest to all lodges the advisability of carrying this out and place an Orange Bible in the hands of all new members, the cost will be small and the benefit great.

I am fully impressed with the idea that means should be devised of making the meetings of many of our lodges more interesting to the members for it is well known that many lodges at their meetings only carry out routine business. There are also many lodge rooms in our country which are neither attractive or comfortable within. I would suggest to such lodges the idea of getting their get books written on the Orange Association and on the Protestant religion. You may only be able to procure a few at first, but you can gradually increase the number not only by purchase but by contribution from leading men in your own locality.

Conclusion.

We are assembled here, brethren, to consider matters of great importance to our association, to review the work done during the past year and to map out work for the present year. May I express the hope that strict attention will be given to all matters coming before the Lodge and that decisions arrived at upon any question, introduced or dealt with will be for the upbuilding and advancement of the Orange Association and of the Protestant religion.

Other Reports.

The Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer presented reports showing that the Order had made material progress during the past year. The financial condition of the Order proved to be most satisfactory.

Addresses of Welcome.

Addresses of welcome were given to the visiting brethren by the County and City of Peterborough District Lodges.

SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S.

Rev. Mr. Pogue Delivers a Masterly Address Last Night.

Last night, at 7.30, the visiting delegates, several hundred strong, marched to St. Paul's church, where accommodation had been reserved. The pastor, Rev. Robt Pogue, was assisted by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of Park street Baptist church. A special service was held, replete with vocal music under leadership of Mr. John Allan.

The Sermon.

In his sermon to the Grand Lodge last evening, the Rev. R. Pogue took as his text the words of Peter: "Being ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason concerning the hope that is in you." He said in part: Every adherent of a particular religion ought to be able to give a reason for his religious belief. Every Protestant ought to be able to tell why he is a Protestant. I shall try to give a reason for my own Protestantism in the hope that all of us may be strengthened in the faith which we hold in common. In doing this, I wish it to be understood that I do not desire to utter a single word that might savor of religious intolerance or narrow bigotry. If a Roman Catholic does not worship as I do, he is at perfect liberty to do as he wishes, and I am at perfect liberty to state why I do not worship in the same manner as he. The Roman system and the members of that church are not one and the same thing. A Roman Catholic priest recently wrote "that Ultra montanism, or Romanism, is irreconcilable with civilization and is destructive of the religion of Jesus." You would be surprised how many sincere Catholics we have that would condemn the ravages of the Roman system as much as you Protestants." Now, that exactly is our position in relation to Romanism, we hate the system and our quarrel is with it and not with the members of the Roman Catholic Church. In that Church are many sincere and devoted followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, whom we love as brethren and towards whom we have nothing but the kindliest feelings. The speaker then gave two reasons why he was a Protestant and not a Roman Catholic. First, because Romanism denies to the people the right of private judgment; and, secondly, because Rome's teaching on the doctrine of the Church, the priesthood, and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is practically a denial of all sufficiency of the Saviourhood of Jesus Christ. On the first head the speaker said: It is not without significance that the Order which you represent, carries with it in your annual parades, and in the very forefront of the procession, an open Bible. That is a distinctive characteristic of Protestantism. We claim the right of private judgment, because that right is given us and enjoined as a most sacred duty in the teaching of the Bible. Hence, we stand for an open Bible, for a Bible in the hands of all, and for the right of every man to read it and guide his life by its teachings. Protestants are not afraid of the light. We say, throw back the shutters, roll up the blinds and let in the light of God's word upon the heart and conscience. And we make this plea for the Bible because it not only sets free the individual conscience, but because it ensures the freedom and liberty of the State as well. Rome denies her members the privilege of reading and interpreting the Bible for themselves, hence, Romanism destroys all freedom of conscience and makes the Church a State within a State

Stuffy Feeling About the Nose Relieved at Once

Tells How to Cure Hawking and Spitting, and Drive Out Catarrhal Colds.

Isn't it miserable to have a stuffed-up feeling in the nostrils — to be scarcely able to draw a full breath. When Catarrh gets into the nose you're bound to know something is radically wrong.

A dead sure cure, and a simple one to use, is Catarrhozone; you just breathe it—that's all. You see Catarrhozone Inhaler sends healing piney vapors through the nose, throat and lungs, and these antiseptic soothing vapors are death to colds or Catarrh.

Thousands testify every year that nothing ever discovered will cure colds, or help the throat like Catarrhozone. Mr. Everett L. Wassan, of Blair, N.B., writes—"About five years ago I took a cold in the head and Catarrh set in. It kept increasing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything until at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, "Catarrhozone," and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catarrhozone to all who have Catarrh, etc."

Catarrhozone is the greatest remedy for colds, etc., since people began to have colds. Get the dollar package and let the whole family use it. Medium size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y. and Kingston, Ont.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

ENGLISH JOCKEYS HAMPERED BY RULES

Lord Lonsdale Believes Tod Sloan's Charge That They Lack Nerve is Not Justified

Tod Sloan, the jockey who is credited with introducing the crouching system of riding into England in an article on the great Derby had this to say:—

"It surely is a reflection on the horsemanship of Englishmen that eight of the twenty jockeys riding in the Derby should be either American, French, or colonial. I can't imagine anything worse than the horsemanship of the English boys. There were some of them I wouldn't allow to ride exercise at the racing stables, more of them ought to be the chef's assistants in the kitchen of a restaurant.

"It isn't only that they have no skill, but they have no nerve. They are afraid to seize an opening, afraid to take the slightest risk. They just jog along the safest way they can.

"I don't think your horses are as good now as they are in France. The French horses do less work on the training grounds and more on the racecourse. In France it is nothing for a horse to run thirty times in the course of a season. If a colt runs in half a score of races in England, everybody says he is being overdone.

"All this coddling of jockeys and coddling of horses is not doing English racing any good. I think you have a good deal to learn from the French methods, where the jockeys have to do real fighting if they want to win a race, and the horses spend their days on the course instead of in the stables."

Commenting on this attack, Lord Lonsdale said:—

"It is not want of pluck and nerve that prevents the English boys from riding as well as their predecessors. The fault lies in the adoption of the unnaural American seat, with its absurdly short leathers.

"This practice is playing havoc with the riding in this country because the position of the jockey is so unnatural that he must be of abnormal physique if he is to be in a position to ride his race properly.

"It is impossible for a jockey nowadays, sitting crouched in this abominable way, to display the horsemanship with which men like Mornington Cannon used to win races.

"I watch the introduction of this style of riding with distrust, and I am convinced it is responsible for many of our present shortcomings."

Walter Raphael, owner of Tagalie, the Derby winning grey mare, practically expressed the same opinion as Lord Lonsdale, going, however, even further, and saying he would never send a horse to France to train. Richard Wotton, formerly of Australia and father of the two boys of that name now riding in England, said: "I do not think there is much the matter with English racing either from the training or riding point of view, no matter what Sloan thinks about it."

Higgs, a present day English jockey of foremost reputation, said conditions had changed in England since Sloan rode there. "The stewards have increased their regulations to such an extent," he declared, "that we have to ride like ladies in the Row instead of jockeys on a racecourse.

"It is the effect of all these restrictions which deceived Tod Sloan into thinking we lack initiative.

"The jockey is even expected to keep the place he drew at the start now so that the outside man on a circular course has to gallop placidly through the race on the outside from start to finish, or run the risk of getting into trouble on a charge of 'boring.'

"Although it is perfectly right to be extremely strict, yet the regulations and rules have become altogether too much of a good thing, and are absolutely spoiling English riding."

"The French jockey can still ride a fighting race and show his skill as a horseman, which we are now almost barred from doing."

"How can you expect fine riding under these circumstances?" Cannon said. "The jockeys naturally take no risks when they know that some one else will be put in their place if anything goes wrong.

"If owners will stick to English jockeys they will find them as good as ever they were, but this continual chopping and changing is doing us a lot of harm.

"I think there is a great deal in what Lord Lonsdale said about a jockey having to be of abnormal physique to ride in the American style with comfort.

"A man who has long legs for his size finds them dreadfully in the way, and most of the American jockeys are short-legged men.

"Regarding the principle of the American seat—I do not think anybody likes it very much, but it has undoubtedly superseded the old method forever.

"It has spoilt the beauty of racing from the spectators' point of view, but it is the better position for the rider."

NELSON STILL HOPEFUL

Oscar Matthew Nelson, professionally known as "Battling" Nelson still has hopes of regaining the title of champion lightweight of the world.

"I think," the ex-champion said in an interview at Winnipeg, "that I can regain the championship, and that I will some day. That is why I keep in training, and in touch with ring matters. I have nothing to say against Eddie Smith, who was probably the greatest referee that ever lived; but I believe he made a mistake in stopping that fight with Wolgast in the 44th round. I know that if we had fought to a finish, I could have whipped Wolgast.

Oddities of Ball Players

Here are some of the fads and foibles of the stars of the diamond:—

On arising Rube Marquard divests himself of his pajamas before taking a cold bath.

Eddie Plank has a fixed habit of using a comb and brush in tidying his hair.

Before leaving his room Joe Kelley puts on a pair of socks and shoes.

If "Iron man McGinnity" finds any mail addressed with his name on the silver tray, his curiosity impels him to open the same and read the contents.

In taking his morning constitutional Wyatt Lee prefers the sidewalk to the street.

When Jimmy Archer wants a new suit of clothes he goes to the tailor himself, instead of dispatching a messenger boy.

In crossing a street, should an auto approach him at high speed, "Big Chief" Bender will be sure to get out of its way.

Since a babe "Muggsy" McGraw has had a strong aversion to mad dogs.

Odd enough at the dinner table Al Shaw asks that the roast be served before the crackers and cheese.

When Tim Jordan's fortnightly stipend is handed to him, he pockets the check instead of handing it back to Kelley.

COOKING APPLES

Peel them and take out the cores; fill up the hollow with currants and a clove. Dredge them well with castor sugar, and bake in a moderate oven.

FOR SUPPER

Boil whole as many medium-sized Spanish onions as required. When done, drain them, and put each on a slice of toast. To each half-pint of water they are boiled in add two ounces of grated cheese and a level tablespoonful of flour, season with pepper, bring to the boil, then pour over the onions and toast.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, painful, scaldy, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the cure of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly cure the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies There is nothing else like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

SPORTING HOBBIES OF BRITISH NOBLES

Aviation, Swimming, Yachting, Golfing and Shooting Figure Largely in Outdoor Life

English society boasts of many adept swimmers, most of whom learnt the art of natation at the fashionable Bath Club, where Princess Mary, Prince Edward, and Prince Arthur were taught their strokes. Clever diving displays are sometimes given there by Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland. She is also a keen follower of the foxhounds, and looks her best on horseback. At least, two society women have distinguished themselves in deep water swimming. Lady Marjorie Dalrymple swam across Loch Ryan, Stranraer, a distance of three miles, against a strong current, and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, youngest daughter of the late Sir Charles and Lady Fairlie Cunninghame, swam the Solent from Stokes Bay to Ryde in the Isle of Wight, a distance of three and a half miles, in two hours.

The Duchess of Bedford is the finest lady shot in the kingdom, while the Marchioness of Graham and the Marchioness of Breadalbane are always to the fore in the Highland shooting season.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor's hobby of gypsying in a caravan keeps her expounding the joys of the simple life in the open air for several weeks each summer. She journeys under the name of "Syelra Lee."

The Duchess of Marlborough is a keen golfer.

The Duke of Westminster, whose chief hobby is polo-playing, was one of the first Britishers to purchase a Wright biplane, and the Earl of Ilardwicke and Lord Howard de Walden have both made a practical study of aviation. Somers Somerset, son of Lady Henry Somerset, possesses the French aviation brevet, and the Hon. Maurice Egeton, heir to Lord Egerton of Tatton, and the Hon. A. Boyle, the Earl of Glasgow's youngest son, hold pilotage certificates.

That rich man's hobby, yachting, has several enthusiastic devotees, all of whom are to be seen at Cowes during the first week in August, when the Royal Yacht Squadron's regatta takes place. Sir Thomas Lipton is the best known of them all.

Lord Dunraven and the Duke of Leeds, joint commodores of the Royal Yacht Squadron, are the official chiefs of the yachting world. Both of them possess master's certificates. Lord and Lady Leith, of Fyvie, are never happier than when afloat in the steam yacht Miranda and the same can be sid of Lord Brassey, a veteran sportsman, whose voyages in the Sunbeam belong to the classic history of marine pleasuring.

Viscount Acheson is seen a good deal this year about the Solent in his yawl Betty, where the Marchioness of Ailsa's cutter, the Bloodhound, and the new 23-meter yacht Lord Michelham has had built is much in evidence. Several well-known women not content to be mere passengers on such floating hotels as Lord Anglesey's Semiramis or the Duke of Bedford's Sapphire, go in for practical boat sailing. The Duchess of Westminster, Lady Margaret Macrae, and Mrs. W. L. Wylie, wife of the marine painter, are accomplished helmswomen.

KILLING CATTLE WITH AIR

Experiments With Pneumatic Poleaxe for Slaughtering Purposes

A poleaxe two and a half inches long, more efficient in cattle slaughtering than its primitive antecedent, is occupying the attention of London butchers, since a demonstration of humane methods of killing conducted at the Islington abattoirs under the auspices of the Council of Justice to Animals.

The weapon employed was the council's "air-killer." In appearance it looks like a large sky rocket, the rocket end is a chamber charged with compressed air, the stick an elongated valve terminating in a poleaxe only some two and a half inches long. On the pressure of a trigger the poleaxe is liberated against the head of the animal, the skull of which it penetrates without difficulty. The animal falls instantly, showing hardly a trace of the hole thus pierced.

The "air-killer" was used upon sheep, calves, and bullocks, all of which were, with one exception, killed expeditiously. It was clear that the efficacy of the instrument depended upn the operator's knowledge of the vital spot in an animal's skull. In the hand of an expert there should be no failures and the instrument costs but a trifle.

AFTER MIDDLEWEIGHT BELT

Mike Gibbons Aspires to Supremacy in 158 Pound Class

When Mike Gibbons returns to New York, he expects to be ready to fire the opening gun of a campaign to obtain recognition as the middleweight champion of the world. Before Gibbons left for his home in St. Paul to spend the summer he informed a friend that his object was not only to obtain a needed rest, but to build himself up, so that he would be able to meet the McGoortys, Klauses, and Mohas at something like equal terms as regards weight. If he can succeed in acquiring a few more pounds he will drop all pretence of being a welterweight and meet all comers at the 158 pound limit.

There seems to be no particular reason why the St. Paul phantom should not pick up a few more pounds. He has just turned twenty-four years of age, and having barely ceased to grow in height, can now be expected to take on flesh. At the present time he scales at 151, ringside. Even at his present weight there are many who think he could outpoint any of the prominent middleweights in a ten round bout. But in a long distance fight his lack of weight might be too great a handicap. Gibbons is one of the most careful matchmakers in the ring, and the announcement that he has signed for a fight means that he is absolutely sure of winning.

BACKWARD ALBANIANS

Like the Welsh in Britain and the Basques in Spain, the Albanians are a native stock. They speak the only original Balkan language. The Turks did not permit the Albanian tongue to be taught in schools. There is no literature, no agreement even as to how it shall be written. Of the few who can write, some use Greek letters, some the Roman. The Albanians themselves are nearly all Moslems, but 400,000 Greeks, Serbs, Vlachs and Bulgarians in their land belong to the Greek Church. The famous seven highland clans of the north, known as the Malissori, are Roman Catholic.

Blood feuds, lack of roads and Turkish misgovernment, make travel in the interior unsafe. One-quarter of all the deaths in the country are violent, either in clan warfare or in clashes with Turks. Much of the country is as independent as Montenegro. The Turk never cowed or taxed its rugged hills.

Of all fallow and backward races the Albanians have perhaps the greatest possibilities. Haeckel said that they have the best shaped heads in Europe and their natural ability is great.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysterious ly shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

All the morning my thoughts had been running in this line. Foolish thoughts they must seem to one who reads of them; worthy only to be classed with the idle, superstitious fears of young girls and old women, and impossible to a well-balanced, clear-headed man of twenty-nine. It may be that I was not well-balanced and clear-headed. And yet the sequel would tend rather to a contrary conclusion.

Cameron was still reading the Herald, and I sat with a pair of binoculars at my eyes sweeping the waters for the trailing smoke of a liner or some object of lesser interest.

Presently the silence was broken by my companion.

"I see," he began, dropping the paper to his knees, "that China is really in earnest in her anti-opium campaign. Two Peking officials have died from the effects of a too-hasty breaking of the habit. Men do not die in the attempt to obey mere paper reforms. The Chinese are a wonderful old people, Clyde."

I lowered my glasses, all at once interested.

"You've been in China?" I asked.

"No, I haven't," was his answer. "I've always meant to go; but when I was nearest, ill news drew me home; and so I never got closer than Yokohama on one side, and Srinagar, in Kashmir, on the other."

"You've seen something of them in this country, I suppose?"

"No, very little. I attended a dinner once at which Li Hung Chang was the guest of honor; and I've eaten chop suey in one of those Chinese eating palaces they have in Chicago. That's about the extent of my personal Chinese experience. But I have always been interested in the country and its people. I have read about everything that has been published on the subject. By the way, did they ever find out who killed that boy of Murphy's?"

"Not yet," I answered. "They've had some of his own kind under surveillance, but no more arrests have been made."

"Murphy was released?"

"Yes."

He took up his paper again and once more I applied myself to seagazing.

Far away to the northeast I made out what appeared to me to be a seagoing tug or pilot boat, steaming, I thought, with rather unusual speed for a vessel of her class. It was not much of a discovery, but the waters had been very barren that morning, especially for the last two hours, and insignificant as this object was I felt in a manner rewarded for my vigil.

Half an hour later she had slipped out of sight and I was busy in an effort to pick her up again, when a cry from the lookout forward directed my attention to a floating speck possibly two miles or more dead ahead, and not more than a point off our course.

"Come," I said to Cameron, "let's go up on the bridge and have a look!"

"And have our trouble for our pains?" he returned, incredulously. "It's probably some bit of wreckage, a box or a cask."

"Very well," I agreed, starting off alone. "Even a box or a cask is worth while as a variation."

When on nearer approach the drifting object proved to be a fisherman's dory, with a man, either dead or unconscious, plainly discernible in the bottom, I should hardly have been human had I not experienced a degree of satisfaction over Cameron's failure as a prophet. That, however, was the least abiding of my sensations. In an instant it had given way to anxiety concerning the boat's occupant and interest in the business-like manner in which MacLeod, the stocky young executive officer of the Sibylla, was preparing to pick up our find.

The engine room had been signaled half-speed ahead, and already a sailor with a coil of rope in hand was stationed at the forward gangway. I have frequently seen river pilots make landings that were marvels of clever calculation, but I never saw any steering more accurately gauged than that by which MacLeod, here in the open sea, with the precarious swell and surge of ocean to combat, brought the yacht gliding within a bare three inches of the rolling dory's bow.

I was leaning over the rail as we came thus upon the castaway, and saw clearly enough for just a moment the huddled creature in oilskins, silent and motionless in the stern, with closed eyes and wet, dark hair matted upon his forehead. Then a sailor, dropping lightly into the boat, shut off my view for a little. There was a whir of flung line; an exchange of quick-spoken, and to me unintelligible, words between the sailor in the dory and a sailor standing beside me on the yacht's deck; and then, the line was taut and straining, and the dory, which had sheered off astern, was being brought up slowly alongside.

Now, I realized for the first time that our engines had stopped and that, save for the roll, we were almost stationary.

They were lifting the fisherman aboard when Cameron, at length aroused by the unusual, strolled forward and joined me.

"There's your bit of wreckage," I observed, smiling.

"Poor devil!" he exclaimed, sympathetically. "He seems more dead than alive.

"He's breathing, sir," announced Brandon, the first officer, "and not much more. We'll take him below, and see what can be done for him, sir."

He appeared to be about forty years of age, a somewhat shrunken, weather-beaten creature, with face deeply lined and half hidden behind possibly a week's growth of dark beard. It is not easy to read a man with his eyes closed, but I was far from prepossessed by what of this fellow's features was on view. Ordinarily I should have given him scant heed, but today was no ordinary day, and my suspicions were superactive. Even the most trivial occurrences took on significance. And this was not a trivial occurrence. Certainly it was not usual. Fishermen blown to sea in storms and overcome by exposure, hunger and thirst were common enough, perhaps, but within the past week there had been no storm; the weather had been as mild as that of June, with an August day or two thrown in. How was it possible, then, for this bit of flotsam to have come where it was and in the condition it was?

To Cameron I gave no hint of my reasoning, but to Captain MacLeod I put the question without hesitation.

"It does seem a bit odd, Mr. Clyde," he returned, judicially, "but you see his mast and sail had gone by the board and his oars, too. It looks to me, sir, as if he'd been run down, maybe, and nigh swamped. Of course we can't tell till he gets his senses and lets us know."

Though this put the matter in a new light, it did not by any means relieve my anxiety; and I asked MacLeod to have a sharp watch kept on the fellow, adding that I would come to him later for anything he might learn. I took care, too, to caution him to make no mention of the affair in the presence of Cameron.

It was not until after dinner that evening that I found opportunity again to question the captain. I came upon him in his stateroom, a comfortably commodious cabin, far forward on the upper deck. On his table was spread a chart, over which he was bending when I entered. A briarwood was gripped firmly between his teeth and the grateful odor of clean pipe smoke greeted me as I entered.

"He's come around, Mr. Clyde," he informed me, turning about in his swivel chair, "and I'm just trying to check up some of his statements by means of this chart here, and our weather record."

"And how do they check so far?" I asked, a little dubiously.

"Quite to a dot, sir," was his answer. "There's no breakdown anywhere, so far. According to his story, he sailed out of Gloucester harbor on Monday morning. His name's Peter Johnson, and he lives in East Gloucester. He says the wind was strong from the westward, and he made the banks all right without mishap. But about noon, the wind died, and a thick fog came in from the northeast, chill and sopping, sir. He kept moving about, and finally in the thick of it lost his bearings. It had clouded over and after a little it began to rain. He made a try for Gloucester harbor, but must have sailed southeast instead of northwest. Then the night came down, and the fog was like a dozen blankets, he says. His food was gone and most of his water, but he said he'd seen worse than that many a time, and just prayed for the fog to lift and give him a sight of the stars. And the next thing that happened was what I suspected, sir. He heard a steamer's whistle. He had his sheet out and was running before the wind, and that steamer coming upon him out of the fog, caught his boom, ripped out his mast and nearly capsized his dory. When she righted, the steamer's lights were fading into the fog again, his boat was half full of water and his oars were washed away. Well, sir, to make a long story short, he must have caught a current that carried him well out beyond Cape Cod, and then slewed him around the southermost end of Nantucket Island. I questioned him about lights and fog signals, and making due allowance for his condition, his yarn works out pretty straight. He'd been drifting about for three days when we picked him up and was half dead of thirst and hunger. But he's come around better than might be expected, and—"

And then I interrupted him.

"Three days without water?" I questioned.

"And without food. Yes, sir."

"When did he tell you this story?"

"About six o'clock, sir."

"Could a starving man recover that quickly?"

"He might, sir," MacLeod answered. "The average healthy man can go ten days without food or drink."

"What have you done with him?"

"He's in the seaman's quarters, for'ard, sir."

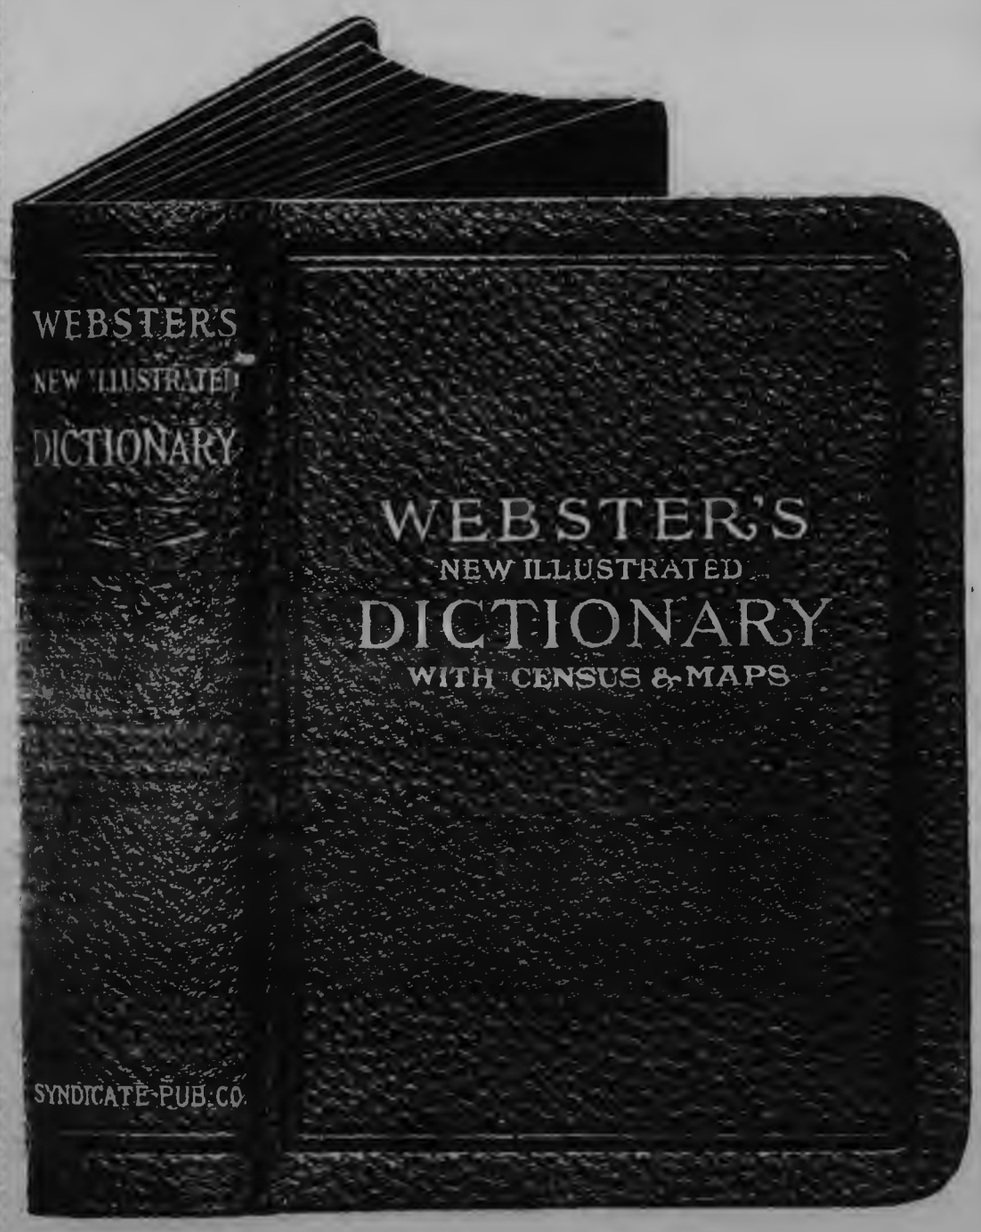
"See that he's kept there, Mr. MacLeod," I told him. "I'd feel better if you put a watch on him tonight. Tomorrow we'll run in to Gloucester and look up his people and friends."

"Very good, sir."

"Thank you."

I thought of having a look at Peter Johnson, myself, for I was somewhat curious to study that face again when it was sentient, and had eyes open, but on second thought I decided to wait until morning. It seemed silly to suspect this seemingly honest but unfortunate fisherman.

We had not been speeding so well during the afternoon; there was some trouble reported from the engine room, and it was a question whether we had made over fifteen knots an hour since two o'clock. I know that at ten o'clock that night, when the moon went down, we were somewhere east of Nantucket, and directly in the path of the transatlantic liners.



The night was balmy as a night in springtime, and Cameron and I in light overcoats sat on the after-deck watching the moon slide slowly below the dark horizon line. Our chairs were close together, facing the lee rail; his the farther astern. We talked of many things, I remember. He was always interested in my work, and especially in my ambitions to make The Week a power for national good; and, I remember that we discussed several projects I then had in mind for bringing about reform in high places. But the subject which then interested me most, and regarding which I still experienced a vague, unreasoning uneasiness, he had avoided throughout the day and evening, with what seemed to me studied intent.

The sudden cessation of hostilities on the part of those whom he had been given every reason to look upon as his implacable enemies, was certainly strange enough to have invited endless debate; and I marveled that, after having accepted my falsehood as truth, he had not chosen to go over with me the whole marvelously perplexing business.

UGH! HOW CHILDREN HATE CASTOR OIL

To Clean the little one's Stomach, Liver and waste-clogged bowels, give gentle "Syrup of Figs."

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the physic that mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. The day of harsh physic is over. We don't force the liver and 30 feet of bowels now; we coax them. We gave no dreaded after effects. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their little stomachs and tender bowels are injured by them.

If your child is fretful, peevish, half sick, stomach sour, breath feverish and its little system full of cold; has diarrhoea, sore throat, stomach ache; doesn't eat or rest well—remember—look at the tongue, if coated, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, then don't worry, because you surely will have a well, smiling child in a few hours.

Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics simply cannot be harmful. It sweetens the stomach, makes the liver active and thoroughly cleanses the little one's waste-clogged bowels. In a few hours all sour bile, undigested fermenting food and constipated waste matter gently moves on and out of the system without griping or nausea.

Directions for children of all ages, also for grown-ups, plainly printed on the package.

By all means get the genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna" prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. Accept nothing else.

A Correction.

An item appeared in yesterday's issue that is apt to be misleading. The article referred to a man named O'Toole, who recently got into trouble in a scrap in a local bar. The item referred to O'Toole as a "bartender." Whilst this word may be correct in O'Toole's case, its significance might be misunderstood. O'Toole tends bar from the front of the counter and not from the domain of the white-coated members of the Union.

She Would Not Be Clipped.

Mr. Art Johnston, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel owns a pony. Yesterday morning he sent the horse led by a strap attached to its halter down to a local livery stable to be clipped. Whether the pony is a weather prophet and scourts cold weather ahead, is not known. Still, the pony, on arripal at the livery showed a strong disinclination to be clipped. With a flirt of its head, and a hey presto motion, it slipped out of the halter and, at full gallop, returned to its own quarters at the Windsor.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

MAYOR BRADBURN WELCOMES THE VISITING ORANGEMEN

Civic Deputation Went to Forresters Hall and Were Loudly Applauded as They Spoke

One of the most interesting incidents of the visit of delegates to the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario occurred yesterday morning when his worship, Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Duncan, and Langford, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Mr. W. H. Robertson, proprietor of The Morning Times, and other prominent citizens called at Foresters' Hall to present a civic and general welcome to the visitors.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams, Peterborough's veteran Orangeman, introduced the callers to Chairman Hughes in a short speech.

Mayor Bradburn's Address.

Rt. Worshipful Grand Master and Members of the Grand Lodge of Ontario East of the Loyal Orange Association.

Gentlemen :—

It gives us great pleasure to have the opportunity of welcoming you to Peterborough to-day, and of informing you that we hope that your stay here will be most enjoyable. Many of you doubtless were present at the meeting here of the Grand Lodge of British America some four years ago, but perhaps others of you are seeing this city for the first time. However, whether you have been here before or not, we want you to all feel at home, and anything that we can do to make you feel that you are at home, we will be glad to do.

In holding your session this year in Peterborough you are visiting one of the most progressive cities in Canada. We have not done much advertising, and it may not have done as much as we might have done to let it be known how the city has advanced, but the fact is that the increase in population, which is one marked indication of advancement, has been sixty-three per cent. in the last ten years, as shown by the Dominion census, and this increase is greater by a considerable percentage than most of our sister cities of Ontario. The percentage of increase in the products of the factories in Peterborough from 1890 to 1910, the last year for which the figures are available, was greater than in any city in Ontario. This progress we expect to be even greater in the next few years, for one wealthy United States concern is now erecting a large industrial plant here, another has just decided to establish their Canadian factory in this city, and an English manufacturing company that has been in business for nearly a century will begin the erection of a large plant as soon as the weather permits. We hope you will have an opportunity before you leave, to become personally acquainted with some of the features of the city. Our educational institutions, we believe, are at least among the best in the Province, and they are being improved by the erection of two large public schools on spacious grounds. We have an excellent Collegiate Institute, but we have not neglected, and do not intend to neglect, the public schools, and they are kept up to the highest standard of efficiency. Some of the other public buildings and our parks are worthy of inspection, as are also our magnificent churches.

We have on other occasions welcomed to Peterborough larger numbers of your Order than are present at this meeting, but we are pleased to bid welcome the leaders of the Association who have assembled on this occasion to deliberate upon its progress and the steps that should be taken to maintain its advancement. We know that members of your Order have held and now hold high offices in the state, and that it will continue to be an influence in the country.

We hope that your sessions will be useful and that your stay with us will be enjoyably, and that you will carry away with you many pleasant recollections.

W. H. BRADBURN,
Mayor.

Col. John Hughes replied briefly, thanking the Mayor for the welcome extended. "We all as true Canadians and loyal citizens rejoice in the great progress Peterborough is making. He had noticed the splendid buildings and the fine churches. The speaker referred to Peterborough's big factories. He again thanked the civic delegation.

Bro. Munroe, P.G.M., of Ontario, made a brief speech that was loudly applauded. He was here 30 years ago and was astounded at the progress Peterborough has made. He hoped during the next 50 years (laughter) to see his town of Cornwall catch up to Peterborough in growth. Cornwall has something to learn from Peterborough's Protestant Federation. He referred kindly to Mr. Burnham, M.P. Mr. Burnham is a man that people should be glad to meet. As a good Grit, he would sooner see a good Tory elected than a bad Grit.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in a short and non-political speech, welcomed the visitors, and was loudly applauded as he spoke.

Ald. Duncan, on rising, was loudly applauded. The days have come when politics cut any ice. We want one school, one language and one flag (Cheers). He was pleased, as a member of the Protestant Federation to welcome the visitors. "We want fair play, for speech and equal rights for all." Peterborough is one of the best cities under God's heaven to-day.

The Grand Chaplain referred to the splendid representation from the city present. The speaker gave a eulogistic report of his observations of Peterborough and her buildings. Orangeism does not take the place of any church. Unless a man attends his own church on Sundays, he is not doing his duty to his God. "Our lives as Orangemen are to be judged by the way we spend our lives," we will never bow down to Italy."

The meeting then adjourned.

Byrne Struck on Head.

The game between Boston and Pittsburg was won by the former by a score of 7—2. Pittsburg won the first game of the series. Seven more game will be played.

In the Boston-Pittsburg game, Bob Byrne, third baseman for the Pittsburg Nationals, was struck on the head by a ball pitched by "Smoky" Joe Wood yesterday and knocked unconscious. His condition to-night is regarded as serious.

Hot Liners.

Every vacant lot in the city will be occupied to-day and for the balance of the Easter holidays, by the boys, and by the time the season opens, they will be in the pink of condition for the rooting they are expected to do this summer.

The Athletics have won their entire twelve training games.

Smodgrass celebrated his return to the Giants by grabbing three hits in his first game.

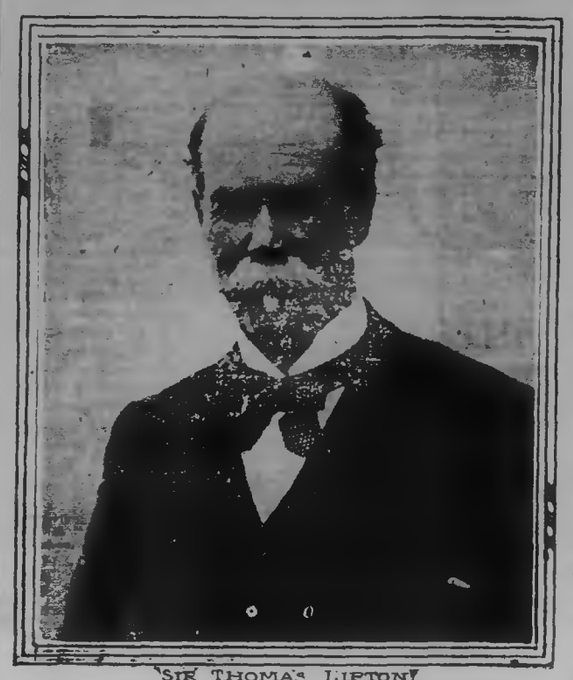
An outfielder, another infielder and two more pitchers may be added to the Leafs' roster.

All the clubs in the south are being bothered by floods, and training will be delayed somewhat.

"Peaches" Graham has failed to report at Macon, and the Leaf management are commencing to worry.

Johnny Lush is bigger than ever, and the Leafs' good port-side twirler may have trouble in conditioning himself.

Charlie Guerrie has been offered the position of business manager of the Leafs, but has declined the appointment.



Montreal have signed two new men named Savage and Lennox. "Kitty" Bransfield is on a scouting tour endeavoring to sign up two new pitchers and an outfielder.

The Leafs will play a series of four games with Geo. Stalling's Boston team, commencing to-day. The games will be played at Athens, Georgia, the Nationals' training camp.

There is some talk of organizing a mercantile league for the city. The boys should get busy and get things in shape for the opening of the season.

Irvin Trout, of last year's Petes, recruiting with the Leafs club, is said to be lightning fast, and, with Graham and Bemis to school him along, the Leafs should have a very strong catching department.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON WILL TRY AGAIN.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the famous English yachtsman, is to visit the United States in the fall, and it is said will make another attempt to lift the America's Cup. The coming of Sir Thomas will be received with enthusiasm by yachtsmen throughout the

PROBABILITY LOOKS STORMY WHEN NAVY DEBATE IS ON

Anticipated at Ottawa That the Government Will Require to Enforce Closure

Ottawa, March 22.—The only development in the naval bill situation is involved in the formal statement by the Government after the House adjourned last evening.

However, while the notice of amendment of the rules will be given next week, it is intended to be suspended like the sword of Damocles, rather than being put through. If the Opposition shows a disposition to let the naval measure pass, no amendment to the rules will be made.

But in view of the decision of the Liberal caucus "that there should be no let up in the fight and that the Government must be compelled either to drop the bill or go to the country," the probability is that they will maintain their stand in which event more stormy sittings may be anticipated.

Will Ask Supplies.

It is understood that when the House comes back, supply will first be asked for, as the fiscal year will then be within six days of expiration, and no appropriation for the next year, save about $100,000, has been voted. Probably the Opposition will be asked to put through en block a fractional part of each item, leaving until a later date the discussion of details. This is a customary procedure and one which the Conservatives always complied with, even in 1911, when they blockaded reciprocity.

Ministers Depart.

Though sufficient ministers will remain in Ottawa for Cabinet Councils to dispose of routine work, Mr. Rogers has gone to Winnipeg, Mr. Hazen to St. John, Mr. White to Toronto and Mr. Pelletier to Quebec.

GRAND ORANGE LODGES HERE ELECTS OFFICERS FOR 1913

Yesterday afternoon the Orange Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario, met in Foresters' Hall. During the afternoon brilliant and patriotic addresses were given by Bro. W. Banks, Chairman of the Legislative Committee, Bro. Garland, M.P., for Carleton, Bro. Ebbs, M.L.A., Lanark, Bro. Grant, M.L.A. Hastings and Bro. McElroy, M.L.A., for Carleton.

During the evening session the following officers were elected :

Fred W. Ford—R.W. Grand Master.
Evans H. McLean—R.W. Deputy Grand Master.
O. W. Landon R.W. Junior Deputy Grand Master.
Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald R.W. Grand Chaplain.
Revs. A.R. Sanderson, F.D. Woodcock, R.H. Stacey, S.A. Depran, C. Sandsbury, C. W. Demelle, Geo. McConnell, A. E. Smart, G. W. Swayne T. F. Drowdell, A. H. Cruggan, J. Dinns, Foster Bliss—Deputy Grand Chaplains.
T. B. Collins—R.W. Grand Treasurer.
E. F. Clarke—R.W. Grand Secretary.
T. H. Thompson—R.W. Grand Lecturer.
W. E. Tummon—R.W. Grand Director of Ceremonies.
Geo. McGookin, W. C. Reid—R.W. Grand Auditors.
T. C. McConnell—R.W. Deputy Grand Secretary.

The election was conducted and officers installed by Duncan Munroe, Past Grand Master.

Lindsay was selected as the next place of meeting.

Whereas the Dominion of Canada has always freely received the protection of the British navy; And whereas up to the present time this Dominion has not contributed anything towards the support of said navy; And whereas financial conditions in Canada are now such that it devolves upon us as Canadians to assume our fair share of all Imperial responsibilities; And whereas this Grand Lodge is sensible of the fact that this is a time when the safety of the Empire is gravely endangered through the great recent increase in the naval forces of the European Powers, therefore be it resolved—

"That the Right Worshipful Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East in annual session assembled at Peterborough do place itself on record as heartily approving of an expenditure of a sum not less than thirty-five million dollars for the purpose of building and equipping three Dreadnoughts to be added to the strength of the British navy in the North Sea. That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Prime Minister and the leader of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition in Canada."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Strong winds, snow flurries and turning colder.

MR. E. A. PECK M.L.A., ACTIVE FOR WHITNEY

During the debate on Rowell's Abolish the Bar amendment, the local member for West Peterborough, said, in part: "What is going to happen if we do away with the bars and leave the shops?" he asked. "We would like to have heard the evidence of the police magistrates and Crown Attorneys of the different cities on the question of enforcement of prohibition, but there was nothing of that in the remarks of the honorable member for North Oxford."

William Proudfoot (Centre Huron), who followed, declared that many members of the Government were in favor of the abolition of the bar, but were afraid to come out and say it, preferring to shield themselves behind the anti-treating system. "Does anyone here contend that it would not be a good thing to wipe out 1,471 bars, for the simple reason that there would be 218 shop licenses left?" he asked.

In concluding the speaker referred to the amendment to the amendment, moved by T. Herbert Lennox, K.C., in his opinion the member from North York had not even read the amendment, and he suggested that the language resembled Hon. W. J. Hanna's.

Sir James Whitney followed in a speech of an hour's duration.

"So long as liquor can be imported and manufactured, nothing can be done to prevent its use," said the Premier. "If the bars were abolished, and liquor was still allowed to be imported and manufactured, you could pass legislation by the wagon-load, you could place officials at every corner, but you could not prevent the illicit sale of liquor. If bars only were abolished you would have the sale in shops and dives." He said the Government had not changed its mind with respect to the treating system, and did not propose to.

"Just wait and you'll see what this Government will do with respect to eliminating the treating habit," he said. "Any legislation that will be enacted you may be sure will come from this side of the House."

"Mr. Speaker, the attempt that has been made to join the Grit party with the Dominion Alliance, and menacle and hobble the good temperance people of the Alliance to Grit officialdom will fail," he went on. .

POWER CO. OFFERS TO OPERATE ON HYDRO-ELECTRIC RATES

Proposes That City Purchases Otonabee Power Co's Plants At Price Paid For it, Within its Value As Estimated By Hydro-Electric Commission

The City Fathers met in a special session last night, Mayor Bradburn presiding. The following Aldermen were also in their seats: McIntyre, Anderson, Langford, Johnston, Gordon, Green, Duffus, Gillespie Duncan and Buller.

The Power Situation.

In regard to the City's private bill now up before legislature, seeking an act to disfranchise the Peterborough Light & Power Co., the following letter addressed to our local member was read :

"E. A. Peck, M.P.P.,
Parliament Buildings,
Toronto.,

"Referring to our conversation regarding a possible settlement of the controversy that has arisen over the proposed amendments to 2 Geo. V., Chap. 117, during which conversation the question of the rate of the Otonabee Power Co. to the City of Peterborough was discussed. I beg to advise you that I am instructed by our Board of Directors to inform you that, as holders of the majority of the stock of the Otonabee Power Company, we will be willing to settle the physical assets of the Otonabee Power Co., including water power, power house, transmission and distributing lines and substation to the City of Peterborough at the same price we paid for it, less any depreciation that may have occurred since our purchase, and plus the price of any additions or improvements that have been put on since that date.

"For your information, I may say that the price we paid was not higher than the price that the Hydro-Electric Commission recommended the city to pay in 1911, and which the city was prepared to pay.

Of course the city would have to agree not to expropriate any part of or parts of our Peterborough Light & Power Company property, and abandon clauses 4, 5 and 6 of Bill No. 37. If the city desire we would be willing to fix a rate or rates at which both the city and ourselves should sell light and power for any new business that we might be able to obtain, and in case of controversy over this rate, we would be glad to abide by the decision of the Hydro Electric Power Commission for Ontario.

I am sending copies of this letter to the Mayor and Council and members of the Power Committee, in order that the matter may be fully discussed before the Peterborough bill comes up again

"A. B. COLVILLE."

Mr. Arthur B. Colville, Vice-President of the Seymour Power Co., was present, and spoke on the foregoing letter in part as follows :

He thought it advisable that the controversy at present being waged between the city and his company re the city's bill before the Legislature aiming to eliminate all competition with Hydro-Electric be settled by mutual understanding in the interests of all concerned. He did not wish to criticise the bill, but it is the duty of his company to forward any proposition which will settle present differences and leave the Peterborough Light & Power Co. the privileges of its franchise. When the Seymour Power Co. last fall made three propositions to the city, it never occurred to the former that the latter had any idea of expropriating or purchasing the Otonabee Power Company's plants. Since then it had been intimated to him that the city is anxious for the acquisition of municipal ownership of light and power and the present situation would not have arisen had the Seymour Power Co. not purchased the Otonabee Power Co's plants in 1911. In 1911 the Hydro-Electric Commission had estimated that $225,000 was a fair price for the Otonabee Power Co's plants, and said Mr. Colville, we did not purchase those plants in excess of that estimate—less if anything—and would turn them over to the city at our purchase price. We do not wish to oppose Hydro-Electric, and would point out that our proposition would give to the Commission its generating plant and the city its own distributing system,

Mr. Colville here went on to say that in all probability the Seymour Power Co. would be able to cut prices where the city could not, the former having a more extended system, the capital of which is paid up, whereas the city would naturally be controlled in its prices by the indebtedness incurred for its plant, with interest thereon, together with a sinking fund to provide for retiring the debts on its own distributing system and the Hydro-Electric Commission's generating system. In Ottawa the company sell power and light at the same rates as fixed by the Commission; and the Peterborough Light & Power Co. would be willing to enter into a like arrangement in Peterborough, providing the present bill before the legislature is not forced and all competition thus eliminated. The whole question would then simmer down to one of simple service, and everyone must agree that competition in service is not a drawback. Even the operation of three railways through any one municipality is done on fixed rates, resulting in developing the best possible service in the public interests. The same principle would apply in Peterborough in regard to light and power operated on Hydro-Electric rates by two competitive systems—that of the municipality and the Peterborough Light & Power Co.—on a service basis only.

Advantages of Settlement.

Mr. Colville, in conclusion offered the following distinct advantages as a result of a settlement of the present controversy re city's private bill on the lines referred to above :

First—Peterborough would get light and power from two systems at rates fixed by the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Second—Peterborough would have

WILL COUNCIL BE ABLE TO AVOID A 25 MILLS RATE?

Seems at Present Impossible---Would Mean an Increase of 3 Mills, Representing a Total Advance in Taxes of $29,016

The Council in Committee of the Whole last night again went into the estimates for this year's taxation, and concluded that it seems impossible to avoid a 25 mills rate. This would be an advance of 3 mills above the 22 mills rate of last year. A mill on the assessable property represents $9,672. Would mean that the taxes levied this year would be increased by $29,016 should the 25 mills rate be adhered to. The 25 mills rate is based on the following estimates for the main departments of unavoidable expenditure.

Administration of Justice, $5,600.
Queen Mary Hospital (for patients can't collect from), $1,800.
Legal Committee, $2,000.
Light (a reduction of $1,500), $11,000.
Market, $100.
Municipal Government, $5,000.
Parks, $300
Police Department, $9,500.
Property Committee, $700.
Printing, etc., $500.
Public Library, $4,000.
Board of Work, $29,000.
Street Watering, $3,000.
Snow Removal, $2,000.

SPECIAL GRANTS.

Mayor, $500
Children's Aid, $300.
Horticultural Society, $900.
Exhibition, $600.
Regimental Band, $500.
Salvation Army Band, $225.
Sick Children's Hospital, $50.
Teachers' Institute, $25.
Poultry Association, $75.
Consumutive Hospital, $50.
Unforseen, $925.

Water Commissioners (Hyd.) $8,500
Loss on Taxes, $3,000.
Voters' Lists, $750.
Fire Department, $16,500.

The City Fathers however, are within the next few days going to make a strong effort to pare down these estimates somewhat to avoid an increase of half a mill if possible, although at present it seems a forlorn hope.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 384 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area

At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at

$275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

A TELEPATHIC CLOCK

Here is a strange yet absolutely true story, according to the Liverpool Post, in which a clock plays a mysterious part: It was a small timepiece which stood on a mantel-piece in a sitting room in a Liverpool builder's home. At 11.30 one morning the timepiece fell from the mantel-piece to the floor. When picked up it was found to be quite uninjured and still going, as if nothing unusual had happened. There seemed to be absolutely no reason why it should have fallen, but an hour later when the builder came home to his midday meal he remarked that at 11.30 he fell from the top of a building, but happily without sustaining any injury. His wife then described how the clock had fallen at the same time and the couple ponder in vain over the curious and utterly inexplicable coincidence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Murray Runner, of Calgary, is a young man who lives right up to his name. The other day he ran away with the prettiest girl in the place.

The more collection of finger prints on some of the novels of the public library point to another place where the City Medical Health officer can find some good germicidal work.

The man who will not enter a saloon from the front, but goes through the side or back door is always recognized as one who does not have the courage of his thirst.

A writer in the Mail and Empire says that in China when a man is sick the doctors stick him with long needles. The writer might have added that in this country they stick him with long bills.

The Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin showing how to cook the English sparrow, which is prized for its food value. But the public should have first been told how locating the active little nuisance.

It is said that Mr. James Baptie, the well-known Springville poultryman, is trying to breed a wingless chicken. This great family journal would suggest, as an improvement on this, that he develop a voiceless cat.

The Globe says that a German engineer has announced an invention by which a person can see what is going on miles away. This g.f.j. is of opinion that the world of trouble that invention will cause should it fall into the hands of the wives of the commercial travelers.

WHO IS M. MARCIL?

The accuser of Hon. L. Coderre, Secretary of State, who has engineered the whole plan of attack on the Secretary, is the very same gentleman (?) who had the same sort of racket with Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Ex-Postmaster-General, five years ago 'Nuff said.

PROGRESS OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The progress of the woman suffrage cause in the Eastern States has been remarkable, for bills submitting the issue to the voters have gone through the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey without a hitch. It is true they must be repassed next year in order to reach the voters, but there can be no doubt that they will. In Pennsylvania the House has passed a similar bill by alarge majority, and in Michigan, where suffrage was defeated by 250 votes, the Legislature has provided for a resubmission of a constitutional amendment, to be voted on again in April.

In Nevada the Legislature has passed the bill twice, and it now goes to the voters. In Missouri and Minnesota one house has acted favorably, and in Massachusetts the Republican leaders have agreed to have the Legislature vote for submission this year. In some cases, of course, the apparent support of woman suffrage is not friendly. In Massachusetts, for instance, the Republicans are certain that the male voters will kill it as soon as it is submitted to them.

They may do the same in New York and New Jersey, but the point is that the question will be pressed by women year after year. In a recent interview ex-Governor Vessey, of South Dakota, declared that all the Western States would be converted to the cause in a couple of years. In Canada no Province has followed the example above recorded, or are any of them likely to in the near future.

PATRIOTIC CANADIANS ARE ASKED

"Lives there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is my own, my native land."

This was the proud sentiment which prevailed in the minds of nearly every patriotic Canadian when he first learned that Mr. Borden had offerred on behalf of Canada thirty-five million dollars to aid and assist the Mother Country in a united endeavor to uphold British Naval supremacy. He was enthused also with love of country when he heard the fervid declaration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he and his party would go one better and contribute a much larger amount towards the building of a Canadian Navy. But since then what a disillusionment has taken place in the mind of the majority of the Canadian people and what a feeling of soreness has been aroused over the sorry spectacle and vaudeville entertainment provided by the Liberal party at Ottawa at a cost to this country of ten thousand dollars for every day of its continuance performance; a spectacle and farce which is making the country cheap in the eyes of the nations of the world and in the carrying out of the first principles of responsible Government are set at naught.

Because the Conservative party wishes to make a contribution in a certain way the minority have placed the land in a most humiliating position before all the rest of the world and by their obstructionist tactics and talk of independence are making it appear as though Canada does not wish to provide either cash or navy or come to the aid of the Mother Country in any way whatsoever, and that whilst she is willing to talk big she is either unable or unwilling to do more. Truly we can now well say:

"Lives there a Canuck with soul so dead
Who lately hath not often to himself said
I feel ashamed of this, my own, my native land."

HEADACHY, COSTIVE, BILIOUS—"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, mean Liver and Bowels are clogged—Cheer up!

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

POET'S CORNER

Readers are invited to contribute to this column. Matter to be either original or otherwise.

ST. PATRICK'S BIRTHDAY

On the eighth of March it was that some people say
That St. Patrick at midnight first saw the day,
While others declared on the ninth he was born;
And 'twas all a mistake between mid night and morn.

At length both the factions, so positive grew
That each kept a birthday; so Pat then had two;
Until Father McCauly he showed them their sins,
And said nobody could have two birthdays but twins.

So boys, don't be fighting for eight or for nine;
But instead of dividing, let us some time combine—
Combine eight with nine—seventeen is the mark;
And let that be his birthday. Amen
said the clerk.

So they all got right jolly which completed their bliss,
And they've kept up the practice from that day to this.

A SKELETON IN THE CUPBOARD.

There are dwellings unnumbered that dot this wide land;
Some lowly and humble, some stately and grand,
But in lone prairie shack, or magnificent hall,
A skeleton lurks in the cupboard of all.

In low vine covered cottage reposing serene,
Mid fair flowery valleys, the green hills between,
In the woodman's rude cabin, remote and obscure,
From the base cark and care, of the city secure.

Whether hidden in secret with vigilant care,
Or stalking forth boldly, gaunt, hideous, and bare,
Where the millionaire sits in his mansion of pride,
Grim, silent and gloomy, he sits by his side.

By wealth's costly trappings, 'concealed in the light;
But a demon malign, in the shadowy night,
When fashions gay throngs to the ball room repair,
An invisible guest, though unbidden, he's there.

Where squalor and poverty, long-wedded pair,
Bear their numerous brood, with them too, he will fare;
Ask not what title this spectre lays claim,
For he's various of visage, and legion his name.

Perhaps wasting disease, he's called in one place,
In another familiar as crime or disgrace;
As sorrow or want, trouble, care, he is known,
How few of us may his acquaintance disown

POWER CO. OFFERS

a progressive competitive service (rates of both the same) with neither a municipal nor company monopoly. And a big portion of the public do not like a monopoly in any shape or form.

Third—The quantity of power available for Peterborough should the city's bill become law, the amount of available power would be limited to the city's plant only, leaving prices uncertain and a grave possibility of not being able to meet the growing demand which may be naturally anticipated in so progressive a municipality as Peterborough. The Seymour Power Co. controll power from the lower Trent River and Burleigh Falls, and Peterborough is connected with the former generating plants via Port Hope. It is not generally known that on more than one occasion this winter when all the power houses in Peterborough were shut down through natural agencies, power was supplied this city's manufacturers from the lower Trent River, via the connecting line with Port Hope. Of course, should the Peterborough Light & Power Co's franchise be annulled the advantage of this transmission line will be lost to Peterborough.

Fourth—If this bill goes through in its present form, the company will combat the measure as hard as they can, as it involves a loss to their holding; a large amount of money has been invested in power in this vicinity. Consequently the whole question would be unsettled for some time. If our proposition is considered the city would be in a position to acquire the Otonabee Power Co's plants in a month or two, and be ready for business.

"I do not ask you to settle this yourselves, but to take it up with the Hydro-Electric Commission, and work out a scheme whereby litigation and confliction may be avoided. I would like the bill at least held over pending an attempt to reach a mutual settlement of the present controversy."

Ald. Gordon—"If the bill is held over it may not come up again this year. The bill has met objections and some modifications have been made which does not affect the measure as a whole."

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Gillespie,—That this matter be submitted to the whole Council, and the Mayor and Chairman of the Power Committee be asked to confer with Mr. Beck in regard to the company's proposition.—Carried.

Closing of Rubidge St.

Regarding the proposed closing of Rubidge street for the extension of the Wm. Hamilton Co's siding and the erection of sheds, Mr. Gladman was present and said that at any time it was found necessary in the interests of the ratepayers to re-open the street, the company would cheerfully remove all obstructions.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Langford,—That the City Solicitor's advise be take as to the town's position in regard to the proposed closing of this street.—Carried.

Ald. Anderson drew attention to the fact that following the council's grant of $150 to ex-scavenger Scriver for past services, a guaranshee for $62 had been sent into the treasurer's office. Hence payment of the chaeque had been withheld, as it was felt that the money should be equally divided amongst all Scriver's creditors for goods furnished him for the city's scavenger work.

On suggestion of Ald. Gordon, this cheque will be held in abeyance pending a ruling of the court as to the city's position in this regard.

FORMER LINDSAY MAN GETS GOOD U. S. JOB

Judge Hudspeth, formerly of Lindsay, now of Brooklyn, N.Y., but more recently known here by his fine entertainments at "bridge" (?) at his Stoney Lake cottage, has been given a fine appointment under President Wilson, as superintendent of Canals for the United States. His Stoney Lake cottage is called "All Welcome." Well done, your honor!

EXCLUSIVE JOCKEY CLUB

Duke of Connaught and Son Prince Arthur Both Members

All Royal princes who desire to be come members of The Jockey Club—England's most exclusive sporting organization are elected without ballot. At the time when the prince, who was to become King Edward VII., was elected, the only other members of Royal blood were the King of Holland and his son, the Prince of Orange. The King of Holland was a generous contributor to the English turf, and gave many rich prizes to be run for, principally at Ascot and Goodwood. This will explain the "Orange course" at the latter. It took some doing, as it was very little short of three miles.

Another Royal Prince was elected to the Jockey Club at a recent meeting of that body. This was the popular Prince Arthur of Connaught, whose father is also a member. The present King was made a member after the accession of his father to the throne in 1901. There is no other instance beyond the Duke of Connaught of "father and son" who are members of the club. Lord Derby had a seat in the Jockey Club during the lifetime of his father, and so had the Duke of Richmond.

It is something for the Scots Greys to say that they are the only regiment to supply to the Jockey Club one of its members—a real soldier actively engaged in soldiering. H.R.H. is a major in that regiment.

Other kings and princes that have been members of the Jockey Club than those we have mentioned are the Emperor of All the Russias, the King of the Belgians, the Grand Duke Michael, the Grand Duke Vladimir, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge, the Khedive, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

An Auto Polo Game

What is thought to have been the first automobile polo game ever played was staged in Wichita, Kansas. Four stripped automobiles and eight men took part. An ordinary basketball was driven back and forth over the field, the object being to drive it between goal posts sixty yards apart. Carl Evans and Ross King, two race drivers, did the greater part of the playing. The game was played in three ten-minute periods and ended with the score a tie, 1 to 1. King's automobile turned a complete somersault in the air on one sharp turn, but was righted and he finished the game. No one was injured.

MIND READING

Mr. Higgins—"Maria, why do you always interrupt me as soon as I begin to—"

Mrs. Higgins—"Because I always know exactly what you are going to say. What's the use of my wasting time by waiting to hear your finish?"

Cost of the Durbar

The Indian Accounts and Estimates for the current year, show that the cost of the Royal visit to India, as at present estimated, was $5,000,000.

In addition to this amount, the Royal boons, announced at the Durbar, involved, besides a recurring grant of $1,666,500 for popular education, a sum of $2,000,000. Of this $2,500,000 was appropriated for by the bonus of half a month's pay granted to the Army and to certain Civil employees.

THIS PARSON TAKES VERSATILITY BELT

Boston, Mass., March 20.—Out in West Stockbridge they have a man who is minister, painter, postmaster, carpenter, farmer, machinist, notary public, blacksmith, storekeeper, justice of the peace and undertaker.

The remarkable part of it all is that he does everything well. At least that is what his fellow-townsmen think of the Rev. William L. Du Bois. The elders of the church maintain that he is the most active, the most forceful, the most inspiring preacher of the Gospel in Western Massachusetts.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

Strengthens the Throat Assists Public Speakers

Catarrhozone is the Greatest Invention of the Age for Weak Throat, Hoarseness, &c.

Strongly Endorsed by the Clergy.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit it in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer, you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the "Progress" a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your God-sent invention, Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merit of Catarrhozone, I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me, and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some from suffering, and I will always remain.

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering from throat weakness or catarrh.

Two months' treatment (large size) $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

MARATHON WINNER TRAINS HIMSELF

McArthur, the South African Policeman Met Many Disappointments Before Landing Big Prize

Kennedy Kane McArthur, winner of the Olympic marathon at Stockholm, was born in Dernock, County Antrim, Ireland, six miles from the Giants' Causeway, 30 years ago. When he was 18 years old he joined the Irish Rifles, and with this regiment went to South Africa to fight the Boers. After the war he settled in Bloomfontein. He became a mounted policeman, following that calling to this day. His beat is on the veldt, 5,000 feet above sea level, and in patrolling it he has to be in the saddle many hours each day.

Until he settled in South Africa, McArthur had done practically no running. There, however, he became interested in association football, and it was in playing this game that he first learned to use his legs. One day a youngster challenged him to a 100-yard dash. McArthur lost and suggested a half-mile race. At this distance he won, and he developed considerable speed, so he specialized on this event. Then he tried the mile. A year later he won the 880, mile and four-mile championships of the Cape in 2.02 1-5, 4.41 and 21.50. No marathoner has ever shown such speed at these distances. Ten miles has been turned by McArthur in 52.38.

McArthur weighs 165 pounds. He is a six-footer, has strong features, with deep-set blue eyes and his whole body is finely muscled. Four years ago he defeated Hefferon, who was second to Hayes at London in 1908, in the South African trials for the Olympic team, but the selection committee looked upon his performance as an accident, and McArthur was not sent. His record for the full Greek distance (26 miles 385 yards) is 2 hours 40 minutes.

In 1910 he convinced his countrymen of his worth and he was sent to Athens to run in the Marathon of the games scheduled there. On account of international troubles in Greece these games were called off. The same year he journeyed to London to compete in the Polytechnic Harriers' Marathon and here again met with disappointment. King Edward died shortly before the time scheduled for the race so this event was called off for a year.

McArthur trains himself, but has a masseur constantly in attendance. He uses pneumatic rubber heels on his running shoes. He attributes his success in life in the open air, the use of plain food and no alcohol. He tried cutting out tobacco, but found that he ran no better, so now he doesn't hesitate to smoke when he feels so inclined.

He believes it is wrong to run the full distance while training for long runs. His partiality for mountain climbing is based on actual experience. He declares that by so doing he improves 5 per cent. when he runs on sea level.

THE OLDEST BASEBALL IN A GLASS CASE

The oldest baseball in the world and the one that was used in the first championship game on record is now in the possession of a sporting goods house in Kansas City. After drifting around for 55 years, it has been covered with gold leaf, mounted on a handsome case containing a placard with the history of the ball written on it, and now is an object of interest to the fans.

The ball is 10 inches in circumference, an inch larger than the regulation one of the present time, and is covered with one piece of leather. It was used in the game between the Intermountain team of Boston and the Portland, Me., team, September 9, 1857, the first championship game ever played, which was won by the Portland club, 47 to 42.

It was the first game in which the nine-innings rules prevailed, and the first one in which the ball was pitched instead of tossed. The game was played on Boston Commons.

The ball was formerly owned by Josh Westerhouse of Dunlap, Kas., who, at the age of 12 years, was bat boy for the Intermountain men. He obtained possession of it after the game, and when he moved to Kansas several years later brought the ball with him. Years ago he gave it to P. M. Wilhite of Emporia, who has owned it since.

Several years ago August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club, after a search lasting for several years, found a ball which he said was the oldest in existence, having been used in a game in 1860.

EARNINGS OF CUE MEN

Roberts Made $11,500 in Two Weeks, Stevenson's About $40,000 a Year

The statement made by a famous British billiard player that he had made as much as $1,200 in one afternoon naturally calls attention to the earnings of other "green cloth" exponents.

Players of the first rank, of whom there are about a dozen may make anything from $5,000 to $15,000 a season. The income of George Gray of England, who is only in his twentieth year, is reported to be something considerably over $10,000 a year, and Haverson, Digle, Inman, and Stevenson, going at full strength for the average number of working years—twenty—would receive in prizes and gate-money close on $200,000 each. The figures cause further surprise when it is remembered that several professionals started life as "markers" in clubs, etc., where their wages were between $3 and $5 a week.

Exhibition games are a better source of income than championships, for the simple reason that no risks are run. The players receive one third of the gross receipts, with a guarantee that it shall not be less than $350 or $400 per week. In Robert's memorable match with Dawson, some years ago, he received $20,000 as his share of the gate.

Roberts has travelled in Australia, India and New Zealand fourteen times. He has also been to China, Siam, and America. When he visits the Maharajah's palaces, carriages are placed at his disposal. He is so popular in India that he has been heard to say, "I would easily earn $1,000 a week there." In London a fortnight's match with Dawson brought $11,500 revenue to Roberts, and his separate contests with Peall and North made him richer by $18,000. During one of his Indian tours the rajah of Jeypore actually appointed him court billiard player at a salary of $25,000 a year!

This same tour provided an amusing incident at Calcutta. At the conclusion of an ordinary game Roberts gave an exhibition of fancy strokes, one of which was throwing the ball down the table and, by putting twist on it with the fingers, making it stop at some desired spot. The company was largely composed of Parsees and when Roberts commanded the ball to stop (which, of course, it did) one of the most influential of them got up and said: "I can understand what he does with the sticks and balls together, but when he speaks to the balls and they obey him, I have done with him. He must be a magician!" Having said this, the gentleman walked out of the hall.

When Dawson won the professional championship of the Billiard Association in 1899, the prize nominally was $500, but the winner was in such demand that he could easily obtain matches at fees fully 50 per cent. above his usual charges. Dawson retained the championship throughout 1900, and in the early part of 1901 lost to Stevenson, only to defeat him later in the year. In 1903 he was still champion, and during the five years he battled for the "rubber" he is estimated to have made no less than $40,000 a year.

Salomone, the most spectacular brigand of recent years, who has been sentenced at Aquila, Italy, to thirty years in prison, looks like an elegant nobleman. He has written clever stories for newspapers and has published some clever poetry. He was tried and sentenced for one murder and for one attempted murder, but he confessed to having murdered three men, tried to kill another, and to having been guilty of many extortions.

TRACING MAN'S DESCENT

Scientists to See Which Race is Nearest the Ape

An attempt is to be made at the Imperial Research Laboratory at Munich to determine, by blood precipitin experiments, which of the races of men bears the closest relationship to the ape.

As the case now stands, there is general agreement among scientists that man and the ape are descended from a common ancestor; but as to whether the black, the white, the red, or the yellow man, the pygmy, the giant, or the medium-sized man, was the original human type there are strong differences of opinion. One body of theorists holds that the negro is a degenerated white type, while another insists that the white man is evolved from an ancient black type.

SEA-GOING CAT'S DEATH

Mascot of Tunisian Deliberately Committed Suicide

Evidently tired of sea life and not caring to eke out a precarious existence ashore, "Prince," a plump, slick coated, black cat, one of the mascots of the Allan liner Tunisian, deliberately ended its ninth life by committing suicide at Montreal as the ship was leaving the wharf en route to Liverpool.

The big ship had got away from the end of the wharf several feet when Prince appeared on the main deck. He looked at the wharf, turned and scanned the deck, then quickly wheeled around again and with a feline howl leaped towards the dock and fell with a splash into the surging water.

Some longshoremen who saw the cat fall into the water tried to save it, but Prince avoided their attempts and in a few minutes was sucked under by the strong current caused by the moving ship.

"MOST POPULAR MAN IN KENT"

Lord Harris, who recently celebrated his first anniversary, has had a distinguished career as diplomat, courtier, cricketer, and organiser. He has been described as the most popular man in Kent, a reputation earned as captain of the Kent eleven, when he did more for the game than almost any man of the day. For five years he acted as Lord-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria, and he spent the same term as Governor of Bombay, during which period he and Lady Harris are said never to have made an enemy.

WALKED 5,000 MILES

Through Africa From Capetown to Cairo on Foot

Amid thronging dangers a historic walk of 5,000 miles across Africa was accomplished by Emil Lund, a Rhodesian settler, thirty-six years of age.

Lund walked from Cape Town to Cairo, not in fulfilment of a wager, or without money, or to test a system of diet or training, but simply from love of adventure. He has been a soldier and scout since he was seventeen.

"My wish," he said, in telling the story of his great walk, "was simply to be the first man to accomplish the feat. I am proudest of having walked across the Nubian Desert. That was the hardest tramp of all."

Until he left Elizabethville, in the Belgian Congo, he had a comparatively easy time, for he could obtain supplies, good food, and good water, but beyond that point he had a very trying time. He had no porters, carrying all his own baggage which weighed about 70 pounds.

During most of the time Mr. Lund was obliged to be a vegetarian, but he always ate meat when he could get it.

"Sometimes," he said, "I shot a buck; but I could only eat the liver, which I broiled in the ashes of my fire. Having no salt, I cannot say that I enjoyed my food. In passing through the great forests I camped on the ground, lighting a large fire to keep off the wild animals. I had to be very careful to keep this going throughout the night.

"At early dawn I renewed my march, tramping continuously till about eleven o'clock. After that I used to hunt round, collect wood, and cook my one daily meal. Then I slept till sundown.

"Lions and other carnivora do not usually attack in the heat of the day. They are asleep, and it is only when night falls that they set out in search of prey."

He met with a good many lions, but was never attacked by one. The idea that water will protect one from lions is, he says, erroneous, for lions are excellent swimmers.

In the Katanga district he was bitten by a black snake, and would probably have died, but he reached a native kraal, and was treated by a woman, who applied a decoction of herbs to the wound, and cured him.

One of the worst troubles with which Mr. Lund had to contend was the venomous flies and insects which swarm in tropical Africa.

He was bitten near the eye by a certain kind of malignant tick, and for a time was nearly blind.

In the course of his walk he fell in with the Baluba and Valessi cannibals. When they have a cannibal feast the victim is usually a man accused of some crime. In such a case the man is offered a draught of a poisonous decoction.

If he takes a long drink the poison is inoperative, producing merely nausea. But if, from timidity or guilt, he drinks but a small portion, the effect is almost immediately fatal. Women are excluded from these feasts.

Reaching Khartoum after crossing the Nubian Desert, Mr. Lund went into the hospital to patch himself up for the last stage of his journey which he completed without further mishap.

USES APE'S STOMACH

Marvellous Operation Upon a Frenchman and its Drastic Test

A man's stomach was removed by a French doctor and replaced with the stomach of an anthropoid ape, which of course, an ape very close to a man in the rising scale of development.

So joyous was the recipient of the new stomach that at the first opportunity he became intoxicated. Naturally the ape had never tasted liquor and the stomach he gave was so healthy that it did not suffer by being drenched in alcohol.

This remarkable operation and restoration of the part exorcised, the first of its kind, was performed by Dr. Roulles, a famous surgeon to the hospital at Agon, 73 miles southeast of Bordeaux. The patient was a farmer, 27 years of age, whose stomach was worn out and worthless. With the most delicate skill and the nicest knowledge of anatomy the surgeon opened the patient's abdomen and tying the great arteries as the operation proceeded, took out the useless stomach. After twenty-five days of treatment the cure was complete, the young farmer left the hospital, and as if to test his new stomach, went on a spree.

CASTLE FOR PRINCE

Future King May Have Home in His Own Principality

There is a likelihood that the Prince of Wales will have a home of his own in his own principality. The recent death of the Dowager Lady Penrhyn makes it possible to put through the scheme which has been on foot for some time to purchase Penrhyn Castle for him. The castle stands on an eminence, two miles from the Town of Bangor, in North Wales. It is a very imposing affair, with a high Norman tower and turrets. Its interior is notable for its fine old furniture, sculptured chimney pieces, oak carving and paneling. There is also a bedstead constructed entirely of slate, which is exquisitely tooled and finished. It took fourteen years to build the castle and it cost $2,500,000.

WAR ON POTATO CANKER

Efforts to Save Canadian Tubers From European Disease

The Canadian potato will be saved from the danger of canker, threatening from Europe, if the Department of Agriculture can save it. Potato canker is declared by departmental experts to be the most dreaded enemy of the potato, being practically ineradicable. It stays in the soil for years. It is a fungus growth, and is very prevalent in Continental Europe and in England, where it has wrought havoc with the tuber crops.

The disease was discovered in Canada in an imported shipment of European potatoes, and the consignment was destroyed. Since then the regulations have been amended, and circulars will be issued broadcast over the Dominion warning potato planters against the use of seed potatoes from Europe. In buying their seed potatoes they are required to obtain a certificate that the potatoes are not diseased and have not been imported from Europe. The new regulations will be rigidly enforced.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II. Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, and Clyde is in love. finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a wooden box, being used as a target. Evelyn pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an old man nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Murphy's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

His mind, I knew, was relieved by what I had made him believe, or he would not now be the man he was; but despite that, it appeared to me, it would be most natural for him, on this day of all days—the twenty-first of the month—to question, at least, my previously emphatically stated conclusions.

There had been a moment of silence between us, and these reflections were dominant with me, as six bells, ringing out musically, announced that midnight was but an hour distant. At that instant, while in time to the bell's strokes, there echoed in my brain the words: "Know then, that before the morning of the eighth day hence—" Cameron, lowering his cigar, turned to me with:

"Clyde, I wonder if you have forgotten what day this is!"

I don't know why, coming at just that particular juncture, the question should be more upsetting than if it had come at some other time of day, but I know it seemed so to me.

For a little space my tongue refused its office. There was a lump in my throat which demanded to be swallowed, and I made a pretence of coughing to hide my plight. At length I answered, a bit lamely:

"No, I haven't forgotten. It's Wednesday, the twenty-first of October."

He returned his cigar to his lips and smoked in silence for a full minute. Then, he said, quietly:

"It's seven days since that empty envelope came."

"Yes," I returned.

There was another slight pause and he went on:

"I have been thinking that possibly you were wrong about the significance of that empty envelope. Possibly those enigmatical persons intended that absence of a definite threat to imply the inconceivably terrible."

Now that he had started to talk about it, I wished that he had continued his silence. I could not understand how I had convinced him before, knowing all the while that I was without reason to support me. Certainly, now, pervaded as I was with that grim disquietude, it would be even more difficult to carry conviction with my words.

"Whatever they intended," I ventured, yielding a fraction of a point, "it seems to me that they'll have some difficulty in carrying it out. There are no portraits here to mutilate and no mirrors to smash. For the previous performances there must be some more or less simple explanation. Neither you nor I believe in the supernatural; therefore the things that happened at Cragholt were brought about by natural means, seemingly inexplicable as they were. Now no natural means can be brought to bear to perform any such legerdemain on this yacht. You know that. There's not a man here, except that poor old fisherman, that we don't know all and everything about. So, I say, no matter what they planned; this time they are outwitted." And even as I said it, I saw clearly before my vision these words: "Say not Heaven is high above! Heaven ascends and descends about our deeds, daily inspecting us wheresoever we are."

"Then you agree with me? You think something may have been planned?"

"I wouldn't pretend to interpret their symbolism," I answered evasively. "The empty envelope impressed me as synonymous with saying, 'Nothing more at present!' Even now I think that if they had meant to continue they would have said so. I'm almost sure they would."

I was quite sure, of course, but I dared not say so.

Cameron smoked on quietly for a while in a ruminative mood. Eventually he threw the end of his cigar over the rail, and leaned forward.

"I don't know," he said perplexedly. "I don't know."

This I hoped was to be the end of the matter, for tonight at least; but presently he began to talk of those first two letters, to conjecture, to wonder, to dissect phrases, to dig out subtleties of meaning from euphemistic expressions. And then I knew that he had every word memorized, just as I had.

Seven bells had struck and we were still talking. But now and then there were pauses in our converse—intervals of silence of varying length—during which I sat with my gaze stretching out over the black waters and my hearing strained for any unusual sound. More than once during the evening I thought I had detected far off the pounding note of a motor boat's exhaust, but had put the notion aside as too improbable for entertainment. Now, faintly, I seemed to hear it again; not so distant, but muffled.

I got up and stood close to the rail, and listened with ear bent. Then I determined to go to my cabin for a night glass which I had included among my traps. But at that moment the sound, which I had made sure of, ceased, and I stood a second or two longer, expecting it to resume.

Altogether it was not over a minute or two that I stood there. It seemed much less than that. Then I turned with a question for Cameron. I wondered whether he had heard the sound too.

"I say, Cam—" I began, and stopped, startled, with his name half uttered.

His chair was empty. He was not on deck. I ran to the saloon. He was not there. I flung open the door of his stateroom. He was not there, either. I had the yacht searched for him. He was not on the yacht.

CHAPTER IX.

A Craft Without Lights.

Composure is second nature with me. I claim no credit for it; it is a matter of temperament rather than cultivation. But now my temperament was all awry, and my composure fled me. I was excited. More than that, I was frantic, distracted, rattled. I wanted to do a dozen things at once; to get answers to a score of questions in a single moment. And the consequence may be imagined. For five—ten minutes, nothing was done whatever. Then the search-light was got into play, sweeping the waters on all sides, far and near; but with paltry result. Five or six miles astern we made out a power boat, similar to that which I had seen through the glass earlier in the day. To the eastward a steamer with two funnels was just coming into range. The white sails of a coasting schooner showed to westward. Trailing in our wake was our squalid salvage, the dory of the fisherman.

MacLeod, trained to coolness, retained his wits. Systematically he set to work. Likely and unlikely places aboard the yacht were looked into. Before I knew what he was about, we were going back over the way we had come with the search-light swinging in a circle and a half-dozen sharp-eyed seamen scanning every square foot of rolling wave.

"I can't understand it," I kept repeating aloud, with senseless iteration. "I can't understand it."

I was standing alone, well forward, leaning over the rail. Presently MacLeod laid a hand on my shoulder.

"We can't do anything more than we are doing, Mr. Clyde," he said in his matter-of-fact way. "For my part, I can't understand it, either; but since Mr. Cameron's not aboard, there's only one conclusion, and that is that he's overboard. And since there was no one interested in throwing him there, then it seems very clear that he must have jumped."

"Jumped!" I cried, in irritation. "My God, man! Don't I tell you that I was not three feet away from him, and only for a minute or two? How could he have jumped without my hearing him? How could he even have got out of his chair, without my hearing him?"

The captain shrugged his shoulders.

"There's no other explanation," he decided, conclusively.

"You mean he committed suicide?"

"Call it what you like, sir."

"But there was no reason for him to do such a thing," I objected.

"I understand he's been pretty ill, sir."

"He was ill, yes. But he was on the road to recovery." And then, with the realization that I was speaking of Cameron in the past tense, as though it were already settled that I should never see him alive again, a shiver of horror swept over me. I know MacLeod observed it, for he said:

"There's been a drop in the temperature, in the last half-hour. It'll be more comfortable in my cabin, sir, if you don't mind coming in, and talking the thing over a bit."

"Good Heavens, MacLeod," I exclaimed, turning on him with nervous savagery, "do you expect me to sit down and talk calmly at such a moment? I can't. It's all I can do to stand still here, for a minute at a time. I feel I must do something. It's torture to have one's hands tied this way."

"I think I know how you feel, sir. But walking the deck will do no good, and if you could calm yourself enough to talk it over quietly, we might get down to something that would guide us, so to speak."

"Guide us?" I repeated.

"Yes, sir. It's not impossible, you know, sir, that when he went overboard he was picked up."

The light from his cabin porthole illuminated us both, and now as he looked at me he must have seen my perplexity.

"You said yourself, sir," he explained, "that you thought you heard the exhaust of some sort o' craft not far away."

It was this reminder, I think, which brought back my wool-gathering wits and steadied me to a perception of the real importance of the captain's plea. Of one thing, at least, I was assured. Cameron was not a suicide. How he could have gone over the taffrail without my seeing or hearing him, I should never be able to understand. But gone he was, and it lay upon me to discover by whose assistance this marvelous disappearance was accomplished. And so it came about that, controlling my futile unrest, I was presently seated in MacLeod's swivel chair, while he, from a place on the side of his berth, fired pointed questions at me, which I either answered as best I could or returned in kind.

"Now maybe it's none of my business, Mr. Clyde, but in view of tonight's occurrence I think it's pertinent to know why there was such a thorough inspection of the Sibylla before we sailed, and such a lot of caution regarding the crew." That was the first of his volley, and for a moment it staggered me. I recognized, however, that this was not a time for quibbling, and as MacLeod had been for years a staunch soldier in Cameron's army of employees, I saw no harm in letting him know the truth.

"I'll tell you," I returned, frankly, "but it's not to go any further. In the past nine weeks Mr. Cameron has been receiving a series of threatening anonymous letters. The last one came a week ago today; and in it this was named as the date for the climax."

"Climax?" he repeated, questioningly.

"Yes. Today, the letter stated, Mr. Cameron would disappear."

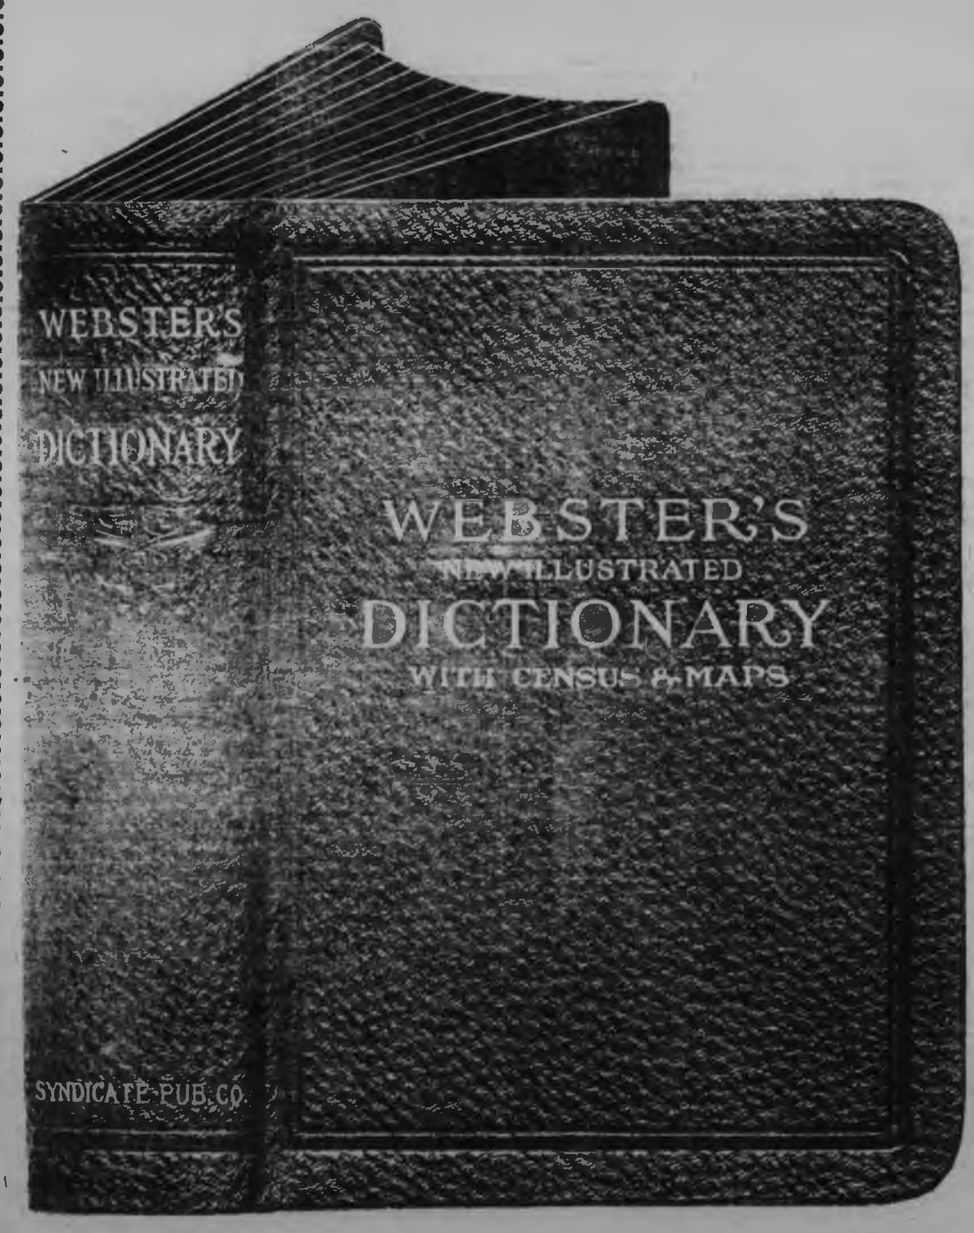
The calm, phlegmatic young captain did not start. He simply narrowed his eyes in thought.

"That's odd," he said, gravely, "damned odd." And then, after a second's consideration, he asked: "Was that—but of course it was—why he took this cruise?"

"No," I told him. "That was not his reason; though it was mine."

I did not mean to be enigmatic, but I suppose I was, for MacLeod showed plainly enough that he failed to understand.

"You see," I went on, in elucidation, "Mr. Cameron did not know about this last threat. He was ill when the letter came, and we kept it from him."



It was evident to me that the captain disapproved, but he held his peace.

"What were the previous threats?" he asked, presently.

"Nothing definite," I answered. "Simply that on certain fixed days the writers would demonstrate their power."

Vigorous Health Restored To Run-down Woman

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. Norman La Pierre, wife of a well known resident of Labeniene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow rich and red blood I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made up by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates and renews health and spirits like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

No Personal Liability. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 SHARES IN THE TREASURY

You Can Buy This Stock Today at 50 Cents Per Share

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L. 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from Claim No. 16353½, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.10 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton, and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 17 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353½, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $495.00, $416,00, $292.60 and $185.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

Lakefield Man on a Long Tramp.

Mr. Gordon Hill Graham junior master at the Grove School, Lakefield, started yesterday morning with his little dog "Barney," to walk to Brantford. He passed through the city yesterday at 10 a.m. garbed in a Norfolk jacket, top boots and a general air of "get-there." Mr. Graham is a son of Hon. Lawrence Graham who recently lived in Lakefield and who is now selling air ships in New York.

Lindsay Liquor Law Violator.

Lindsay Warder: The young man from Gooderham, whose liquor was seized by License Inspector Thornbury, appeared before His Worship Magistrate Jackson at this morning's court. It is possible that a fine will be imposed upon the defendant.

Keep Off the Grass.

Unless the people who are forming a practice of crossing Victoria Park by making unauthorized paths across the grass, cease this practice, the Horticultural Society will take the matter up and prosecution of the offenders will follow. The usual beautiful sward of that Park is being destroyed by people tramping across the grass, and those who have made a habit of it in the past, will do well to discontinue it in future.

NEW GOLD CAMP.

Interest Taken in Offering of Shares in Painkiller Lake Mine.

In view of the attention which is being paid to gold mining enterprises in the northern part of the province, considerable interest is being taken in the development of the Cartwright Gold Fields Limited property at Pain killer Lake. This gold field is located in Beatty Township, about 8 miles east from Matheson. It has been known for years that gold values were obtained, but it is only lately that anything like serious development has been under way.

The Cartwright Gold Fields property is the best known in the Painkiller district, and it is looming up as a producer of no mean merit. Assays of the ore taken from several of the big veins on the claims have revealed astonishing values, running as high as $5562 to the ton in gold. In order to provide funds for complete development to depth, a limited number of the shares of the company are being offered for sale at an attractive price.

LOCAL MAN MEETS WITH INSTANT DEATH

A sad blow came to Mr. J. A. Sharpe, 537 Homewood avenue, yesterday morning, when he received a wire conveying the awful intelligence that his son, Thomas, aged 22, had been killed at Hamilton on the previous night. The young man had written stating that he would be home for Easter. The deceased was well known here and was employed by the local Bell Telephone Co. from May 1st, 1911, until Jan. 5th, 1912, as a lineman. Later he left the Bell and joined the C.P.R. telegraph linemen.

His father left for Hamilton yesterday, where an inquest will be held.

A Hamilton despatch says that while stepping from one track to avoid an eastbound freight train, to another, Wm. Askins, aged 20, married, of Toronto, and Thomas Sharpe aged 22, single of Peterborough were struck by a westbound T. H. & B. freight engine, No. 52, on the main line of the T.H. & B., about 100 yards west of Garth street, about 9 o'clock last night and instantly killed.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments — a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

WILL MRS. W. F. HAMILTON GET ANY ALIMONY?

It is understood that Jean Hamilton, wife of W. F. Hamilton, the latter now in St. Joseph's Hospital with an attack of la grippe, is bringing an action for alimony against her husband. The couple who were married by Rev. Mr. Couch, of the George street church, and said marriage alleged not to have been registered for some time after, and a marriage celebrated for a second time after divorce proceedings on both sides, had occurred, ended in a separation. Recently the couple were evidently reconciled, as shown by their walking arm in arm on the streets of the city and as shown by more cogent proofs. Mr. G. N. Gordon is acting for Mrs. Hamilton in the case. Mr. Hamilton is said to have affirmed that his twice reunited bride left him of her own accord. Messrs. Hall, Medd and Davidson are acting for the defence. The Times, however, hears that proof of cohabitation between the parties has been made since the writ for alimony has been begun.

AN ELECTION WITHIN YEAR, OR PERHAPS THREE MONTHS

Constitutional Authority Gives Opinion That if Naval Bill is Put Through by Closure Senate Will Throw It Out and Government Will Be Forced to Pass Redistribution Bill and Go to People

Ottawa, March 23.—A constitutional authority who refuses to be quoted, but whose knowledge and experience cannot be doubted, and who had been in the fullest touch with the situation, including a perusal of Sir Wilfred Laurier's last manifesto, sized things up about as follows:

Unless a compromise is reached there is no chance of the Canadian Parliament passing the Borden proposal of $35,000,000 for three Dreadnoughts to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire.

The only way the bill can get through the house of commons will be by closure, and closure means a long fight over the rules and amendment. It will be a fight, as the Liberals will contend, for freedom of discussion. They will resist, so they say, to the point of physical encounter. If the bill is put through the commons under such conditions the Liberal majority in the Senate will throw it out on the ground that it was carried by closure, that it had not been a question in the late election, and that a redistribution of seats is due, and, therefore, they will only be following precedent by sending the Government to the electorate for final and authoritative settlement.

But this would not necessarily dissolve the house. The Government could say that they intended to reintroduce the bill the following session, and if they had closure they would force their other measures up to the Senate. But in the end it will be a general election within a year, perhaps three months.

But no naval vote will be passed by Parliament until after the people have spoken.

NO GENERAL ELECTION

Yesterday, in view of the scare heads in the Toronto press of Saturday and Sunday, a Times representative asked Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., "What is the probability of a general election in the near future?" Mr. Burnham replied, "Notwithstanding the lurid accounts in some of the Saturday and Sunday newspapers, about a possible election, there is no doubt but what such a thing is not even remotely contemplated by the Government, for it may be positively stated, on undoubted authority that no instructions have been issued that would indicate even the remotest possibility of such a contingency."

FRIEDMANN GOING BACK HOME TO COMPLETE SERUM TESTS

On His Return He Expects United States Government Medical Authorities Will Have Completed Tests

New York, March 23.—Dr. Friedmann will sail for Berlin three weeks hence to complete laboratory tests unfinished when he came to this country a month ago to demonstrate his treatment for tuberculosis, but will come back to America about two weeks later. This was announced to-day by his assistant, Dr. Maurice Sturm, who will accompany him.

Dr. Sturm said that upon their return the government medical authorities at Washington will have probably completed their tests of Dr Friedmann's vaccine and made their report. He added that Dr. Friedmann would remain in New York until he sailed, and probably hold clinics daily.

PROMINENT C.P.R. OFFICER BUYS VALUABLE HORSE

On Saturday morning Mr. T. Cavanagh received a letter, containing a good sized cheque from Mr. Donnelly, the Montreal horse buyer for services to be rendered to-day in shipping a valuable horse to one of the leading C.P.R. officials at Montreal. This horse in question was purchased for a long price, from Mr. S. H. O'Conner of Ennismore for the railway official's child. The animal will be driven to the city to-day from Ennismore and shipped by Mr. Cavanagh. Mr. Donnelly is the man who, some weeks ago reported in these columns, bought Mr. Geo. Graham's black cob for the same railway man for $675.

Mr. Cavanagh, a few days ago, shipped a carload of mixed horses, of high grade, to Mr. Louis Green, Toronto. "Ted" seems to be "it" in local horse dealers

U.S. SUFFRAGETTES DON'T LIKE WAYS OF ENGLISH

New York, March 23. The effectiveness of the American campaign for equal suffrage, as compared with the English method of obtaining the same end, was shown in bold contrast at suffrage headquarters here to-day.

"In America," said a prominent suffragette, speaking on English and American methods of furthering the cause, "there has been no militant tactics, n obrick throwing, no calumnies upon the authorities, and the cause of equal rights have progressed steadily, until to-day there is bright prospects of winning over the remainder of the states which still bar women from the polls."

In support of the contention that the quiet methods of campaigning in America were more effective than the militancy of England, a list of the suffrage outrages committed in the latter country was drawn up.

Halifax, N.S., March 23.—The special train conveying the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia arrived here about 5 o'clock and boarded the Empress of Britain almost immediately, the ship sailing very shortly afterwards, not permitting the cargo or anything else to detain her.

TORONTO PATIENTS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Toronto, March 23.—Toronto doctors are reticent as to the progress of those Toronto patients treated by Dr. Friedmann with his tuberculosis serum, but in a couple of cases at least it is said very satisfactory results have been achieved and the patients are being watched from day to day.

In one case, a child treated for tubercular knee, there has been a considerable decrease in the swelling of the joint, while another child treated for tubercular glands of the neck, which have discharged during the past years, is also improving. The discharge is said to be drying up, and the swelling being reduced.

It will be three or four weeks before the physicians who attended Dr. Friedmann's clinics will be able to give definite information about the "cure."

GERMAN MONOPOLY OF SMOKES AND DRINKS

Berlin, March 23.—The Berlin Government in order to cover the continually increasing expenditure on the army, is contemplating the establishment of government monopolies in the sale of cigarettes, matches and alcohol, according to The Lokal Anzeiger.

It was originally intended by the government to rely on other sources of revenue for this purpose, but opposition from several of the federated states was encountered.

CLOSURE GIVES OPPOSITION CLEAR-CUT APPEAL ISSUE

Contrary "Authoritative Statements" Scarcely Disturbs the Truce at Parliament Hill---No Criticism of Speaker Sproule Involved by Promised Discussion of House Rules

Ottawa, March 23.—The "authoritative statement" seems to have taken the place of the old-fashioned manifesto and the Prime Minister in this way crossed swords last week with the leader of the Opposition. It was not a serious encounter, scarcely disturbing the truce which has been in force since midnight of Saturday last.

Mr. Borden intimated that the Government would carry the naval bill even though a resort to closure should become necessary. Sir Wilfrid Laurier undeterred by this threat, says the Liberals will continue the fight.

Many believe that closure will give the Opposition a more clean-cut issue and one that will more directly appeal to the mass of the people. On the other hand history affords no record of closure being repealed after it had once been adopted. The mild Gladstone closure of 1882 was denounced by the Tories but subsequently the Balfour Government made it more drastic. To-day the Unionist party inveighs against the Asquith guillotine although they can still obstruct their control of the upper chamber. In the United States since the Democratic victory of 1910, the Speaker has been shorn of his once autocratic power, but the house of representatives will never return to the rules which threatened to bring on a condition of anarchy during the contested presidential election of 1876.

Speaker Sproule is Fair.

Mr. Speaker Sproule is an old and experienced parliamentarian. He has sat in the house for many years both as a Government supporter and as a member of the Opposition. He was as a private member insistent upon his rights and would be loth as speaker of the house to have any member on either side treated unfairly. The Liberal members, especially those long in the house, would probably prefer him to many other Government supporters. Indeed in the general discussion upon the rules of the house which they are anxious to have tave place at an early date, they will insist that no criticism of Speaker Sproule is involved.

AUSTRIA SENDS ULTIMATUM TO MONTENEGRIN GOVERNMENT

Foreign Ambassadors in London Recalled From Vacation and Meet in Conference---Grave Anxiety Felt

Vienna, March 23.—The Austro-Hungarian Government on Saturday addressed a strongly worded note to Montenegro, which was in the nature of an ultimatum.

The note reiterated even more sharply than before the demands made by the Austrian Minister at Cettinje on March 20, which were as follows:

First—The free exit from the fortress of Scutari of all non-combatants.

Second—Explanations of the death of a Catholic priest named Palic, who is said to have been slaughtered because he opposed the violent conversions of prisoners.

Third—Violent conversions to cease instantly.

Fourth—Full satisfaction to be given for the violence of Montenegrins and Servians at San Givoanni Di Medua on the Adriatic coast, against the crew of the Austrian merchant vessel Skodra.

With the view of hastening the solution of the question of Albania, the Austro-Hungarian Government has agreed that the Town of Jakoko shall be ceded to Servia on condition that the northern frontier of Albania be delimited in conformity with Austria's wishes.

R. W. MARKS CO. ARE DOING GREAT BUSINESS

On Saturday afternoon and evening, the Grand Opera House was crowded to capacity when the old time local favorites, the R. W. Mark's Stock Company with May Bell Marks in the leading part, presented charming plays. At the matinee, "Lena Rivers," a serio-comedy drama was presented with Geo. Marks in the leading comedy part. The play was well staged and the dialogue sparkling with repartee. The specialties which helped to pass away the time, between the acts, were all clever and of the latest kind. Miss May Bell Marks, as the heroine in both plays showed high histronic ability worthy of a Bernhardt or a Mary Anderson. To-day a special matinee will be presented at which "Dad's Sweetheart," will be presented at the evening show. Our readers should see May Bell Marks as "Cigarette," in Ouida's great play "Under Two Flags."

ALLIES MUST STARVE OUT ADRIANOPLE TO WIN OUT

Adrianople Garrison Making Heroic Defence, and as Long as Food Lasts It Will Hold Out

Adrianople, March 23. Shukri Pasha, the commander of this fortress, and his devoted troops are determined to continue the heroic defence they have now carried on for five months and all reports as to offers made by them to surrender may be dismissed as pure inventions.

Only starvation can force the capitulation of the beleaguered garrison. Food is still regularly distributed among the population by the military authorities and there are considerable supplies.

Perfect order prevails within the city, and the report emanating from Sofia, that Shukri Pasha has ordered the Greek and Armenian bishops here to be hanged because they had drawn attention to the alleged miseries of the population, is groundless. It has aroused much indignation here, and the two prelates themselves being among the most energetic of those protesting against the calumny They extol the courtesy of the commander-in-chief, praising his solicitude for the civil as well as for the military population of the city

The Bulgarian besiegers are making no progress, and their occasional assaults have been futile. The intermittent bombardment has not done any harm to the defending forts which remain intact.

Discord is said to prevail among the allied armies, and the Servians brought up to assist the Bulgarians in the siege remain idle in their lines not participating in any of the active operations.

LOVE MUST HANG IN TWO MONTHS FOR WIFE MURDER

Mr. Justice Lennox Charges Agaiust Prisoner, and Says Jury's Finding is Correct---Sentence Pronounced

Owen Sound, March 23.—"Henry Love, you have heard the verdict of the jury. Do you wish to say anything before the sentence of this court is passed upon you?"

Found guilty of murdering his wife, Hannah, in their home at Seylon, near Flesherton, on the night of Dec. 9th last, Henry Love stood in the prisoner's box here on Saturday morning and gazed steadily at Mr. Justice Lennox. To his left sat twelve fellow-men, who on Friday night declared that he had robbed his bosom companion of life. Love did not even open his mouth to speak. He seemed utterly unconcerned about the verdict.

"I am rather pleased," continued his lordship, after a long pause, "that you have decided to say nothing just now. It would come from you better after you have had time to realize the terrible situation in which you are now. We cannot lift the veil which enshrouds the event in your home on the evening of Dec 9, but I think the jury's finding is correct.

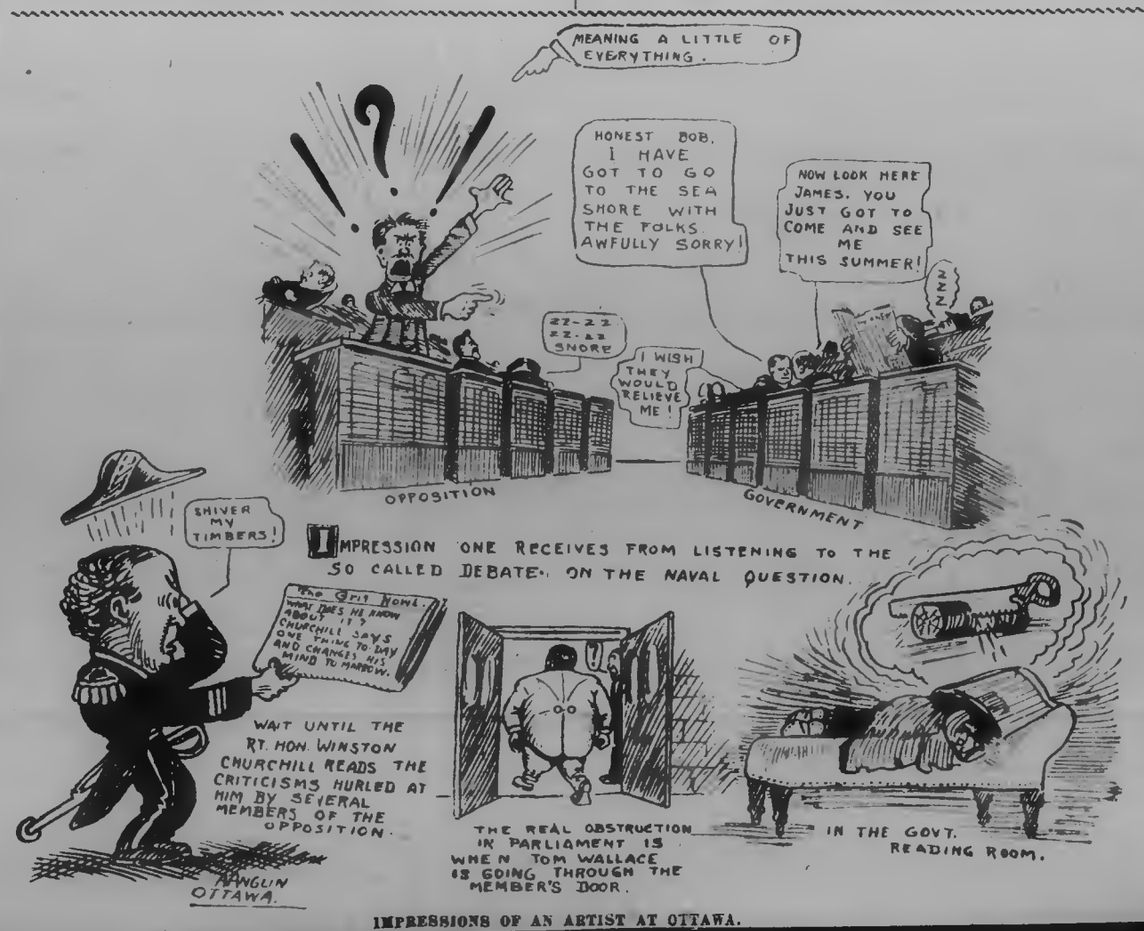
"The sentence of this court is that you be taken to the county jail, and there on May 27th next, be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

An Unbreakable Chain.

An unbroken chain of circumstantial evidence, strengthened and reinforced by outstanding facts, proved sufficient to send Love to the gallows for one of the most brutal crimes ever committed in Canada. Some of the facts in the case were not brought out by the Crown, but enough evidence was produced to show how cunning the murderer had been. The placing of the body under the house at a spot directly beneath Mrs. Love's bed was an ingenious move on the criminal's part. The detectives believed Love intended to burn down the house after murdering the poor woman and her death would appear to be due to the fire. He was deterred in this intention, however, according to the police, until neighbours were astir and it was too late. The defence never intended to call Love to the stand himself or to make a plea of insanity.

Judge Lennox charged against the prisoner. His Lordship pointed out the evidence in its true state and as a result there could be no doubt as to the man's guilt. Love had maintained a non-chalant manner all through the hearing and the most dreadful testimony did not shake his nerve. In fact the son and daughter both seemed very cool for the position in which their father and they themselves were placed.

ORIENTAL HOTEL HAS CHANGED OWNERSHIP



To-day an important change takes place in the ownership of Peterborough's leading hotel, the Oriental. After twenty years occupancy of this popular local home for both the travelling public and many local boarders, Mr. Geo. Graham retires. Mr. Graham, during a fifth of a century, has conducted a first-class and orderly hotel. The retiring proprietor is popular with a great majority of the commercial travellers who visit Peterborough. Mr. Graham's retirement from business is due to no failure or inability to pay 100 cents on the dollar to every creditor. The change is simply due to the present owners of the building desiring a change in personnel.

It is understood that the property is on the market and likely to be disposed of at an early date. In the meantime, the hotel will be conducted under a temporary manager so as to provide for the requirements of present permanent guests and for the travelling public. The Times is assured that no change will be made in the present staff of the hotel.

Great Attraction At The Royal

Famous Cox Family, Musical Comedy Company, is Coming

Manager Clayton of the Royal Theatre, is offering a special attraction for to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week that will undoubtedly crowd his theatre to the doors for every performance. He has secured the Famous Cox Family Musical Comedy Company, composed of eight clever people and introducing three complete changes of act. The Cox family are one of the strongest attractions of the kind on the road and their performance is one of exceptional merit. Their original playlet "The Italian Music Master" is clever and unique, and the harmony singing introduced is indeed a treat. No one who likes a clean comedy can afford to miss the Cox Family at the Royal. Their work has caused a sensation all around the circuit and Manager Clayton is to be congratulated upon securing such a superior offering for the house of feature attractions. It will be undoubtedly the best act that has ever been produced at the Royal. In view of the big crowds that will want to see and hear the Cox family, the management make the suggestion that as many ladies and children as possible should visit the threate in the afternoon. There will be two performances each afternoon and those who are able to do so should not miss the opportunity of hearing this great act in comfort. The Royal's splendid three-piece orchestra will provide music and there will be the usual fine programme of picture hits. The admission charges remain the same in spite of the extra attractions

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK what the above means—practically a small city in itself right on the edge of the Capital.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at

$275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN RACING RULES

The English Jockey Club has made some important alterations in the rules governing horse racing, some of the changes having been demanded for years past by members. The most important change was the repeal of the rule permitting four furlong races for the two-year-olds, this rule having been in force for nearly ten years, and arousing much criticism from various sources, owing to the supposed harm it has wrought in that class. By a vote of 22 to 7 the club upheld the adverse criticism, and, on the ground that such a short race for colts demanded training at the expense of future development, and was a lottery, the colt first off usually having all the chances, decided to prohibit all races under five furlongs for two-year-olds.

It was also decided, the stewards voting unanimously, that no horse three years old or over can race without a registered name, many errors having been made of late owing to the fact that owners entered horses designated only by a description of parentage.

SEES FUTURE FOR NORTH

The Minister of the Interior in connection with the proposed line of the Hudson Bay Railway from Le Pas to Port Nelson recommends that, in addition to the tract of land on the north west side of the Nelson River and Estuary already reserved from sale and settlement, one section of land comprising a block of 640 acres at each townsite point, and two sections comprising a block of 1,200 acres at each divisional and terminal point of the railway as finally located, be similarly reserved in order that they may be available for use for townsite, divisional, and terminal purposes.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Dr. Schlapp of Cornell announces that increase of insanity among women is caused by industrial abuses But can he prove the general connection case by case?

Germans may at least be glad that with an army on land and a navy at sea her proposed fleet of twenty-five Zeppelins will cover the last element available for war.

"The mills of the gods grind exceeding small!" 25 mills taxation as proposed for Peterborough property owners, will grind profits from local property "exceeding small."

The Globe says that a few days ago Louis Bible was haled before a local magistrate and fined for being drunk and disorderly. Louis appears to be one of the repised editions.

"What would the genial editor of this great family journal do first," asked a citizen yesterday, of The Times man, "if somebody should give him $1,000,000." Drop dead, of course.

New York is learning how a few extortionate commission dealers may affect the cost of living. For the protection of the system, the honest dealers should combine to suppress the unprincipled.

San Francisco Bulletin:—"Germany is said to have intimated to Great Britain a willingness to put a rational limit on naval competition. Such a step seemed inevitable unless these great powers were willing to land in an international poorhouse."

Even Canadians can now go to the movies and see the inauguration of President Wilson for 5 cents. The feature to delight some of them most will be the sight of the wicked Republicans packing up and moving out of the jobs they have held for so many years.

NAVAL STRATEGY OR LAURIER STRATEGY.

Canada's first large contribution to naval defence is a big Imperial issue and so regarded not only throughout Great Britain but in all foreign countries. We are making a direct and quick contribution to the naval defence of the Empire. We are following the advice of the admiralty. In so doing we are following the best principles of naval strategy. First—we strengthen the home fleet; second—we put our ships (for they will be ours) under one central control; third—we augment materially the quick striking force of our country. All this is following the best modern naval strategy as you will find in any recognized work such as that by the noted American writer Mahan. But to Laurier "strategy" means party advantage—not the success of the Empire but that of the Liberal Party—of the Liberal leaders and ex-ministers. For this he pretends that he would give two fleet units which would cost seventy millions, whist he votes against the three ships costing only half that amount. He pretends that there can be no Empire need or emergency unless the the war clouds are just ready to burst and the lightning has already flashed. He presends that we could build a fleet in Canada without any equipment for the purpose. He pretends we could man a fleet when we cannot find men in the whole of Canada willing to man the "Niobe" and the "Rainbow." He boasts about all he would do if he were in power Does the country want naval strategy or will it stand Laurier strategy

DAVID LIVINGSTONE.

The man whose centenary was recently observed here was born in a poor man's home in Scotland, but it fell to him to add one million square miles to the known surface of the globe and to stir the conscience of mankind by the disclosure of the atrocities of the African slave trade. Sir Harry Johnston, not by any means the most sympathetic of the writers who have discoursed upon Livingstone, calls him "the greatest and best man who ever explored Africa." It is equally true that he was one of the greatest and best of the explorers of all times and lands.

He travelled 29,000 miles among savage tribes, but the black men of the far interior of the mysterious and unknown continent never molested him. Within a year of his landing in South Africa he has learned the art of ruling the Africans: A genial address, a simple and fearless manner and transparent kindliness were the ingredients that made the spell. His medical knowledge helped, but justice and gentleness were his main reliance wherever he went. The giant cataract which he found in the Zambesi he named for his young Queen. Having uncovered many of the secrets of the country he crossed the continent from the Cape almost to the Congo, and again from the west coast to the eastern, he sailed for England in 1856 after an absence of fifteen years.

All England honored him. Men saw in him a most remarkable combination of astronomer, geographer, zoologist, botanist, mercantile man, doctor and missionary. Other long journeys claimed him.

COST OF U. S. DIVORCE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I saw in your paper, a few days ago that it costs over $1,000 to get a divorce in Canada. Will you kindly let me know what it costs, if you have a well proved case, to get a divorce in New York, Chicago or Reno?

T. L. M.

Reply—The exact cost of a divorce in the cities you mention, and in the States generally depends upon the nature of the case.—Ed.

Bronchitis Cured By Medicated Air

NO DRUGS TO TAKE — YOU SIMPLY BREATHE A HEALING BALSAMIC VAPOR

Every Breath Carries Healing Balsams to the Sick, Sore Places in the Nose and Throat.

Montreal this time gives splendid praise for the modern way of curing colds, catarrh and bronchitis.

Instead of taking sickening drugs into the stomach, or using an old-fashioned spray, the sensible man nowadays breathes the soothing vapors of Catarrhozone and gets well right away. This is exactly what Mr. Joseph Daouse did, and writing from his office at 57 St. Paul street, he says:—

"I suffered for years with the worst form of chronic bronchial throat and nasal catarrh. I tried all kinds of syrups, ointments, tablets and washes, but they proved ineffective. In fact I could get no relief. I read in the Montreal Witness of Catarrhozone and bought an outfit. In a few hours I got relief. The air passages of my nose were cleared out, and I was able to breathe freely. My throat was strengthened—my voice improved—and no longer gagged and coughed. The effect of Catarrhozone was wonderful. Now I am well—no bronchitis—no throat distress. I urge everyone with a weak throat, with a cough, a cold or a touch of catarrh to use Catarrhozone freely."

Get the Dollar outfit — lasts two months and is guaranteed. Smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. each, all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalom N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

QUAIL AS PUGILIST

A Bird That Tastes Success Always Ready to Fight Again

To put it mildly, it is never pleasant to have to regard any beautiful bird merely as an article of food, but I am afraid that humanitarians will not approve of another use to which quails are put in India.

At first sight the quail is a mild-looking little fellow. Look again. The strong beak is slightly curved, there is in the bird's eye an expression which spells battle to those who dare oppose him. In a word, the quail is a born fighter, and there is nothing he enjoys more than a "scrap." He is as fond of fighting as a game cock, and that is saying a good deal.

Bird fighting in India is extremely popular, as everyone who has lived there knows, and the native sports man discovered the quail's good qualities long ago. For about twopence he may take his pick of the birds, which in India, as in England, are kept in cages ready for table use, and he chooses a likely-looking cock and commences training promptly. His methods are primitive, but efficacious.

"Conditioning," of course, plays an important part in the preparation of the bird for his warlike career, and not only is he fed liberally on the best of grain, but also upon finely-chopped garlic, which is mixed with his other food. Nothing is left undone likely to add to the bird's well-being, and fanciers will be interested to learn that a daily dust bath is given and is much appreciated. All birds of this family, as well as our own poultry, enjoy this process of dry cleaning, and should be allowed it.

Having got the future prize-fighter both tame and in high condition his actual education comences. A favorite method is to keep the bird without food until real hungry, and then to prop up a looking-glass on the table put a little food in front of it, and place the famished bird on the table. He is used to feeding anywhere, and makes for the food at once, only to be disappointed, for just as he reaches it the food is covered with the hand.

This tantalising treatment is repeated, and always close in front of the glass, so that before long it dawns upon the bird—or is supposed to do so—that it is the rival that rushes so eagerly to met him, who is interfering with the enjoyment of his much-desired dinner. This irritates him considerably, and before long he makes pointed remarks to the bird in the looking-glass. This is just what the trainer wants, and after the bird has shown genuine signs of anger, the glass is removed and he is allowed to eat. It should be added that on no account is the quail in training allowed to touch the looking-glass, lest he should discover what an undesirable opponent it is.

In course of time a real bird is substituted for the reflection of a bird, and both being hungry, and both having been encouraged to behave like little savages, a battle takes place. This is merely a part of the training, for in course of time a bird that has tasted success is only too ready to fight up on every possible occasion.

Do You Realize What This Means to You, Mr. Business Man?

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 80 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—327,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

CANADIAN GIRL CYCLIST WON FIRST 6 DAY RACE

Now that six-day bicycle races are being boomed, not only in Canada and across the border, but also in Europe, it is interesting to note that the first six-day ride ever done on this continent was made by a Canadian girl—Louise Armaindo, of St. Anne, near Montreal. She rode a high wheel bicycle six days, twelve hours a day at the Guards Armory in St. Louis, Mo., and she rode 760 miles on a track 14 laps to the mile. That was the first time any bicycle rider on this side of the Atlantic had ridden 100 miles inside of 24 hours. On a later occasion Louise was one of the three starters in the first six-day and night race in the world. This was at Minneapolis. Louise was only to ride 1,000 miles during the week, but she finished her 1,000 miles on Friday night and got Tom Eck to pay her $2,000 more to ride until Saturday night and she was in the best physical condition of the three riders at the end of the race. She made over 1,300 miles in six days and nights on a high bicycle. Schock won the race, covering 1,421 miles, a world's record at that time.

SOME ROWING HISTORY

Amateur Sport Flourishes But Professionalism Almost Past

The Toronto Rowing Club, the oldest of existing clubs in the Queen City, was formed in 1865. Some five years later the New Dominion Rowing Club was formed. The New Dominion was later known as the Bayside Club. In 1872 the famous Argonaut Club was formed by members of the Toronto Rowing Club who felt that there was room for another aquatic institution.

These clubs held regattas every year, and, in addition, there was frequent trips to Brockville, Hamilton Ottawa, and Montreal.

About 1880 the Amateur Association of Oarsmen was formed, and the line drawn against professionals. A good deal of whitewashing had to be done by the registration committee to secure any members at all, so prevalent was the practice of competing for purses. In the first year of the new association, R. Tinning and J. Douglas were the double scull champions, Percy Galt's Argonaut crew were on top in the fours, and Jos. Lang won the single sculls, and set up a record for the mile and a half course on the Bay that stands to this day. In 1889 Joe Wright, the famous captain of the Argonaut Club, came to the front by stroking the fours to victory at Troy, New York. The following year his crew made a clean sweep of every event they entered. Argonaut crews have been doing that more or less regularly ever since.

Since then amateur rowing on Toronto Bay has held its own, but the professional game has declined. The introduction of eight-oared shells some six or seven years ago had a stimulating effect on the sport. The annual Canadian Henley Regattas at St. Catharines, the first of which was held in 1906, have helped to keep alive the interest of the public. Professional sculling, however, is almost dead. Apart from Durnan there are no professional scullers still active in America, of any note.

MOTHERS OF GREAT ME

They Are Frequently More Remarkable Than the Fathers

The mothers of men of genius have been frequently somewhat remarkable women, more remarkable than the fathers. Cæsar's mother was "a strict and stately lady of the old school uninfected by the cosmopolitan laxity of her day." Consequently, though the Cæsars were wealthy, their household was "simple and severe." Its greatest son "was always passionately devoted to his mother, who shared his house up to the time of her death," when he was forty-six years old "Her influence upon him was doubtless great and beneficial."

Cromwell's mother was "strong, homely, and keen" of face; "with a firm mouth and penetrating eyes, a womanly goodness and peacefulness of expression." Cromwell "thought more of her than of any other woman more than of his wife he studied her husband thirty-seven years, remaining throughout her life to her ninetieth year by her son's side. "was lodged by him in Whitehall Palace, and royally interred in the Abbey."

Napoleon attributed "his elevation to his mother's training, laying down the maxim that the future good or bad conduct of a child depends entirely on the mother." Mozart, Goethe, Scott, Leibnitz, Augustine, Gregory, and Francis d'Assisi all these had mothers of some note and fathers of less—Augustine's father was an "unprincipled scamp."

Martin Luther took after his mother, who, although she had a singular reputation for mildness, whipped him till the blood came for stealing a nut! Renan mentally was a true son of his Gascon mother—a small tradesman's daughter—although tinged by his father's excessive sensibility, and Emerson was two-thirds his mother, albeit from his father, who was a minister, he inherited more than a trace of eccentricity.

WRESTLING IN JAPAN

Tournaments Have Been Held Continuously For Over Two Thousand Years—Peculiar Rules

Perhaps the oldest athletic institution in the world is the Japanese Wrestling Association. Wrestling may be said to be the national sport of the Mikado's empire, and tourneys of the grapplers were held in that country 2,500 years ago. The arena of the Wrestling Association in Tokio is the scene of memorable contests twice every year, in June and January, and in the contests several hundred athletes usually take part. A code of rules as strict as these formulated by the Marquis of Queensberry for pugilism governs the contests, and there are about fifty different methods in use for stretching an opponent on the ground. The rules require that wrestlers be naked, except for a girdle, but this does not prevent women from attending the games. It is a difficult matter to get hold on a nude opponent and, this makes the combats all the more interesting. Great crowds always witness the tournaments, which begin at sunrise and continue until sunset. The wrestling ring is twelve feet in circumference, and is elevated three feet above the floor of the amphitheatre. Victory is not dependent upon getting a fall, under the Japanese rules, as if a wrestler's knee touches the ground or he permits himself to be wrestled outside of the ring he has lost the match. The wrestlers are professionals who are constantly in training which involves not only continual physical exercise, but also dieting and careful living, following a system that has been in vogue in Nippon for over 2,000 years. The wrestlers are divided into five grades and the laws of caste are rigidly observed. The top-notchers among the gladiators are known as the "rope men," and these are so superior that only fifteen have risen to the distinction in the last two centuries. The conduct of the matches appears peculiar to the Occidental spectator. Invariably the contestants begin by washing their mouths in a pail of water by the ringside. No Japanese can give a reason for this rite, but if any wrestler failed to observe it he would incur popular indignation. This ceremony over, the men squat at opposite sides of the ring, eyeing each other, until suddenly one or the other jumps at his opponent. Then the bout is on, and continues without interference until a victory has been scored.

SPIT-BALLERS IN DEMAND

American League Teams Particularly Favor the Moist Delivery

The spitball pitcher seems to be coming into his own once more, especially in the American League, where every club has one or more flingers who have the moist delivery. Buck O'Brien is Boston's most touted twirler. He uses a spitter. Chicago also uses the same delivery, more or less, mixing it with the famous knuckle-ball. Ed. Walsh, one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever known has a fast ball and a spitter. Sens, the Western League recruit, is another of the same brand.

Cy Morgan was of no account as a pitcher until he developed the spitter, while Lake keeps his job by working the same line of stuff.

Cleveland has a pair in Krapp and Steen, while New York has a quartette of spitters in Ford, the Yankee star twirler, Quinn, Fisher and McConnell.

There are not so many of the spitball pitchers in the National, but the few who do use the moist delivery are making good. Marty O'Toole, of the Pirates, is the most famous exponent; Hendricks of the same team, is another. Cincinnati has Frank Smith, formerly of the White Sox. The Cubs have two in Larry Cheney, Chance's only winning pitcher and Harry McIntyre. Tesreau, the Giant recruit depends upon this delivery almost entirely.

FRANKIE FLEMING

the Canadian featherweight, who is rapidly fighting his way toward the championship of his class in and around New York.

THORPE'S FINE TROPHIES

King of Sweden and Czar of Russia Reward the Great Indian

Two of the handsomest athletic trophies in the world are on exhibition in the Carlisle Indian School at Carlisle, Pa. They are the awards made to Jim Thorpe, the aboriginie, winner of the pentathlon and decathlon in the Olympic games. He is now stamped the champion all-around athlete of the world.

The prizes are a massive bronze bust of heroic size, in the likeness of King Gustav V. of Sweden, and the gift of that monarch to Thorpe, as a personal mark of esteem, and a silver replica of a Norse viking ship, presented to the Indian by the Czar of Russia.

The bust is 4½ feet high and 22 inches square at the base, and the ship is 2 feet long, 18 inches high and weighs 30 pounds. The trophies will be held by Thorpe for four years, and will be up for competition again at the Berlin Olympic, 1916.

Goulding, Junior

George Beverley Olympic Goulding is the proud name which has been attached to the infant son of the champion walker of the world, George Goulding. The name "Olympic" was given the baby in commemoration of his father's great feat in winning the world's championship at walking at the Olympic games.

THE SUPERIOR TURK

Marshal von der Goltz, who was responsible for the reorganization of the Turkish army under Abdul Hamid gives this reason for its high fighting quality—that every Turk feels himself to be a member of a ruling race, immeasurably superior to the Christian nationalities about him. This feeling of intense pride sustains him in battle. He comes of a hardy peasant stock inured to privation and open-air life. He is usually familiar with the use of arms from childhood. All that he needs to assimilate when he joins the ranks is the more mechanical part of discipline.

Gunner Samuel Parsons, aged eighty-eight, recently celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of his appointment as the King's Gunner at Windsor Castle. He lives in the Round Tower, his chief duty being to hoist the flag over the castle.

He is still on the active list of the Army, and is probably the oldest soldier in England. He joined the Royal Regiment of Artillery in 1825, and went through the Crimean war. He remembers going over the battlefield after the charge of Balaclava.

After returning from the war he went to Windsor Castle as Royal Gunner.

COLLEGE BOY PITCHER

Speedy Youngster Picked up by Horace Fogel's Phillies

Equipped with that asset which has made baseball's greatest pitchers—bullet-like speed—John King, a student of Sacred Heart College, Denver, has joined the Philadelphia Nationals.

King is a boy wonder, a pitcher extraordinary. He is an artist of the Amos Rusie, Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Joe Wood type. He began playing ball three years ago, when he went to college. Prior to that time his acquaintance with the game consisted of "playing catch" on the corner lots of his home, Alliance, Neb. He was 17 when he went to Sacred Heart college. His physique attracted the baseball coach who tried him out as an outfielder in the second team. Within two weeks he was pitching for the varsity. He had nothing but speed and control, but it was sufficient.

JOHN KING

a speedy pitcher signed by the Philadelphia Nationals. Although but 19 years old he is said to be a marvel.

Last year some minor league clubs and one major organization made overtures to the youngster, whose marvelous speed had attracted attention. This summer scouts for Detroit, the Athletics of the American league and the Philadelphia Nationals recommended him. All three clubs offered him contracts, and he accepted that of the old league's representative.

King is a six-footer and weighs 170. He is a fast track man and a splendid football player. Although only 19, no boy ever entered baseball with brighter prospects, and he is one of the few to go straight from school to the majors.

When King's uncanny speed and splendid control were unearthed, he was coached to develop a curve ball. Of his own accord he added to his repertoire a sizzling cross fire that has baffled every amateur and semi-professional he has faced. In two years he has stocked up with a variety of curves, a slow ball and a spitter, all of which he is said to control wonderfully and to mix with his "smoke" ball in a fashion that stamps him a pitcher with brain as well as a strong arm.

King has been a strike-out pitcher. His poorest performance was nine men in one game. This year he has averaged 15 per game. His best is 20. Contrary to precedent he is a good hitter, his average in school being about .300.

When Horace Fogel sent a contract to King it was necessary for the pitcher's father to sign for him, and it was only after long argument that King, sr., agreed to permit his boy to become a professional player.

CY BARGER

former Brooklyn pitcher, now with the Newark International League team.

A GOLF CHAMPION

Ray an All-round Athlete But he Does Love His Pipe

Mr Edward Ray, the new English golf champion, is known as "the big man with the pipe." He is never seen playing without a big briar pipe between his teeth, and it is said that the deprivation of his pipe would be sufficient to put him clean off his game.

Like last year's champion, Mr. Harry Vardon, the new champion, hails from Jersey. He is one of the tallest men playing the game, being six feet in height, and he combines breadth with length. Mr. Ray is now thirty-four years of age, and has been playing golf half his life. He is noted for his powerful driving and easy style. Ray is quite an all-round sportsman, and in addition to his facility at golf, is capable of giving a good account of himself at boxing, football and cricket.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, tells Clyde is in love finds the head of Cameron's portrait [illegible] has been used as a target by someone in secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a [illegible] Philetus Mac[illegible] planning, but borrowed a rifle from [illegible] gamekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an appointment to call on Cameron and is equally mystified to find Cameron pretends to [illegible] obligation, alleged infractions of [illegible] laws and speaks of finding the [illegible] of an opium pipe under the fireplace. Cameron's portrait was found [illegible] house boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

"And did they?"

"Most marvelously."

Again MacLeod was silent for a space.

"Under the circumstances, Mr. Clyde, don't you think it would have been better if you'd told me about this?"

"Mr. Cameron was very anxious that no one should know."

The captain compassed his right knee with his locked hands.

"All the same," he said, "he'd never have been spirited off this yacht if I'd a' known what was in the wind."

This statement annoyed me, and I resented it.

"What could you have done?" I asked. "I was with him almost continuously."

There came a strange, half-meditative, half-bold look in the man's eyes, and I was wondering what it portended, when, quite ignoring my question, he began speaking:

"You see there oughtn't to be any misunderstanding between you and me, sir. This is too serious a business to be bungled because I am only captain of this yacht and you are the owner's friend. So, if I speak plainly, sir, you'll understand why, and not think me disrespectful."

I smiled to reassure him, still puzzled, and added:

"Go straight ahead, captain. You are perfectly right."

"Well," he began, "I'll tell you, Mr. Clyde. Your story, as you told it to me, has some weak points in it. You say, for instance, that you were with Mr. Cameron almost continuously. Now I'm not mentioning the little while you were in here, early in the evening, but during the last quarter of an hour before you gave the alarm, you weren't with him, either."

I stared at the speaker for an instant in absolute dumb amaze.

"I don't know why you say that," I said, at length, more hurt than angered. "I told you that from the moment I last spoke to him, seated beside him there on the after-deck, until I turned from the rail and found him gone, not more than two minutes elapsed. And that was God's truth."

"You said you were listening for what you thought sounded like a motor boat, didn't you?"

"I did."

"And you were leaning over the taffrail, looking for it, weren't you?"

"I was."

"But you didn't see it?"

"No, I didn't see it; and I couldn't hear it after the first few seconds."

The captain had fixed a gaze on me that seemed aimed to penetrate to my soul's fiber. After my answer he was silent a moment. Then he said:

"Where were you, Mr. Clyde, when that boat—motor, tug, or whatever she was—crossed within ten feet of the dory we are towing?"

Had he struck me in the face I could not have been more dumfounded.

"What do you mean?" were the only words that came to me.

"I mean that the craft you have been talking about came up and went astern of us, ten or twelve minutes before you gave the alarm that Mr. Cameron had vanished under your eyes. I was on the bridge and saw it myself—just a black shape, without lights, and her exhaust muffled, just as you say. You tell me that you and Mr. Cameron had been sitting there for three hours, at least; that you heard seven bells strike; that it was not more than fifteen or twenty minutes after this that you got up and went to the rail, and that you only stood there two minutes."

"I told you all of that, and every word is the truth," I insisted, vehemently.

"And yet," he retorted accusingly, "and yet—eight bells had struck before you gave the alarm."

I had not thought of the time. In my panic it had not occurred to me, of course to ascertain the hour and minute. But Captain MacLeod knew. At sea they work by clock. At eight bells the watch had changed.

"My dear fellow," I exclaimed rising, "you certainly cannot for a moment suspect me of complicity."

He stood up, too; imperturbable.

"I just want those things explained, that's all," was his reply.

"And I can't explain them," I told him, candidly. "You say you saw the boat. I didn't. You say it was after midnight when I came to you. It may have been. I don't know. It may have been nearer twelve, when I went to the rail. My impression is that it was not. I'll admit it is mysterious. The whole awful thing is mysterious."

My candor seemed to relieve him.

"Well, Mr. Clyde," he said, with equal sincerity, "maybe I was outspoken, but I wanted to know what you'd say to the points that were puzzling me."

"You did perfectly right," I told him. "As you have said, there must be no secrets between us." And then, as I resumed my seat, I asked: "What about the fisherman? He hasn't evaded his guard, has he?"

MacLeod sat down again too.

"He's in where I put him, now," he answered with a shade of reluctance, "but—I'm not sure; it's almost as mysterious as the other—but I could have sworn I saw him come up that for'ard hatchway and go sneaking aft while I was on the bridge."

"When was that?" I pressed, eagerly.

"About a quarter of twelve."

"What did you do?"

"Nothing, just then. I waited. And while I was waiting I saw that black, spooky craft come out of the dark, and go skimming astern of us. A little after eight bells I came down from the bridge—I stopped there for just a minute to have a word with Brandon when he came up—and then I went myself to look after Johnson and the man I'd set to watch him. The fisherman was in a bunk sound asleep, and the man swore he had been lying there snoring, for the past two hours. 'Who was it came up the ladder twenty minutes ago?' I asked. He looked at me as if he thought I was gone suddenly loony. 'Before the watch changed?' he asked. I nodded. 'Not a soul came or went,' he said, 'since I been here.'"

"And the boat without lights?" I questioned. "Did you inquire about her? Who else saw her?"

"I asked the lookouts; but—well, no, sir—and that's very strange to me—neither of them saw her. I gave them both a rating. If they weren't asleep I don't see how they could have missed her."

The thing was growing more and more baffling. MacLeod was the last man to be accused of imaginative fancies. He was thoroughly in earnest in what he had told me; and yet for neither of his statements had he the smallest corroboration. For my own part I was sure that, at the time he mentioned, no vessel of any description had passed anywhere near us.

"What did you make the craft out to be?"

"Well, sir, I couldn't say exactly. She was in sight only a minute, coming in range of our own lights. She looked more like a tug than anything else; but she had more speed than any tug I ever saw. She hadn't the lines of a yacht."

"She wasn't a pilot boat?"

"Oh, no, sir. New York pilots don't cruise this far east, and the Boston pilots wouldn't be so far away from home either."

I offered the captain a cigar, which he declined, filling his pipe in preference. When I lighted a cigar myself, I asked:

"I suppose you have some theory, MacLeod. You don't seriously think it was suicide?"

As usual he was slow to answer. After a thoughtful second, he said:

"I'd be sorry to think that, Mr. Clyde. Taking into consideration what you told me about the threat, and connecting that boat with it, it looks—" and then he paused, thoughtful again. "It's not in possibility," he went on, after a second, "that they could have plucked him off with a line. But if that fellow I saw going aft—Oh, Lord, no, sir! It's past me to see a way out. All the same, we are keeping that craft in sight, and if we can only get thirty knots out of the Sibylla again, we'll find out what she is and what her business is, before morning."

CHAPTER X.

A Woman of Intuition.

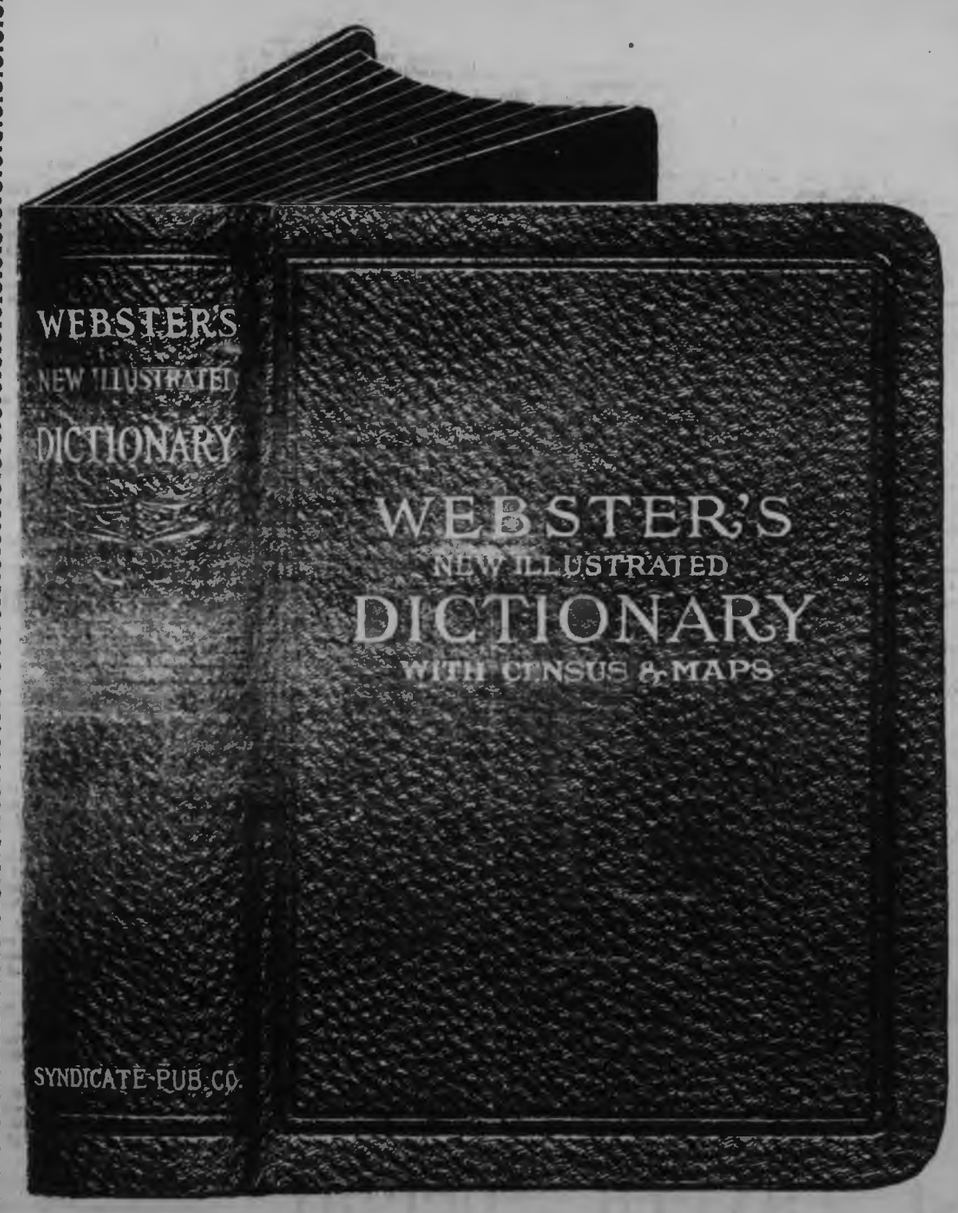
Ill tidings, always a heavy burden, never weighed more heavily on any one than on me that dismal, rainy Sunday morning, on which I stepped from the Sibylla's launch to the stone water steps of Cragholt. For two days we had searched the bays and inlets from Provincetown to Plymouth and from Siasconset to Providence; questioning at every pier and landing stage; making inquiry in every town and hamlet; but without a thimbleful of profit for our pains. As that black craft, with dimmed lights and muffled engines, had eluded our pursuit on the night of Cameron's disappearance, so for forty-eight hours succeeding she had baffled our quest. No one knew her; no one had seen her.

As for that shaken, frayed, pallid fisherman, Peter Johnson, he appeared below, rather than above, suspicion. If my knowledge of men went for anything he was too inferior both mentally and physically to be a participant in any such plot as was here involved. He seemed to me woefully weak and wasted, and with as little brains as sinew. So, with enough money for a new mast and sail, we had put him and his dory ashore at our first landing, and had forthwith forgotten him.

MacLeod had been inclined to continue the search, but I argued that any further efforts in that direction would be only a waste of time. The craft we were looking for might have come from any one of a thousand places and returned to any one of a thousand more. Some more effective, general and far-reaching steps must be taken, I held, and taken quickly. Indeed I felt now that to keep secret longer the conspiracy, as indicated in those mystic letters, would be little short of criminal. The aid of the police and the press must be invoked at once, and nothing left undone to trace the crime to its source.

But my first and most onerous task was to acquaint Evelyn Grayson with the facts as I knew them. How I shrank from that duty is beyond anything I can put into words. I know it would have been far easier for me to have carried her definite news of her uncle's death. What I had to tell was horrible in its stark obscurity. And yet, if I could have foreseen just what was to follow, I might have spared myself a goodly share of distress.

I imagined I knew Evelyn Grayson before this. I thought I had sounded the profundities of her fortitude and courage on the night that I spread before her and read with her that third and last letter. But my fancy did her an injustice. She was even more of a woman than I dreamed.



Recently I chanced upon these lines by Thomas Dunn English, which must have been inspired by such a one as she:

So much is clear,
Though little dangers they may fear,
When greater perils men environ,
Then women show a front of iron;
And, gentle in their manner, they
Do bold things in a quiet way.

Evelyn Grayson did a bold thing in a quiet way that morning. I have not yet forgotten how marble white she was, and yet how bravely she came, with springing step and lifted chin and fearless eyes. I had waited her coming in the music room, with its score of reminders of happy evenings in which he had participated. The chair he usually chose, in the corner, near the great bow window against which the east wind was now driving the rain in gusty splashes, took on pathos which moved me to weakness. The Baudelaire lyric, spread open-paged upon the music rack of the piano, stirred memories scarcely less harrowing. A photograph, an ash tray, a paper knife, all commonplace objects of themselves, but so linked to him by association, became, suddenly, instruments of emotional torture.

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

If Troubled With Head-Fullness, Ringing Noises, Specks Before the Eyes, the Stomach is at Fault.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy, and healthy, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Work on Lindsay Armories.

Lindsay Post: Contractor James Bogue, of Peterborough, was in town to-day. In conversation with the Post he stated that work on the armory would commence as soon as the frost was out of the ground. He has had a gang of men employed building a cement wall along the Rideau Canal at Smith's Falls, and would bring his experienced men to Lindsay to work on the armory. He would employ all the local labor he could, and would be able to personally oversee the construction work.

Mr. Bogue in Narrow Escape.

Mr. James Bogue, the local contractor, drove to Norwood on Good Friday during the terrible wind storm that created such havoc throughout this section of Ontario. When about two miles from Norwood, a rig containing a load of hay was blown over. The driver, previously seated on top of the hay, when the latter was upset, was flung into a ditch full of water and stunned. The horses drawing the overturned load ran away and, at full gallop only missed the rig in which Mr. Bogue was seated by a hairsbreadth.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

No Personal Liability. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 SHARES IN THE TREASURY

You Can Buy This Stock Today at 50 Cents Per Share

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from Claim No. 16353½, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.40 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake, have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton, and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 17 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353½, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $495.00, $416.00, $292.00 and $185.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week.

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

Vein is improving. We are making trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt to-day for them to treat, so that we can see how it runs. It shows free gold in every piece of quartz, and pans excellent. Have shipped you fifty pounds by express to-day.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

GOOD RUNNING PROMISED

The Finn Kohelmainen, who won the 5,000 and 10,000 metres races at the Olympic games, and who showed a lot of champion flyers the way home in a 3,000 metre team race, and the Frenchman, Bouin, are to turn pro. shortly and will no doubt be seen on Canadian tracks in competition with Longboat, Shrubb and Wood. Kohelmainen beat Bouin by a yard in one of the Olympic races, and Bouin has been beaten by Ted Wood, who in turn has been beaten by Tom Longboat. Figuring it out that way there will be some tall running when Bouin, Kohelmainen, Wood, Longboat, Shrubb, and Queal meet at any distance from five to fifteen miles.

Artillery Under Fire

A sergeant and squad of the 13th Battery Royal Field Artillery had a narrow escape during practice firing with heavy guns on the Okehampton ranges.

While the party, which had just left the targets, was proceeding to cover behind the adjoining hills another battery began firing 60 pound shells. The first shell dropped within ten yards of the little party, but beyond frightening the horses and startling the men did no damage.

Western Middle States Swept by a Tornado, Horrible Scenes

CITIES OF OMAHA AND COUNCIL BLUFFS ARE DEVASTATED, UNKNOWN NUMBER LOST LIVES

Terrible Cyclone Cut a Swath Eight Miles Long. Soldiers and Special Trains Are Rushed to the Devastated Districts

Chicago, March 25.—The Western Union Telegraph Company has been advised by its Omaha office that the damage from the tornado will amount to more than $12,000,000 and that more than 100 lives were lost.

Omaha, Neb., March 25.—Omaha and vicinity were swept by two distinct wind storms late yesterday afternoon, both of cyclonic intensity, which spread death and destruction in their wakes. Fire which broke out in many of the wrecked buildings, added to the horrors.

At 8 o'clock this morning the best available figures placed the number of dead between 100 and 200, with not less than 100 more seriously injured and probably 300 more or less seriously hurt.

All fires have been put out. During the night '58 fire alarms were turned in.

Hundreds Perished

Chicago, March 25.—Omaha, chief city of Nebraska, storm-wrecked and perhaps burning, was so effectually cut off from the rest of the world this forenoon that only meagre estimates of the death list and damage could be obtained. Brief despatches early this morning forced through by devious routes, indicated that several hundred persons had perished and hundreds of others were injured. Special trains and troops are being rushed to the scene, and the telegraph companies are making every effort to restore communication. Early last evening an equinoctial gale of varying intensity, began sweeping through the Missouri Valley and Middle West, leaving ruin in its path. At least six States sustained heavy damage. Terre Haute, Ind., reports a death list there and environs which may reach 50. Towns in Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri were shaken.

Path Eight Miles Long

Wire communication with Omaha was broken shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, and since that time what few dispatches crept forth came over a single railroad telegraph wire which remained intact. That the city and suburbs sustained great damage seemed certain. One of the latest despatches received via Lincoln, described the path of the tornado as being "eight miles long and from four to six blocks wide." The U.S. troops from Fort Omaha were immediately called out, it was said, and the stricken zone put under martial law.

The National Red Cross has volunteered its services for the injured and Governor Morehead of Nebraska, left for Lincoln early to-day personally to assist in the relief work. railroad bridges are down, however, and train schedules demoralized. Hysterical passengers arriving at Lincoln from Omaha were unable to give a connected account of the disaster except to say that the residential portion of the city suffered most.

NAVY BILL MUST PASS

Government Will Force Bill Through the House

IN SPITE OF OPPOSITION

King's Government Must Be Carried On Regardless of Obstructionists —Warm Time Expected in Ottawa This Week.

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, March 25.—When Parliament assembles this afternoon, one of two things will happen: Liberal obstruction must cease or the closure will be introduced. Notwithstanding the violent efforts of the Liberals in the House of Commons to block the naval bill, the Government is determined that it shall be put through as speedily as possible. Direct notice has been served on Laurier and his followers by Premier Borden that the King's Government must be carried on, and public business transacted. And the Government of Canada is taking steps to see that the wheels of progress are no longer stayed by a band of irresponsibles in Parliament who are aided and abetted by a group of ex-cabinet ministers, rejected by the people in September, 1911.

The Borden Government has a duty to perform, and that is to govern. That it has no intention of giving way to the opposition is sure and certain. It will go about its task quietly, and with the confidence that the people of Canada are behind it in its endeavor to give honest sane administration.

The fight of Laurier and his party against British connection, the disgraceful conduct of leading members of the party is defying the authority of the Speaker in Parliament and making its proceedings a farce, have aroused the people of Canada to a high pitch of resentment. The people of this country are British to the core. Sir Wilfrid found that out in the reciprocity struggle. He will again be told in no halting manner when the time comes.

Evading the Truth.

Nothing can equal the ingenuity of certain Liberal papers in the manufacture of news. A favorite topic is the alleged clash between the "Borden and Rogers" factions. It is immaterial to them that there are no such factions. They pretend that Mr. Borden really desires to break

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does nor hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

WHAT IS THE HIDDEN MOTIVE?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I notice with surprise in the Examiner of last evening that the Mayor is quoted as saying that if the city's bill passes Legislature in its present form the Peterborough Light and Power Company would be deprived of their franchise, which otherwise would have 27 years to run. Well, I am a power consumer, and voted for the Hydro-Electric by-law; but I did not dream that the city would seek legislation to annul a franchise agreed upon in good faith by both parties concerned when the franchise was granted. To me it seems that there is a hidden motive behind the Council's action: to eliminate competition for fear of the results to Hydro-Electric. I have no use for monopolies—municipal or otherwise. Competition gives a healthy tone to a city and assures the best service at minimum prices; monopoly places the consumer at the mercy of the powers-that-be. I can't see why the city does not accept the Seymour Power Co's proposal to sell the Otonabee Power Co's generating and distributing plants. This would give us municipal ownership of a desirable light and power service, and surely a municipal plant need not fear competition. This city is growing and needs access to all its available power for present and prospective use. Put the Peterborough Light and Power Co. out of business and we lose the use of a large amount of power which will be called upon if Peterborough is to grow. We should also be deprived of connection with the lower Trent River power plants in cases of emergency. For my part, I hope to see the Seymour Power Co's proposition accepted, and both Hydro-Electric and the Peterborough Light and Power Co. operating in Peterborough. This would give us plenty of power, the best possible services, and at prices regulated by healthy competition.

U Power Consumer.

BORDEN OR LAURIER.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—That the readers of The Times may judge between the two men, as to their patriotism and sincerity, I would ask you to publish the following:

Laurier at Boston

The following are extracts from Sir Wilfrid's speech at Boston on two different occasions:

"This dependence will not always last. Even now Canada and England have many different interests, and the day will come necessarily when they will have to part."

"I hold out to my fellow countrymen the idea of independence; but whenever the day comes it must come by consent of both countries, and we shall continue to keep the good feeling and the good will of the motherland. If we are true to our record, we will exhibit to the world the unique, the unprecedented example of a nation achieving its independence by slow degrees, and as naturally as the severing of the ripe fruit from the parent tree."

Borden's Statement.

"The tie which binds Canada to the motherland is stronger to-day than ever it was before, and, Please God, it will never be broken."

WORKMENS' COMPENSATION ACT DISCUSSED

Yesterday morning the Workmen's Compensation Bill was considered in the Bank of Montreal Chambers by the Manufacturers' Association of Peterborough. Mr. A. E. Coulthard acted as chairman, and Mr. W. C. Ackerman as secretary. Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., took part in the discussion. In his remarks Mr. Peck intimated that whatever the final draft of the bill would be, it would be adopted as a Government measure.

The general trend of the discussion among the members of the Association, was to criticise some features of the bill as proposed; and the necessity was insisted upon of watching the progress of the measure in the interest of the protection of the employers of labour.

Mr. W. H. Denham and Mr. Adam Hall, were commissioned to select a committee to act on the matter in question in co-operation with the Manufacturers' Association of Ontario.

CURTAIN FALLS ON OLD HOTEL MANAGEMENT

Not to trample on a man when he's temporarily down, it may be of interest to note that Mr. Geo. Graham, the retiring proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, not only observed the license law in its entirety until he gave up possession at 12.30 yesterday, but maintained the observances of that caravansery till the last as though he had a ten year lease ahead.

At 12.20, Mr. Graham asked all the old customers, then present in the hotel, to enter the bar and partake of a final cigar or what they chose. As the hands of the clock marked 12.30, Mr. Goodwill acting for the Dickson Co., and Mr. Dickson Davidson, present owner of the license entered that portion of the hotel containing an altar of Bacchus. Mr. Graham at once told the bartenders to take the cash from the registers and hand the premises over to the new occupants.

CUNARD CO. REALIZES THE GROWING NEED OF CANADA

Says Cunard Officials at Launching of New Atlantic Liner The Andania—A Handsome Vessel

London, March 25.—The first of the two liners which have been commissioned by the Cunard Company for the Canadian passenger service this summer was launched Saturday at Greenock. The Andanian is a handsome vessel of 13,000 tons, with accommodation for over two thousand second and third-class passengers. There is no first. The comfort of passengers has been specially studied in designing the staterooms. There is an unusual number of two-birth room

The ship is fitted with Marconi wireless apparatus, submarine signaling, bilge keels, and watertight doors. Speaking at the luncheon which followed, Mr. M. H. Maxwell, a Cunard official, indicated that the Cunard Company were still on the move, and intended to keep their place in the the Canadian trade realizing the shipping world. They had gone into growing needs of the country, and the very large number of people to be carried there now. The vessel is expected to make her maiden voyage about May 1.

PRESIDENT WILSON FINDS HE CANNOT GET AMBASSADORS

The English and Mexican Posts are Considered the Most Important Just Now

Washington, D. C. March 25.—President Wilson to-night reluctantly assented to the expressed determination of Chairman McCombs of the National Democratic Committee to decline the proffered French ambassadorship.

Secretary of State Bryan is due back in Washington from his Western trip on Wednesday. The President is expected to be ready to take up with him the appointment of ambassadors to England, Mexico, Japan, Russia, and a minister of China.

The London and Mexican embassies have been looked upon as those which should have filled first because of the Panama free tolls question with Great Britain and the troubled condition of Mexico. The announcement policy of the Administration towards China has brought the question of appointment of an ambassador to Tokio and a minister to China to the fore. The unsettled Russian passport question has made the selection of a representative at St. Petersburg difficult.

Fore none of these posts, except that of Mexico, apparently has the Administration been able to decide upon a man and have its invitation accepted.

It is known here that George Guthrie, former mayor of Pittsburg, meets with President's approval for the Mexican ambassador.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, offered the embassy at London, has decided not to accept according to information here, although his answer probably will not be made public for the present.

GULF FLEET HELD UP

Halifax, N.S., March 25.—J. Farquhar & Company has received a wireless message from Capt. Farquhar of the sailing steamer Seal to the effect that the Gull Fleet has made very slow progress during the week. They were only able to steam through ten miles of ice which is this year exceptionally heavy.

The seals at the present time are ten miles from the steamer.

TORNADO COMING EAST

Washington, March 25.—Following closely the two tornadoes which swept death and destruction through the City of Omaha and the middle west, another storm now developing west of the Rocky Mountains is predicted to pass over the east Tuesday night or Wednesday.

The weather bureau has ordered up storm warnings from Hatteras to Eastport on the Atlantic and the cold wave warnings in the west lake region, the middle and upper Mississippi Valley. No decided fall in temperature is predicted for the east until after the passage of the new western storm. Showers are predicted to fill in the time until the storm arrives.

MANY DAYS ADRIFT.

CAPTAIN LAURIER—"Why doesn't Borden heave to and give us a tow to the country?"

LIBERAL PARTY FEARS THE BIG GRAFT REVELATIONS

They Would Force a General Election Rather Than Face the Probing of Contracts Which They Let---- Method in Their Madness

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, March 24.—There is method in the madness of the Liberal Opposition in seeking to drive the Government to the country this year. There is a man named Millar now in gaol because he refuses to tell to whom he in four years paid $41,000 to get $117,000 of Government business. Messrs. Pugsley and Carvell did their best to prevent his going to gaol, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier agreed with the Government that there was no other course open but to commit him for contempt. Since then, apparently, Sir Wilfrid has been informed of the danger resulting from Mr. Millar "peaching," and accordingly he has consented to the blocking of Parliament.

The Public Accounts Committee was busy probing certain dredging contracts of the late Government, and revelations were about to be made when the blockade stopped the meeting of the Committee.

More important still, there are indications that steals amounting to millions of dollars are about to be uncovered in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific contracts. This must be prevented, if possible even if in so doing, parliamentary procedure is paralyzed, public business interrupted, and electoral tumult precipitated.

CHILDREN ADRIFT ON THE LITTLE LAKE

Yesterday afternoon a number of young boys were playing around a scow snubbed near McDonnald's Mill at Point St. Charles. The boys in some way loosened the rope holding the scow. The latter driven by the heavy wind, drifted seawards with the children aboard. The derlict infants set up a lusty bawling as the scow, with them aboard, drifted towards the ice near the Peterborough Lumber Companys plant. Mr. Frank Fairen, with great presence of mind, did a cowboy act and lassoed the craft. The children were rescued across the ice floe.

COUNTRY HEARTILY SICK OF IT

The obstructionists having found that their tactics had not the slightest effect upon the determination of the Government to come to the aid of the motherland, in the matter indicated by the British Government itself, are now seeking to crawl out of the undignified position in which they find themselves. There are unmistakable evidences that the people of Canada are heartily sick of the Ottawa fiasco. Liberal members are being deluged with remonstrances from their own supporters, and the leaders are being plainly told that they have wrecked any chances there might have been of restoration to power. Canada will not soon forget that men like Hon. H. R. Emmerson and Dr. Neely preached secession, and breaking away from the Empire. Canada will remember the Declaration of Independence read by Mr. Emmerson, a Privy Councillor and former minister of the Crown. Canada will remember Dr. Neely's references to "Revolution" and the "Boston Tea Party."

The Government's course is clear. In the fight for continuance of British connection, it has the Canadian people solidly behind it. In its determination that the majority must rule it has the support of the intelligent men of this country. An Opposition which uses what power it has to impede the passage of legislation, which has for its object the strengthening of the ties which bind Canada to the Empire, will be summarily dealt with by the people. Secessionists and revolutionists may fume and fret, but the great mass of people of Canada WILL VOTE TO REMAIN WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

Surely a more pitiable sight was never witnessed than a once great party of the state substituting anarchy for constitutional proceedings. The future of Liberalism under its present leaders will indeed be a thorny road.

TERMS HAVE BEEN MADE BY COMBATING POWERS FOR PEACE

Declare Against Any Indemnity Being Paid by Turkey to Balkan Allies—Crete to Be Ceded

Solia, March 25.—The great powers are of the opinion that the basis of negotiation should be as follows:

"1. The frontier of the Ottoman Empire in Europe shall start at Enos and following the course of the Maritza River, and then that of the Urgene River, shall end at Midia. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the allied states, with the exception of Albania, the delimation of which shall be fixed by the powers.

"2. The question of the Aegean Islands shall be settled by the powers

3. Turkey shall abandon all claims to Crete.

"4 The powers unfavorably entertain the demand for an indemnity, but they will admit the allies to participate in the discussions of the International Commission in Paris, for an equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. The great powers declared at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

These are the terms suggested by the representatives of the great European powers to the Balkan allies, but press and people in the Balkans do not regard them with favor

NEW POLICE SQUAD TO END THE BOMB OUTRAGES.

New York, March 24. Formation of a special police squad whose duty it will be to put an end to bomb outrages in various sections of the city, chiefly on the East Side, was announced by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty Friday.

Mr. Dougherty declared that the criminals who had set off more than 106 bombs, many with disastrous results, during the year 1912, and had caused ten explosions, several of them serious, within the last six weeks, were one of the greatest menaces to the city, and he aimed, by the creation of the new squad, to break up the black mailing gangs responsible for the outrages.

Great Attraction At The Royal

Famous Cox Family, Musical Comedy Company, is Coming

Manager Clayton of the Royal Theatre, is offering a special attraction for to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week that will undoubtedly crowd his theatre to the doors for every performance. He has secured the Famous Cox Family Musical Comedy Company, composed of eight clever people and introducing three complete changes of act. The Cox family are one of the strongest attractions of the kind on the road and their performance is one of exceptional merit. Their original playlet "The Italian Music Master" is clever and unique, and the harmony singing introduced is indeed a treat. No one who likes a clean comedy can afford to miss the Cox Family at the Royal. Their work has caused a sensation all around the circuit and Manager Clayton is to be congratulated upon securing such a superior offering for the house of feature attractions. It will be undoubtedly the best act that has ever been produced at the Royal. In view of the big crowds that will want to see and hear the Cox family, the management make the suggestion that as many ladies and children as possible should visit the threate in the afternoon. There will be two performances each afternoon and those who are able to do so should not miss the opportunity of hearing this great act in comfort. The Royal's splendid three-piece orchestra will provide music and there will be the usual fine programme of picture hits. The admission charges remain the same in spite of the extra attractions on the programme.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, me make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 365 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Rideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

When any one of these lines commence operations look out for an immense increase in price of RUSKIN PLACE Lots.

"Grannie" and Her Pension

A familiar figure in Kirkcaddy, Scotland, passed away in Mrs. Skinner ("Grannie"), who was known to the whole burgh. She was a staunch Radical, and a political admirer of Mr. Gladstone, and, later, of Mr. Lloyd George. A good story is told of "Grannie" when she first went for her old age pension. She received her $1.25, but this did not come up to her expectations, and she said to the postmaster, "That's no' nearly awe; I've ten years' arrears tae get." It took the postmaster some time to get her convinced that the Government did not

EDITORIAL NOTES

While the naval debate still in progress it was only an act of humanity to remove the state prisoner in the House of Commons to a common jail.

Bulgaria is saying nothing but is diligently sawing wood all the time. The longer the war the harder the terms for the Turk when peace is had.

There should be no objection to the proposed tramp of suffragists from Montreal to Ottawa. It is silly, of course; but the trampers are not likely to injure anything or anybody but themselves.

It would serve Mrs. "General" Drummond, the English suffragette leader, jolly well right if the police were to withdraw protection from her when she appears in public. This woman, who has been repeatedly saved from mob violence by the police, declares that she and her followers are in no need of police protection, and that they don't desire it.

In spite of Mr. Taft's mistakes in office not many presidents of the United States have retired from office so universally liked and respected as he is. He is deserving of the esteem of his fellow-citizens and of good men everywhere, for surely there was never a more cheerful loser, and in this respect presents a happy contrast to some of our Liberal friends not 100 miles from Peterborough.

We don't think that L'Action Sociale the organ of the Quebec clericals shows either knowledge or wisdom in declaring that the English language is an instrument of Protestantism and therefore dangerous to Catholicism. Catholicism has made more progress in English-speaking countries in the last few decades than in most other countries—France for instance.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

Preparations for the marriage of the Princess Victoria Louise, the only daughter of the Kaiser, and Prince Ernest, son of the Duke of Cumberland, are in full swing.

The court dressmakers are sitting up nights designing and making gowns for the bride. The Empress and the Princess selected the goods and picked out the designs for the work which has begun on the wedding gown.

The Court Marshal is busy making plans for the festivities and the various municipalities are appropriating funds for wedding gifts. Rooms at the Esplanade, the Kaiserhof, the Adlon and other hotels have already been reserved for numerous visitors.

CO-OPERATIVE EXPERIMENTS IN WEED ERADICATION, 1913

During the season of 1912, the Ontario Agricultural Experimental Union carried on co-operative experiments in the eradication of Perennial Sow Thistle, Twitch Grass, Bladder Campion and Wild Mustard. A number of practical men took part in these experiments and some very interesting and valuable results were obtained. A properly cultivated crop of rape was found to be an excellent means of destroying Perennial Sow Thistle and Twitch Grass. Rape proved more effective in destroying Twitch Grass than did Buckwheat. Thorough and deep cultivation followed by potatoes or corn gave good results in the control of Bladder Campion. Spraying with Iron Sulphate or copper sulphate proved to be a cheap and effective means of destroying Mustard in growing grain without injury to the crop. Those who took part in these experiments profited by the experience. They cleared the field experimented upon, demonstrated to their own satisfaction the effectiveness of the method tried and at the same time their results furnished information to others.

These co-operative experiments in weed eradication will be continued this year (1913) and it is hoped that a large number of men will take part in them in order that sufficient data may be gathered to warrant definite statements being made regarding the best methods of controlling these pernicious weeds. The experiments are as follows: (1) The use of rape in the destruction of Perennial Sow Thistle; (2) A system of intensive cropping and cultivation, using Winter Rye, followed of Turnips, Rape or Buckwheat, for eradicating Perennial Sow Thistle; (3) The use of Rape in the destruction of Twitch Grass; (4) A method of cultivation and cropping for the destruction of Twitch Grass; (5) A method for the eradication of Bladder Campion or Cow Bell; (6) Spraying with Iron Sulphate to destroy Mustard in cereal crops.

Those who are troubled with any of these bad weeds are invited to write to the Director of Co-operative Experiments in Weed Eradication, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario, who will be glad to furnish full information concerning these experiments and to supply application blanks for the same. All experimenters will be supplied with full and detailed instructions for carrying on the experiment selected and with blank forms on which to report the results of the same. All interested in clean farming are asked to co-operate in this work. Address all communications to J. E. Howitt, Botanical Department, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario.

"THEY GOT IT."

We asked him for more information,
We thought it a gentleman's game,
And that nothing would come of our asking,
But curse you, Bob Borden, it came.

It came like a frost in September,
To wither our hopes and, alas,
It has withered the "Globe" and its allay;
The Obstructionist looks like an ass.

Yet still we'll rave on, oh, my comrades,
We've bamboozled the country before,
But like Oliver Twist ne'er again we'll insist,
Bumble Borden in asking for more.

NAVY BILL MUST PASS

the deadlock by an appeal of the country, but is held by Mr. Rogers and his "gang." There is nothing, of course, in the story. The Premier never had and has not any intention of appealing to the country this year. The story is so improbable on the face of it that one wonders how anybody can be misled by it. If the story was that Mr. Rogers wanted to go to the country, it would be more likely to be believed, as Mr. Rogers rather likes an election campaign, and nothing would meet his wishes more than another chance to defeat the Laurier party worse than in 1911. The fact is moreover, that the Prime Minister and the Minister of Public Works are thoroughly in accord on the question. They intend to carry out the mandate of the people. They are agreed that the navy bill shall be put through, and what they desire is what is going to happen.

You Can Buy This Stock Today at 50 Cents Per Share

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from Claim No. 16353½, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.40 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton, and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 30 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353½, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $495.00, $416,00, $292.00 and $165.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week:

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

Vein is improving. We are making trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt to-day for them to treat, so that we can see how it runs. It shows free gold in every piece of quartz, and pans excellent. Have shipped you fifty pounds by express to-day.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

Horace C. Crow, President, Toronto.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,900—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. CAT MAN DEAD IN NEW YORK HOTEL

Bustillo Accidentally Asphyxiated—Said He Was a Spanish General.

New York, March 24.—Manuel de Fuentes Bustillo, who claimed to have been a Spanish general, was accidentally asphyxiated to-day in a hotel room where he lived for 16 years with two cats as companions.

The policeman who forced the door and found his body was, it is said, the first person other than Bustillo who had entered the room since the Spaniard established himself there in 1897.

Bustillo told the owner of the hotel that he once was a Spanish spy. For good work he was promoted. He was about 50 when, attaining the rank of general, he was disappointed in love and simultaneously was ostracized by his family because of his record as a spy. He fled to America.

Old-fashioned furniture and a litter of documents, covered with dust, were found in the room. The documents dated back 30 years. They included a deed of grant for a Spanish railway from the King of Spain and the general's will, disposing of property in Spain, described as valuable.

Bustillo, master of many languages was known as "The Cat Man," because of the constant companionship of two cats. The animals were not overcome by the gas. From the bed, where they lay beside Bustillo, they sprang at the policeman as he raised the body.

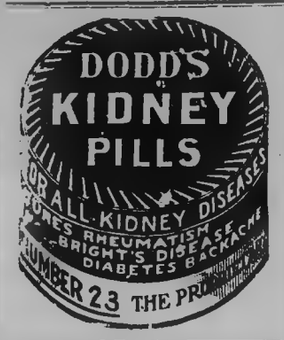
PUTS A BAN UPON THE TROTS AND HUGS

Malden High Principal Says Junior Prom Shall See No "New Fangled" Dances.



Boston, March 24.—The "Junior prom" of the Malden high school Friday night must be bunny-hug-less and turkey-trot-less. The edict has gone forth, promulgated by Headmaster Thornton Jenkins at an assembly of the class yesterday morning.

Last Friday night's dance, held at the close of a concert and in the gymnasium of the school, has caused all the trouble. What Principal Jenkins saw there when he arrived on the scene at 11 p.m., not only shocked him but led him to stop the orchestra and shut down the dance three-quarters of an hour before time.

He told the Juniors all about it when they had flocked to the assembly hall yesterday morning. He announced that the dancing had been "disgraceful." Hah he known earlier in the evening, he declared, that such things as he did see were to be a part of the program—that the bunny hug and the turkey trot, the Gaby glide and the chicken flip and all the other varieties of the light fantastic were to be danced—he would have stopped the dance before it began.

No such carryings-on at the "prom"! The music will be stopped instanter at a word—in the form of an ultimatum: sufficient, he therefore delivered that word.

Since a word to the wise is sufficient, if the dancers attempt any of the new-fangled things.

SALVATIONISTS TO WAR ON SLAVERS.

Gen. Booth Announces Plans For An International Campaign by His Society.

London, March 25.—Gen. Bramwell Booth has appointed a special department of the Salvation Army to deal with matters arising from the white slave traffic. This agency will be of an international character, and is to be organized by Colonel Unsworth, an experienced officer who has seen service in the army in many countries. Under him will be an officer with a knowledge of languages and a committee will be in charge to direct those engaged in the work. One of the objects of the General is to provide a central bureau of information on the subject, both at home and abroad, and to assist friends of the movement in other countries to secure the full advantage of legal enactments already in force there, and to get these strengthened, as far as possible, where this is necessary.

"I have been threatened as to the consequences if we go forward on these lines," said the General, to a representative of the Westminster Gazette, "but I do not see why this should hold us back. In any work work for humanity we must take risks, and I am prepared to face the threats of those who oppose us. We have to recognize that this traffic is highly organized, and that it brings great profit to those engaged in it, but the enormities practiced on women and young girls by being entrapped into the most demoralizing situations are such that we must do everything that is possible to assist in their protection.

LIMITS DEPTH OF DECOLLETE.

Ohio Man Frames Bill Against Diaphanous Hose Also, to Check Crime Wave.

Columbus, March 24.—Declaring that the immodesty of the dress worn by women on the streets and in public places was the cause of a great wave of immorality now spreading over the country, Representative Louis P. Cappelle of Cincinnati has introduced a bill in the lower House of the Legislature, providing for the appointment by the governor of a commission of three members to prescribe the fashions to be worn by women in the state of Ohio.

Introduction of the measure resulted from a charge filed with Gov. Cox to-day by a woman who did not sign her name, that immorality was practised by married men in the offices of the State House and elsewhere in the state of Ohio.

Under the bill the proposed commission would be compelled to fix limits on decollete dresses so that not more than two inches of the neck below the chin should be uncovered.

CRAP SHOOTERS ASSAIL POLICE

Reserve Call Necessitated by Arrest In South Boston Game.

Boston, March 24. — Using his youthful prisoner as a shield when he found that he had no revolver with which to ward off the attack of a mob of hoodlums, Patrolman Thomas Walsh of station 6, South Boston, yesterday succeeded in putting 15-year-old Patrick Rouse under arrest, after he had been struck several times with bricks and stones.

The efforts of the gang to take their comrade away from the officer grew so determined from the time he first arrested the boy for shooting craps, that the mob slung to the policeman's heels almost to the station house, and was only foiled in its purpose by a sortie of reserves.

As a result of the encounter Walsh was bruised in several places by the bricks and stones which were showered upon him. Another of the reserves who dashed out of the station house on Broadway to Walsh's rescue narrowly escaped being struck by a flying half-brick.

Walsh was assigned by Capt. Lee to watch out for crap shooters, and started out in plain clothes. He got within 15 feet of a game before he was noticed, and the gang scattered. After a chase of a block he collared young Rouse and started him toward the station.

The crowd regained courage in narrow Silver street, and had grown to menacing proportions when Broadway was reached. The hoodlums grew bolder when they saw Walsh reach for his revolver, to find that he had left it in his uniform at the station.

Link with Sir Walter Scott

Miss Betty Veitch, who died at Jedburgh, Scotland, at the age of nearly ninety-five, was the youngest child of Mr. James Veitch, of Inchbonny, Jedburgh, among whose closest friends were Sir Walter Scott and Sir David Brewster. At the time of Sir Walter's death Miss Betty Veitch was almost fifteen years of age, and to the end of her life she had vivid remembrance of the occasions on which she saw Sir Walter Scott when he visited her father at Inchbonny.

MARTINS GREAT SHOTS

Sensation of Ayrshire Rifle Meet Has Two Brothers in Canada

Sergeant Jack Martin who made fifteen consecutive bull's-eyes at the 1000 yards range in the Ayrshire rifle matches, has a brother in Canada. He is Alex. Martin, a sporting goods dealer, of Calgary.

The Martins are a family of crack rifle shots. Both Fred and Alex, who make their home in Calgary, have participated in international matches, while Jack, the sensation at Ayrshire won the Grand Aggregate at Bisley last year and the previous year made the full score of 195 in a squadded three-distance competition, being the first to attain this distinction in the N.R.A.

Sergt. Jack Martin has a son A. E. Martin, now 17 years of age, who holds fair to bring more fame to the Martin family. In a meeting at Darnley he took first prize under conditions calling for seven rounds at 200 and 500 yards. His score was 68 and for the tie he made three bull's-eyes. He has won several other notable prizes in the past two years.

Martin was a member of the Palma trophy teams which visited Canada and Australia and has participated in other important international events.

A large open air arena, so built that a roof can be added, and the place turned into a skating rink, is the proposition that is being spoken of by Saskatoon sport promoters. If it is decided that the scheme be gone on with, a stadium will be erected capable of seating 10,000 people.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of R. L. Deschamps Esq., 103 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal and of Thos. Hastings, Esq. Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

REAL SPEED BOY WAS AMOS RUSIE

Harry Davis Picks Him as the Superior of all Throwers of the Present Day

A number of Cleveland ball players were talking recently about the speed marvels of the diamond. Most of the younger men touted Walter Johnson as the king of all speed boys. Johnson was accused of not throwing the ball to the batter, but shooting it.

Then broke in the old-timer, Davis, who, by virtue of his numerous years in sundry wild struggles for pennants, and acknowledged power to sift the strong from the weak pitchers in his day, drew the right to venture first opinion and to have that opinion go on record as a fact.

"Yes, Walter is a marvel," chirped Davis. "Glancing back over two score years that I have been real active and another score that I will only partly be active in professional baseball, I can find only a few, yes a very few, whom I would compare with Walter.

"Now, there was Amos Rusie"—Harry clubbed against little Amos as he has often clubbed against Walter—"there was Amos Rusie," said Harry, "and how he could pilot them up and beyond you! The first year he was not as great a luminary as Johnson.

"There were plenty of green things about me. One of them cropped out soon after my arrival from Pawtucket, R.I. Rusie was pitching. 'Twas my lot to be playing on first. I saw a little smoke when he warmed, but not enough to become alarmed.

"Shortly one of the enemy was at my section for some reason or other—whether it was the result of a safe poke or a pass, I don't know. He was there and took liberties. Amos winked and then shot. He didn't have the power of a toy pistol nor a 44 calibre revolver. I thought it was one of those 13-inch guns shooting at me.

"The ball passed to the far beyond. When all was peaceful again I sauntered up to the manager.

"'Mister Manager,' says I, this is no place for a man of my build and complexion. I believe it is time for me to take my grip and hustle back to Pawtucket. I hear the folks calling for me. I want to hear them call some more. I don't enjoy the sensation of having them walk slowly behind my casket and say, 'Yes, he was a fine boy, and, ah, so good to the children.'"

"The manager only smiled. 'Hang on, kid,' he advised. 'Your eyes are troubling you. Wait a few days and they will be well again.'"

LOTS OF BIG GAME IN SOUTH AFRICA

Buck Are Raised In Thousands For Sport And the Market—Pays Well Both Ways

The average person, no doubt, regards the springbok, wildebeeste, and blesbuk as rare specimens of South African game. It will no doubt come as a surprise to know that there are still thousands upon thousands of these game in existence, and, in fact, in some parts of South Africa farmers derive huge incomes from their game alone.

One farmer goes in almost exclusively for breeding game, and during the season he shoots some hundreds of buck and sends them to market. On his farm there are about 15,000 head of game, consisting mainly of wildebeeste and besbuk, with a few thousand springbok. The farm is about 10,000 acres in extent and one portion of it is reserved as a sanctuary, and as soon as the buck go on to this portion they are perfectly safe, as never a shot is fired at them while in their special reserve.

This reserve is only divided from the rest of the farm by a road or cart track, and it is really wonderful how the buck know they are safe there. On other parts of the farm they are so wild that it is difficult to get within rifle range of them, whereas in the sanctuary one can ride within a hundred yards of either the wildbeeste or blesbuk.

The method usually employed of shooting buck for market is as follows: A couple of men who are good shots hide behind antheaps or mounds of earth, at a distance of about 400 yards from a fence, not far from and leading to the sanctuary. Knowing that the buck as soon as they are frightened immediately rush for their reserve, a couple of native boys, well mounted, are told off to round up the buck and drive them so that they gallop along the fence to the reserve. As soon as they draw level with the hidden sportsmen these start firing, and before the buck are out of range each man will have fired nine or ten shots, accounting for perhaps a dozen buck. They go through this manœuvre a few times during the day, and as soon as there are sufficient shot to make a good waggon load, they are dispatched to Johannesburg or one of the principal markets, to grace the tables of both poor and rich, who all regard venison as a special treat.

The farmer mentioned seldom makes no less than $7,500 during the six months' shooting season. The bulk of this amount is derived from shooting and sending buck to the market, but he has other ways of making his buck a source of profit. When the buck have young he always catches a few pairs and rears them by hand, later selling them at a big price to zoological gardens or to private individuals who want to stock their farms with buck.

Shooting parties are permitted to shoot on this farm at a fixed price of so much per head for each variety of buck shot, and it is no unusual thing for a party to spend as much as $250 for a few days' shooting.

These sportsmen have a more arduous, if less effective, method of shooting, as they drive over the veldt until they get within range of the buck, and then jump out of the cart quickly and fire a few shots, usually at a long range. If successful in shooting any they tie a white rag around the dead buck; this serves the double purpose of marking the spot where the buck lies and also frightens off vultures which would soon attack the carcasses.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

In this environment, under these influences, I rose to meet her, wordless. Yet my expression and attitude must have spoken loudly enough to confirm the dread that was in her heart, for even before she spoke I was sure that she knew. And then she had taken my two outstretched hands in hers and raised her brave eyes to mine, and low-voiced, but sure and tremorless, was saying:

"I feared it, Philip. From the very first, I feared it."

And when I told her all, to the smallest detail, it was as though she were the man and I the woman; for the recital had been for me a very painful confession of my own incompetence, and its conclusion left me more nervously unstrung than at any time since the night of the strange catastrophe. With what heroic fortitude she heard the narrative may best be indicated by the statement that throughout it all she sat calmly attentive, but unquestioning, and with no sign of emotion beyond her continued pallor and a recurrent tensing of her small white hands. At the end I leaned forward and with left elbow on knee rested my forehead in my palm. She sat beside me on the same settee; and now she drew closer, and laying her cool right hand over my own disengaged one, began stroking my hair with her left. For a full minute she said nothing. Then, in soothing accents:

"I am glad you didn't find the boat. That means he is on it. If you had found it, it would have been some ordinary thing having no connection with this affair, whatever."

It was odd reasoning, but very feminine, and in an esoteric way, forceful.

"But you made one mistake, Philip," she went on. "You should not have let that fisherman, Peter Johnson, go."

At this I raised my head and regarded her with something like astonishment.

"He was one of them," she explained in a tone of conviction.

"How can you say that?" I asked, a little nettled. It annoyed me that she should be so positive, knowing no more of the man than that which I had told her.

"I feel it," she answered. And that was all the reason she could give.

I had not expected to find such development of intuition regarding worldly matters in one so young, and so fresh from conventual seclusion. And then her judgment seemed to keep pace with her auguries; for when I spoke of inviting the aid of detectives and the newspapers, she begged me to consider.

"I am afraid for him," she pursued gravely. "Publicity might mean death. If they discover they are being sought, they may murder him. Somehow, I feel he is still alive; and so we must do nothing that will incite them to further violence."

"But," I returned, conscious of the force of her argument, yet failing to see how this caution could very well be exercised, "we can't find him without seeking."

"No, but we can seek him in secret. The newspapers must not tell the world."

"The police would of course tell the newspapers," I added.

"We can do some things without the police," was her next assertion. "There are some things that I can do; and there are more that you can do." She was thoughtful for a moment, and then: "I am so sorry about Peter Johnson! You should never have lost sight of him."

"We gave him money and God speed," I reminded her.

"Captain MacLeod must go back there, where you left him. Where was it? Siasconset? He must trace him. His trail won't lead to Gloucester, I'm sure of that."

My self-esteem was not being vigorously stimulated by the young lady at this juncture. Indeed, I was being made to feel more and more my strategical inferiority.

"And I," she continued, with the methodical expediency of a commander-in-chief, so curiously inapposite in one so young and inexperienced as she: "and I shall find out about those letters."

"Find out what?" I asked in astonishment.

"Find out what manner of man wrote them," she amplified.

"But how can you?" I inquired. "That seems a pretty big undertaking of itself, for one so small."

"I have thought of a way," she declared, noncommittally.

"And what am I to do?" was my next question, feeling miserably small beside this efficient child.

"You must give me the letter you have, and help me look for the others."

The first part of the command was easy enough of obedience; for the letter was in my pocket at the moment. But my assistance in searching for the first two communications was more energetic than successful. Together we ransacked desks, bureaus, tables, closets, trunks, clothes. Indeed, every possible hiding place both at Cragholt and on the Sibylla was carefully and systematically delved into and exhausted without reward. Either Cameron had destroyed the letters, or he had them on his person when he vanished from the yacht.

At Evelyn's request, however, I wrote copies of those two strangely-couched, malevolent epistles, as nearly as I could remember them; and save, perhaps, for possibly two or three verbal errors they were, I think, quite accurate.

"And now," I asked again, "what am I to do?"

It was nearly midnight, and I was leaving her, my car waiting in the sopping driveway to carry me home.

"You are not to worry any more than you possibly can help," she told me, with a brave little smile, "for we are going to succeed. And tomorrow you must go to your office, and keep very, very silent about what has happened. And then you are to come to me again in the evening, and I will tell you all I have learned."

With which she gave me her hand to kiss, in the odd little French way she had—a way that could scarcely have been a part of her convent teaching.

As I come to review these matters now, it seems singular that I should have so readily consented to be guided by this girl's will in a case of such grave importance; yet I cannot but believe there was something providential both in her assumption of leadership and in my own unquestioning acquiescence. For the day of office work and silence, which she enjoined, was exactly what I needed to restore my nerves to their normal tension. It was, in fact, a sort of counter-irritant, which brought me up standing, with a revived self-confidence and recuperated energy.

So when, a little before five o'clock that afternoon, just as I was making ready to run for my train, I heard Evelyn's voice over the telephone, I was fairly tingling with ardor for the game; and her request to call on Professor Griffin, the expert in Oriental literature, who occupied a chair in Columbia college, and lived a mile or more back from the Greenwich station, was a welcome call to action.

Very briefly she explained that she had seen the professor that morning, and had laid before him the original letter and my copies of the others, and that he had kindly promised to make a careful study of them and acquaint her with the result later in the day. She thought it better, however, that I should call upon him for his conclusions, she said, as they would probably be verbal, and she doubted her own ability to convey them to me with entire accuracy. Of course she had told him nothing as to the circumstances surrounding the letters. As they bore no dates, and were unaddressed, she had him to infer that they were autographic curiosities belonging to her uncle, in which we were all three interested.

I had met Professor Griffin on several occasions. Once or twice he had contributed articles to The Week, and while we were scarcely intimate, we were on terms of friendly acquaintanceship. He was an oldish, white-haired gentleman, of rather the ascetic type, with long, somewhat peaked face, and light, watery blue eyes, which seemed to bulge behind the strong lenses of his gold-bowed spectacles.

He received me in his study, a spacious, book-lined room on the second floor of his old Colonial stone house.

"I have been deeply interested, Mr. Clyde," he began, "in the autographs and copies which Miss Grayson brought to me. They are unique specimens of English composition, in that the Oriental influence is so clearly demonstrated throughout. Do you, by any chance, know where Mr. Cameron obtained them?"

I was hardly prepared for this question, but I answered as promptly as possible that they had recently come into my friend's possession, I believed, but from just what source I had not learned.

The three sheets lay before him on the writing-shelf of his old-fashioned mahogany secretary; and now he took up one of the copies, holding it at some distance from his eyes, as though his glasses, thick as they were, were not as powerful as his sight required.

"The three writings," he went on, in the tone of a class-room lecturer, "evidently form a series, of which, I take it, this is the first."

"The one which says, 'Take warning of what shall happen on the seventh day'?" I queried.

"Yes. That is the first. The other of the copies, in which occurs the phrase 'once more,' is, of course, the second. And the original autograph is the last."

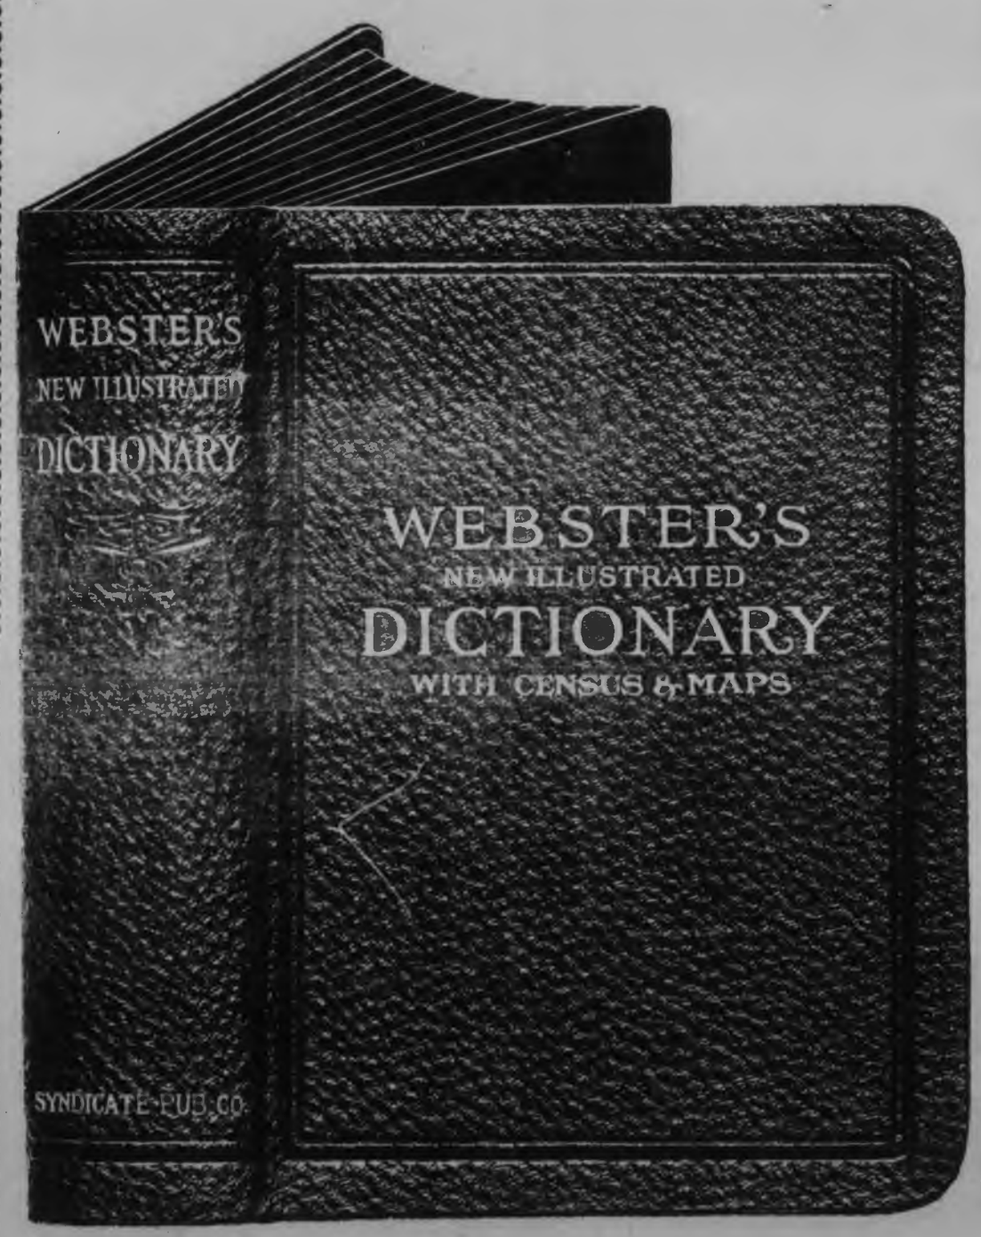
"Exactly," I agreed. It seemed to me that all this was very obvious, but in courtesy I could not say so.

"All three," he continued sagely, "begin, as you must have observed, with the same sentence, 'That which you have wrought shall in turn be wrought upon you.' That is a quotation."

"A quotation!" I exclaimed, in surprise.

"A quotation from Mencius, the great expositor of Confucius, who lived B. C. 372 to 289. In the original, a word meaning 'Beware' precedes the warning, and a more literal translation of the passage would be: 'Beware: What proceeds from you will return to you again.'"

It seemed to me this was taking a great deal for granted. I feared that the professor, like many savants who specialize, was straining the fact to fit his theory, but he very promptly disabused me.



"The supposition that the words are a paraphrase of Mencius," he explained, "would not be tenable, perhaps—the idea is not anomalous—were it not that we find running through the series, other quotations that are unquestionably of Chinese origin. The first letter, for example, concludes with: 'The ways of our God are many. On the righteous he showers blessings; on the evil he pours forth misery.' This is from the Book of History, or 'Shu King,' in which are the documents edited by Confucius himself. It usually has been rendered in this way: 'The ways of God are not invariable. On the good doer he sends down all blessings, and on the evil doer he sends down all miseries.' That is the more exact rendering. And again, in the second letter we find—" He paused a moment, taking up the second sheet, and focusing his dim eyes upon the lines. "We find," he went on, "'Fine words and a smiling countenance make not virtue,' which is from the Lunhu, or 'Analects' of Confucius, in which the views and maxims of the sage are retailed by his disciples. 'Smiling countenance' is hardly the best translation. 'Insinuating appearance' is more nearly the English equivalent, and I should prefer 'are rarely connected, or associated, with virtue' to 'make not virtue.'"

"Those, of course, are unmistakably translations," I agreed.

"And so are the concluding sentences of the third, the autograph letter," he assured me. "'Say not Heaven is high above! Heaven ascends and descends about our deeds, daily inspecting us, wheresoever we are.' I find it in one of the sacrificial odes of Kau, and it is the best rendered of all the excerpts."

That Rubidge Street Shed.

The Times is in receipt of a letter which advocates the request of the William Hamilton Mfg. Co., of which Mr. Geo. Gladman is president, regarding the temporary erection of shed on Rubidge street. The Prodigal Son Recalled

During the high wind of yesterday, two young ladies living on Gilmour street, stood on the south corner of George and Brock streets, waiting for a homeward bound car. A Times reporter passing, as the furious wind blew against the ladies' skirts, was hailed by a local Philistine, who remarked, "Those ladies there remind me of the Prodical Son and the fatted calf." We don't know what he meant, but that is what he said. It might be incidentally added that one of the ladies is of a somewhat full figure.

DEEP SNOW IS CHECK TO WORK OF RESCUE; BEGIN REBUILDING

Bodies of Dead or Injured Still Lie in Debris as Search is Fruitless — Say Hundreds Are Still in Wreckage

Omaha, Neb., Mar. 26.—Adding to the suffering which followed the tornado which demolished sections of this city on Easter Sunday, a heavy snow began falling last night and by morning two inches of it covered the ground, hampering the work of rescue and reconstruction.

Bodies of dead or injured still lie in the debris and wreckage and the search by Federal soldiers and anxious relatives of possible victims continued through the storm last night and this morning. Some residents of the district declare it their belief that at least 100 bodies are buried in the ruins of houses and brick buildings of amusement places, which are known to have been filled with pleasure-seekers on Easter Sunday.

City Police Are Superceded.

City officials, however, do not estimate the unrescued in so large a number, admitting, nevertheless that many persons yetare to be accounted for.

Throughout the night Federal soldiers guarded the afflicted section of the city with utmost diligence, denying admittance epen to city police and county officials. Scores of business men delayed in the business section of Omaha until after dark, were denied the right to pass through the wrecked portion of the city to their homes.

Springing An Election

Now alarm is expressed that Mr. Borden will "spring" a general election on the country, says the News. We do not believe there is any real need for apprehension. It is believed the intention is to have an election say in October or November, 1915. Therefor by no stretch of the imagination can he be charged with attempting to "spring" a contest on his opponents. If the Liberal party cannot get ready for a general election between now and the end of 1915 the disorganization in the ranks is even far more serious than has been believed.

A dead-line has been established by the soldiers at Lake avenue, from Sixteenth street to Thirteenth street City police are stopped by soldiers when Lake street is reached and told that their patrols end there. Even newspaper men were denied admittance into the proscribed district.

Miss Mary Fortune of St. John Newfoundland; name in religion, Sister Mary Ameria.

Miss Rachael Phelan of Brodnell, name in religion, Sister Mary Rachael.

Miss Euphemia McCauley, name in religion, Sister Mary Euphemia.

Miss Eva O'Neil of Douglas, name in religion, Sister Mary Theodora.

High mass was sung by Rev. Arch Casey, administrator of the diocese, and Rev. Father McColl of St. Peter's Cathedral, preached a sermon on "The Motives and Influence of Religious Life."

FORESTERS OF BRIDGENORTH BASKET SOCIAL

That the Canadian Order of Foresters of Court No. 315 are a bunch of live wires, was demonstrated at their basket social, held in the Foresters' Hall of that village. This court was instituted at Bridgenorth a fifth of a century ago by Mr. Henderson Nesbitt, Governor of the local jail. The court has 110 members—a pretty good showing for Chemong.

At the basket social, Mr. J. N. Telford acted very efficiently as the chairman. The speakers were Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., who gave an interesting and patriotic address on the future possibilities of Canada's agriculture, and Rev. Mr. Ireland, pastor of the Methodist church at Chemong. A splendid program of vocal and instrdmental music was rendered by Bridgenorth talent. Mr. W. J. Howden acted as auctioneer. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $40.

MOVING MILLIONS A BLOCK, A BANK PREPARES TO BUILD

Huge Safe Taken From the Dominion's Old Structure to Temporary Quarters---Crowds Watch the Transfer of Securities and Cash

Toronto, March 26. It was moving day yesterday at the Dominion Bank at the south-west corner of King and Yonge streets, and the operations were viewed with great interest and much speculation by a crowd of people, as to the value of the contents of the safes moved. Since Good Friday dawned twelve mammoth strong boxes containing over $25,000,000 in gold, bills and securities have been taken to the temporary quarters in the Crown Life Building at the corner of Yonge and Colborne streets.

Moving a Big Safe.

The work of transferring the valuables was slow and laborious. Slowly the safe emerged from the gloom of the doorway, encodraged by a block and tackle, a stout rope the end of which were two of the men. Its path had been made straight and easier by the construction of a plank gangway. Its progress was assisted by rollers. It need not have been nervous. A policeman armed with a revolver, which he hoped was loaded, stood there to ward off any brutal attacks or unwelcome attention. Yet it seemed reluctant to leave its home for pastures new that is, if safes have any interests at all in pastures. It reminded an open-mouthed farmer, down seeing Toronto on Easter Monday, of the time he had pulling his big beef to the block. But at last yielding to the gentle persuasions of the men, at the end of the rope, and the tickling of the men behind it, the safe mounted its carriage, or lorry, and was driven away.

VALUE OF MOVING PICTURES IN TEACHING

D. A. McArthur, M.A., of the Dominion Archives, Ottawa, spoke on "Sources of Canadian History." He dealt with the various sources from the earliest days of the colony, and emphasized the value of the press in this connection during the past fifty years.

"Moving pictures and lantern slides are of immense value in teaching history," said Mr. McArthur. "It is essential in history that pupils be interested in things that are alive, and not dead matter. The connection of sources with matter will make history easy for the pupils."

PATIENT GETS MUCH BETTER

Another Montreal Man Approaches Recovery

DOCTOR SAYS IT IS TRUE

Maurice Allard, Treated by Dr. Friedmann.—Able to Get Around at Hotel Dieu.—Hospital Doctor Says Dubois Story is True.—Girl Took Long Walk, and is Able to Walk Up and Down Stairs.

Montreal, March 26.—Another medical man, a prominent physician on the staff of the Montreal General Hospital, states that to the best of his belief the story told The Star by Miss Marie Dubois, and the members of the Dubois family, is quite correct.

"I was not Miss Dubois' physician, but I saw her once, before she was treated by Dr. Friedmann. She was in bed, and apparently unable to walk, and very ill." Her story appears to be quite true."

The doctor asked that his name be not mentioned because of the fact that he did not wish any publicity at present in the case.

Dr. Harding, of the Royal Edward Institute, while apparently quite delighted to receive a Star representative, still clung to the opinion that nothing whatever should be said in regard to the patients tregted by Dr. Friedmann.

"They are our patients, not the patients of the public," he remarked.

It is learned, however, from good sources, that of all the patients treated at the institute, "there is no complaint," and that all appear to be doing well.

YOUNG ALLARD WALKS AROUND

The same report was received today of the two patients at the Hotel Dieu. Mr. Cohn McCabby and twelve-year-old Maurice Allard. In the case of the boy, there seems to be marked improvement, especially as to one of his legs, which was in a terrible state. The little fellow is now able to get around the ward to a certain extent.

Miss Dubois was visited again today by a Star representative, and stated that she was steadily improving. The young woman spent the greater part of yesterday in long walks, and stated she had improved by the exercise.

"I am now able to do my own work in the house," she said, "and run up and down stairs. I am not perfectly cured, I know, but I think another injection would cure me althogether. I hope that Dr Friedmann will return and see patients he treated the first time, and give them another treatment."

The time for Dr. Friedmann's return to Montreal has not been as yet fixed, though he, or one of his assistant physicians, is expected here later on, according to his promise.

ADRIANOPLE LINES BEGIN TO FALL BEFORE THE ALLIES

Bulgarians Capture First Defence Outworks After a Severe Bombardment--Surrender of 15,000

London, March 26.—The Bulgarian besiegers to-day captureh the first line of defences around the Turkish fortress of Adrianople after a severe bombardment lasting several hours, according to a news agency despatch from Sofia.

Surrender of 15,000 Confirmed.

Sofia, March 26.—The War Office confirmed the reported surrender of Djavid Pasha, the Turkish leader, and 15,000 of his men. Djavid Pasha commanded the Seventh Corps of the Ottoman army, and capitulated to the Servians on the Skumbi river in Albania.

Scutari Bombardment Ceases.

Belgrade, March 25th. The bombardment of the Turkish fortress of Scutari by the Montenegrin and Servian besiegers is understood to have been stopped yesterday on orders from the Servian Government, acting on the advice of the French and Russian Ministers here, who notified the Servian Premier, N. P. Patchitch, that the European powers had come to the unalterable decision that Scutari must belong to the future State of Albania.

TEN PERSONS ARE DROWNED IN DELAWARE, OHIO, FLOOD

Cleveland, Ohio, March 26.—The Big Four Railroad here, which was just in communication with its operator at Delaware, Ohio, received from him the statement that the town was under water, ten persons had been drowned, and that scores of others were marooned in their homes in danger.

LORD WOLSELEY, GREAT AND DISTINGUISHED SOLDIER, DEAD

Former Commander-in-Chief of British Forces Died Yesterday--Saw Last Service in Nile Campaign

London, March 26.—Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley, one of the most famous of modern British soldiers, died to-day at Mentone, France, in his 80th year.

Little has been heard of Lord Wolseley since the Egyptian campaign.

He has held positions of honor such as that of Gold Stick in Waiting, and of course his name has been a household word throughout the British Empire. He has been Commander-in-Chief of the forces, but for all active purposes his military career ended when Khartoum was relieved to late to save ... of Gordon.

Twice Thanked by Parliament.

For the second time he was thanked for his services by both Houses of Parliament. He was raised to the rank of Viscount in the peerage. But so far as the general public was concerned, he had to bear blame for failure that was caused mainly by political considerations, over which he had no control.

MOTHER FIGHTS FOR HER BABY BOY

Toronto, March 26.—A determined fight for the custody of her two-year-old child was made by Mrs. Anna Gray in the Juvenile Court yesterday morning. The young woman, who is of strikingly attractive appearance, was arraigned, first of all in the women's court before Magistrate Denison on a charge of vagrancy. There it appeared that some time ago she had placed her baby for keeping with another woman. She had then gone to the house and asked permission to take the little fellow out for a walk.

The request was granted and the young woman fled with the baby to Guelph. The police were communicated with and she was brought back to Toronto. It appears that she had neglected to pay anything for the child's keep and this was one of the main features which induced the Crown to lay the charge.

THE MARCONI STOCK DEAL GIVES SHOCK TO BRITAIN

Revelations of Cabinet Ministers Undermine Faith of Englishmen---First Confession Evaded The Truth?

London, March 26.—Widespread disquietude has been created throughout the British Isles by the confession of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the Attorney-General, that he, Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd-George, and the Chief Liberal Whip, the Master of Elibank, were partners in a big deal in the shares of a company associated with the wireless concern negotiating a huge contract with one of their colleagues in the British Cabinet.

There was a great rush to secure seats at the re-opening of the Parliamentary inquiry into the matter, as the public desired to hear the explanations Sir Rufus Isaacs and David Lloyd-George would give of a transaction which even such a staunch Radical organ as The Weekly Nation characterized as "inexpedient and indelicate and a grievous error of judgment."

Has Shaken Britain's Faith.

When veiled suggestions as to ministerial deals in wireless shares were first mooted. Sir Rufus Isaacs and David Lloyd-George protested vehemently.

The Primary exams, for Messengers etc., and Qualifying exams for the "Outside" service will be held here, and in other Canadian cities on May 12th.

WAR CLOUD THICKENS

All Europe is startled by the huge military and financial measures officially announced in Germany.

Germany, France, and Russia alike are now committed to the hugest general increase of armaments yet attempted; and a new and threatening epoch is opening in the affairs of Europe.

The details of the new German military proposals show that Europe is confronted by a new war of armaments. This will be the sixth act, enormously increasing the German and the sea forces that he been brought forward by the German Government in the past seven years. Last year it carried a navy act which provides for the maintenance on a war footing of four-fifths of the German fleet. This year the German army is to be raised with all possible speed to the gigantic total in time of peace of 860,000 men, which means that it also is to be kept permanently mobilized.

The cost of the measure will be stupendous. There must be an initial outlay of 300 million dollars, if the forecasts are correct, with a permanent charge of 50 to 75 millions, and $210,000,000 which the army at present requires. In the present year Germany will vote for her army no less than 500 million dollars. If we add her naval expenditure and and various items of indirect expenditure, her outlay on armaments will be nearly 650 millions, against England's of 350 millions. These colossal armaments explain the extraordinary efforts for which France is preparing with such energy.

There is, also, a proposal to add 30,000 more men to the Austrian army; and Russia is believed to be contemplating the addition of three corps to her land forces.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 305 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Rideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

When any one of these lines commence operations look out for an immense increase in price of RUSKIN PLACE Lots.

Lots at Ruskin Place Now Sell for $275, $300 and $375

EDITORIAL NOTES

Affairs in Mexico are by no means as confused as they might be. Equal suffrage is not yet an issue.

Watch out for short measure. The imperial standard yardstick at London is found to have shrunk 215 millionths of an inch.

Necessity is still the mother of invention. The law-abiding are now offered hatpins with one head and pins in assorted lengths.

The trade speaks of "good, bad and indifferent eggs," vut from the consumer's point of view eggs are of but two kinds: Good and all the rest

It's now coming to the season when more than one Peterborough man has to decide between an automobile or an Easter outfit for his wife.

The appearance of our esteemed fellow townsman, Mr. D. Conroy, at his "office" on the Bank of Commerce corner once again, is a sure sign that the springtime has come, gentle Annie.

Miss Estelle Stead professes to be in receipts of messages from the spirit of her late father, W. T. Stead; but it will be remarked that the messages are much vaguer than the utterances of the respected spirit used to be when it was yet in the flesh.

The secret of the Sphinx is about to be revealed. It appears that the Sphinx has been sitting on a submerged city for the last few thousand years. Although she is of the female persuasion, she has guarded her secret well and long.

Belleville Ontario says that "few of our citizens saw the total lunar eclipse on Saturday morning." Why Brer Ontario, just as many were likely to see that total lunar eclipse as see the result when two is taken from two or know who is the man who struck Billy Patterson.

The factions of the Liberal party are being cajoled into a seeming unity for the purpose of the alleged coming election! Any co-operation thus brought about must be superficial. What Canada wants, and has, is a party in power that is one at heart as well as in appearance.

The militants are reported to have planned the kidnapping of Lloyd George. Quite a modern innovation, adopted very frequently by the Black Hand and similar criminal organizations. But suppose in captivity Lloyd George went on a hunger strike. Would his militant captors employ forcible feeding?

England's iniquity, in forcing for a century past the opium curse on China, is censured by the Buffalo Courier. Supposing, for a change, it dilates on the iniquity of the slave traffic in the United States during the same period. True, it was ended at the expense of a frightful war, but the lynching and burning of negroes still continue."

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Sir Charles Tupper, now in his 92nd year, has decided to return to England. He is one of the fathers of Canadian federation and as such must ever be revered by every son of the empire. He is a grand old man; and we would like to have him remain with us. But since it is necessary for him to go all will unite in wishing him a pleasant voyage.

CHAMBERLAIN ON PREFERENCE.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the old war-horse of tariff reform, has come to the front with a message of imperial unity, and a glowing tribute to the action of Canada in the matter. His message was very practical in that it was accompanied by a birthday testimonial of about $30,000 in aid of the Tariff Reform league. May he live to see his labors bear their full fruits in the establishment of a mutual preference throughout all parts of the empire.

THREE LIBERAL PAPERS

The St. John Globe, which is the oldest Liberal newspaper in New Brunswick, says: "We doubt if people generally throughout Canada are taking very much stock in the Parliamentary play, except in so far as that play reveals a constitutional defect which should be repaired. The majority must rule." The Montreal Herald, the chief English-Liberal newspaper of Quebec is inclined to the people when he goes to let the Government's emergency vote go through if Mr. Borden will present his permanent naval policy to the country at the next general election. As this is what the Prime Minister has promised to do all along The Herald may now be considered as supporting him, and as opposing the Parliamentary blockade.

The Winnipeg Tribune, owned and edited by a defeated Liberal candidate, in the Macdonald bye-election last year, says that "the Canadian people are ready now, as at all times, to place great weight on advice from British statesmen and experts in naval matters." It declares that Canada cannot do the impossible, and that the country is not prepared to spend $75,000,000 on a fleet before a decent commencement could be made in the construction of battleships.

Further, The Tribune says: "There is a vast difference in providing against an emergency and jumping headlong into a policy that will drain the last dollar in taxes from a people who are struggling to open and develop half a great continent of territory. Canada cannot do everything at once. A step at a time is what the sober citizens desire."

These important declarations are taken from newspapers representative of Liberal and independent opinion in three widely separated provinces. Thousands of Ontario Liberals echo their sentiments. The obstructionists in the Commons are out of touch with the country and even with extensive elements in their own party.

PUBLIC OPINION.

TOO MUCH FICTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As a constant visitor at the public library, where I see the class of literature most popular with an overwhelming majority of our local readers, I cannot but think that too much fiction of a low class is read here. The Board should make an an effort to reduce the amount of poorer fiction read, by placing a higher class of literature before the patrons and through lectures on the value of better reading.

A LIBERAL PROTEST.

(Published by Request.)

Hark, the Liberal slogan echoes,
God of Liberty, all hail!
Let the people's Sovereign mandate
Voiced by Parliament prevail.

Shall a little obligarchy,
Fed on fifteen years of graft;
Force a nation from its purpose,
Laurier, you must be daft.

Think you that your sorry babble,
Can constrain a Nation's heart:
That the people love to see you
Play the low comedian's part.

Laurier, when I heard you speaking
Of the people's right divine.
I ne'er thought to see you cutting
Such a silly Monkey shine.

Oh, my Laurier; oh, my Leader,
You that once on lofty wing
Soared so high amongst the Heavens
Can't you drop Mackenzie King.

PAINKILLER LAKE A GOLD CAMP OF GREAT PROMISE

Cartwright Gold Fields Limited, Making Good.

Until quite recently gold mines of Ontario were looked upon with suspicion, but with the wonderful results from Porcupine, it is acknowledged that the mineral wealth in North Ontario is a feature to be reckoned with. This is evidenced daily and the reports coming from the new gold camp of Painkiller Lake, situated about nine miles from Matheson, in the Township of Beatty, stamp the district as a gold camp of great promise.

The best known property is this district is the Cartwright Gold Fields Limited, who hape a well equipped plant with all the necessary machinery are progressing so favorably that ere long it will be classed with the producing gold mines. Phenomenal assays have been made from grab samples. Assays have been made by the Canada Metal Co., and Milton Hersey, running $5000 in gold and $1326 in gold respectively. In the main shaft, which is down nearly 50 feet, forty-three samples gave an average of over $70 in gold per ton.

A trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell of Cobalt, was made a few days ago and the report upon this is that it runs $38.10 per ton, which stamps the Cartwright Gold Fields Limited as one of the best properties in Northern Ontario.

Great interest is being taken in the offering of Stock at the low price of 50 cents per share. The money raised will be used to instal a stamp mill and for further development. When one takes into consideration that the M'Enaney, who have just installed a five stamp mill and reported to be running at a profit of $500 per day, one can imagine what huge profits will accrue to the lucky stockholders of the Cartwright Gold Fields when a stamp mill is installed.

The successful efforts of this company will encourage other owners to prove up the value of their holdings. It has been known for sometime that large and valuable mineral deposits were in the Painkiller Lake section, and many fine specimens have been exhibited, but the difficulties of transportation have retarded development. However, now that the success of one real property is assured there is no doubt that with the coming of spring Painkiller Lake will be a scene of great act vity and the career of this new gold camp will be watched with intense interest.

600,000 SHARES IN THE TREASURY

You Can Buy This Stock Today at 50 Cents Per Share

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L. 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from Claim No. 16353½, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.40 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton, and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 17 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353½, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $495.00, $416,00, $292.00 and $186.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week:

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

Vein is improving. We are making trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt to-day for them to treat, so that we can see how it runs. It shows free gold in every piece of quartz, and pans excellent. Have shipped you fifty pounds by express to-day.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

Old Folk's Coughs Permanently Cured

The Public is Loud in Its Praise of the Modern Direct Breathing Cure.

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly, if ever. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia. Even though pneumonia does not develop and kill, coughs certainly weaken all elderly people.

Cough Syrups seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any druggist or doctor knows that a much more effective treatments is "CATARRHOZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich piney balsamic vapor, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

"At sixty-eight years of age I can testify that I am never troubled with coughs or colds," writes J. E. Pilgrim, of Kingston. "They used to be the bain of my life, and that was before I used Catarrhozone, which was recommended to me by C. L. Prouse, druggist. To use Catarrhozone is just like being in an immense pine woods. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhozone is like a tonic, it is so stimulating to the breathing organs, so soothing to sore spots, so full of power to drive out colds and congestion I will always use and recommend Catarrhozone as a preventive and cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, throat irritation and catarrh.

(Signed) "J. E. PILGRIM."

A Catarrhozone Inhaler in your pocket or purse enables you to stop a cold with the first sneeze. Large size costs $1.00 and supplies treatment for two months; small size, 50c.; trial size, 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

BOUGHT COCAINE ON FORGED ORDERS

Police Charge Two West End Men With Selling Drug in a Pool Room.

Toronto, March 26.—Two alleged cocaine fiends, Leonard Cosgrave and James Walker yesterday morning faced Magistrate Denison in Police Court on a charge of obtaining a quantity of the drug from a druggist in the west end by forging the name of Dr. Boddington to a fictitious order. It is claimed that two days ago Cosgrave walked into a drug store and showed the clerk an order purporting to be signed by the doctor. He obtained 30 grains of cocaine and left the store, it is said, in company with Walker.

Cosgrave was arrested last night by Detective Jarvis after the man had gone into a drug store on Soraurem avenue and presented an order for sixty grains of the drug. The druggist became suspicious and refused to serve the man unless he was accompanied by the physician purporting to have signed the order.

Pursued in Auto.

The accused left the store hurriedly but a telephone message to the Cowan avenue station brought detective Jarvis to the scene. The officer jumped into an auto with the druggist and followed Cosgrave, overtaking him on Queen street.

Walker was later in the evening found in a pool room by Detective Jarvis and placed under arrest.

This morning both were remanded for a week. The police say the two man have been peddling the drug in pool rooms in the west end.

ORILLIA MAN SHOT BY A MIDNIGHT THIEF

In a desperate struggle with a masked burglar shortly before eleven o'clock on Sunday night, Allan McPherson, of Orillia, one of the best known lumber men in the country, was shot in the thigh and so badly wounded that he may not recover. The burglar escaped. Mr. McPherson lives at Longford, just across the lake from Orillia, with his two adopted children.

Mr. McPherson heard the burglar in his house, and upon going downstairs to investigate, was met by the cracks man, who was a short man with a red handkerchief tied over his face, concealing everything but his eyes. The man carried a large rifle, which he pointed at Mr McPherson, and threatened to shoot if he was not given money.

Mr. McPherson struggled with the burglar, and after being shot managed to wrench the rifle out of his hands. Before he could get a shot at the marauder, however, the man jumped through a window and escaped. The Provincial police are investigating.

HOW TO STAKE A MINING CLAIM

The process of staking a mining claim in Canada consists in planting a stake—a section of young tree—known as the discovery post—at the real or alleged point where the vein shows. On the sides of this are inscribed the staker's name, or that of the party for whom he is staking, the number of the miner's license, the date, etc. Out from that are planted stakes at the four corners of the claim, 20 chains by 10 chains apart. The usual mining claim is about 40 acres, but upon certain occasions such as the opening of the Gillies Limit, they have been reduced by a special act to give more people a show.

SNARED A MOOSE

Huge Animal Caught by Rope Suspended From Bent Bough

One of the most remarkable and daring instances of moose killing reported for many years was unearthed by the Province of Quebec Fish and Game Protection Association.

Two wardens brought to Montreal a fine moose skin weighing fifty pounds, which they had seized in a tanner's establishment at Rimouski. The animal was killed within the game preserves of the Anglo-American Fish and Game Club. A further remarkable point is that the animal was caught in a snare, the first instance of a moose being taken in this way for more than forty years.

The snare consisted of a bough of a tree bent towards the ground with a rope and noose at the end. When the animal put his head in the loop the branch sprang upwards, lifting him off the ground and hanging by the neck. As a moose weighs from 1,400 to 1,500 pounds, great care had to be exercised in selecting a bough sufficiently strong to bear the weight.

The Finest Wild Rose

The world's finest wild rose is the great brier rose which was introduced in 1889 by the late Col. Sir Henry Colett from the Shan Hills of Upper Burma. The specimen in the Himalayan House at Kew refused to bloom until 1910, when four flowers appeared, the number being increased last year to eight.
